Laird Has Numerical Goal For Hiring of Minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has decreed that managers in his department must meet numerical goals and timetables to increase hiring of blacks and other minorities.

This new requirement is included in a tougher defense antidiscrimination policy laid down by Laird Thursday.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Roger Kelley, the Pentagon's manpower chief, denied the "numerical goal" represents quotas.

As he described it, "a goal is a flexible thing . . . it is something that has to be subject to change, depending on changing circumstances."

Kelley said it is not the Pentagon's aim to "end up with precisely the employment of minorities, including racial and second minorities, and ethnic strains as they bear to the total population."

Kelley, who formerly was personnel chief for a major industrial firm, said these goals should be accompanied by a timetable "so that we don't drift aimlessly from one year to the next without accomplishing things and without making clear progress."

He refused to make public any specific numerical hiring goals and timetables, saying, "We don't want to get caught up in a numbers game here."

Laird's newest directive is the latest in a long series of memoranda and orders dating back at least 16 years and all designed to promote equal opportunity for blacks and other minority groups in both the armed services and the civilian ranks of the Defense Department.

In one major way, Laird took a step beyond the past regulations aimed at correcting racial inequities around military bases.

Laird has ordered base commanders to act on their own judgment to declare off limits apartment buildings, stores, places of entertainment and other establishments found practicing discrimination.

Previously, a commander had to refer such matters to the office of the secretary of defense in Washington, and sources said only minor off-limit actions resulted.

Another new element in Laird's equal opportunity directive involves the rating of commanders on what Kelley called "good performance or bad performance in the equal opportunity area."

Kelley made it clear that "failure to step up to the responsibilities" expected of a military officer in the race relations field could result in "removal of the individual from his command post."

Resor Report

Army Spying Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says a preliminary investigation has found no truth to charges the U.S. military spied on an Illinois senator, congressman and former governor.

"I can state that neither Sen. Stevenson, Rep. Mikva, nor former Gov. Kerner are or ever have been the subject of military intelligence activities or investigations related to political activities," Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor said in a statement Thursday.

Resor replied to charges raised a day earlier by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who quoted a former Army agent as saying Army intelligence personnel had collected data on Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, former Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal judge, and Rep. Abner Mikva.

The allegations, Resor said, "are without foundation in fact." He pledged the Army's cooperation in Ervin's probe of the former agent's story.

Resor said the agent's statement that several other Illinois citizens—including civil, church, education and political leaders—were spied on will be investigated separately. The investigation is continuing in the case of the three Democratic officials, he said.

Ervin quoted the former agent as saying the military intelligence unit at one time was spying on every person in Illinois who expressed disagreement with U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia or who openly opposed Nixon administration domestic policies.

There has been no indication what use, if any, was made of information allegedly gathered by the agents.

After Ervin issued the report of the former agent's statement, the White House released a statement opposing domestic spying and said, "It will not be done under this administration."

Military Personnel

Asked whether military personnel actually are engaged in spying on citizens, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler pointed to a statement by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird: "It is not going on in any way at this time."

However, The Associated Press has obtained documents outlining Air Force and Navy requirements for investigation and reporting on "civil disturbances and dissident or subversive activities . . . ."

An example of what Air Force agents were told to look for is contained in a May 25, 1970, memorandum issued by Col. Jack January Jr. at Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls, Tex. The guidelines have since been rescinded.

The first draft of the directive ordered Air Force personnel to report to their supervisor on such persons as those "attempting to spread antiwar sentiments in public places" at Sheppard or those "Making statements with racial overtones."

When Sen. Ervin asked about the guidelines, Robert C. Moot, assistant secretary of defense, said the Pentagon has a "very real concern for the privacy and constitutional rights of members of the armed forces . . . .

"As a general rule, investigations are not initiated where the allegation is based on the mere expression of views opposing official U.S. policy in Vietnam,"

Rioting Resumes In Polish Cities

WARSAW (AP) — More trouble was indicated today in Szczecin, shaken by rioting and arson, and tanks were deployed in Gdansk, but the days of violence against government price increases appeared on the wane.

A traveler from Szczecin, Polands' largest port, said mobs burned the Communist party headquarters Thursday in a continuation of rioting that has left 10-20 dead and hundreds injured.

A Western diplomat who returned from the Baltic port of Gdansk, where the major violence broke out Monday, said tanks were positioned every 100 yards along the main street. Warsaw radio reported that life in Gdansk was "fully normal."

Radio Szczecin appealed for observance of the nightly curfew and for "calm, prudence and work" and said the port had begun a normal working day.

But the continued appeals for calm and order were considered evidence that the city the Germans called Stettin had yet to return to normal. Buildings were burned and shops were looted before authorities imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew Thursday.

A Swedish newsman who was in Szczecin Thursday said armored cars charged a crowd outside the burning Communist party headquarters and ran down a woman and her young daughter. He reported the police headquarters and several other buildings were burning when he left the city that night.

Workers Strike

The reporter, Anders Tunberg of the Swedish Broadcasting Corp., said a third of the 22,000 shipyard and dock workers had failed to report for work Thursday morning, and the rest refused to work. He said at noon several thousand workers marched into the heart of the city, but "heavy police forces" stopped several thousand others who tried to leave the shipyards.

The nightly curfew also continued in force in the tri-cities of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot, on the Bay of Danzig 180 miles east of Szczecin. Passenger train service from Warsaw to Gdansk resumed today after a four-day suspension, but plane and telephone service were still suspended.

Warsaw Radio reported that all shops in Gdansk were open this morning and fully stocked, "people were queuing to get morning newspapers; city transport is operating on a full-scale basis and so is the inter-tri-city electric train line."

The broadcast said all workers went to their jobs in all three cities.

Radio Gdansk had reported a new flareup in the city Thursday night, with "gangs of hooligans" attacking food trucks. "Many of the trucks were thoughtlessly destroyed," the broadcast said.

The government meanwhile declared the equivalent of a state of emergncy throughout the country and warned that demonstrators resorting to violence would be shot on sight.

Legislature Ordered Into Special Session

Appointee Approval Desired

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles' directive for a brief special session of the legislature next week produced complaints Thursday among members of his own party, some of them are talking about converting the event to a review of his vetoes.

Knowles, leaving office after six years as a Republican governor, asked legislators to convene Tuesday to confirm some of his executive agency nominations before Democrats take over Jan. 4.

It was known that the governor had been thinking about a special session for several weeks. His Democratic foes and Republican dissidents were prepared, therefore, with remarks that ranged from "inopportune" to "purely partisan."

Rep. Harold Froehlich, Republican speaker of the Assembly, said legislators may try to work on a number of items although Knowles called the session only to get Senate approval of 39 nominees.

Related Story on Page A-5.

Democrat Patrick J. Lucey, who replaces Knowles as governor Jan. 4, said he doesn't think a 48-hour special session would have much impact on his hopes for austerity in government expense if legislators refrain from doing anything other than consider Knowles' nominations.

State Sen. Fred Risser, the 1969 session's Democratic minority leader, said the special session will "cost thousands of taxpayer dollars" and was scheduled by Knowles for "purely partisan purposes."

Less Expensive

The senator had suggested earlier this month that Knowles' appointments could be handled less expensively during the 1969 legislature's final hour prior to swearing-in ceremonies Jan. 4 when lawmakers will be in Madison anyway.

The governor said he decided against Risser's suggestion because the constitution indicates action would be invalid if adopted on that day by the 1969 legislature.

Rep. Robert Huber, Democratic minority leader in the 1969 session, said the governor was calling a special session on appointments simply to "play Santa Claus for his political buddies."

Froehlich Calls Majority Caucus

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Retiring Speaker Harold Froehlich of the Wisconsin Assembly said Thursday that he has summoned the Republican majority members of the expiring legislature into caucus here on Tuesday morning to decide whether they want to expand the calendar of the legislative session ordered for that day under a special call by Gov. Warren P. Knowles.

Froehlich declined comment on the probable conclusion of the caucus of the Republican legislative majority that will be in control of the house until the 1969 legislature expires Jan. 4.

But he recalled its earlier position at a post-election caucus here that Republican assemblymen opposed the idea of a special session call by the governor, and their declaration that if Knowles was determined to summon the legislators to return to Madison, they would insist on the right to act on legislative bills as well as gubernatorial appointments.

The retiring speaker seemed to imply a belief that a change of position of position of his colleagues is unlikely.

One of the major issues that would be taken up in the event the legislators insist on going beyond gubernatorial nominations is a public employe retirement bill that was vetoed by Knowles nearly a year ago. The veto has not yet been acted upon because the legislature has not been in session since that time.

Knowles complained about the cost of the proposed liberalization of retirement benefits, and singled out for criticism the provisions that would benefit elected officials, including judges and legislators. He said such officers are not entitled to pension provisions that are more generous in terms than those permitted for other public employes, and also objected to the cost of the proposal.

Some of the legislators who did not run for re-election this fall, or were defeated, would benefit from the bill immediately, if it should be passed into law.

A veto of the governor can be over-ridden by the legislature by a two-thirds vote in each house.

Mitchell Sees Nothing Wrong In Hoover Causing Uproar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said today he doesn't believe FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's recent statements are a cause for rebuke.

The attorney general also said, in a news conference, the federal government plans no further action in the slaying of two young blacks at Jackson State College in Mississippi last spring and that no decision has been made on whether a federal grand jury probe of the Kent State incident in Ohio is necessary. Four students were killed during a demonstration at Kent State.

Mitchell said he has been satisfied with the job Hoover has been doing as head of the FBI and that Hoover has done nothing so far that would require Mitchell's taking action.

Hoover recently created a stir when he accused two imprisoned antiwar priests, the brothers Philip and Daniel Berrigan, of heading a conspiracy to kidnap a government official.

Mitchell said Hoover's comments, in a magazine interview, that Mexicans and Puerto Ricans pose little threat against a President because "they can't shoot very straight" could not be considered a racial slur.

"You have to read the statement in context," Mitchell said. "He was not castigating any race or creed or anything else.

"I wouldn't try to impede Mr. Hoover's freedom of speech," Mitchell said. "Until he gets to the point where he is doing something improper, and he has not come anywhere near reaching that point, he can say anything he wants to."

In regard to his own future and rumors that he will resign to run President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972, Mitchell told reporters at his first news conference in five months:

"I haven't been asked and I sure as hell haven't volunteered."

Asked about Nixon's chances for re-election in 1972 he replied: "I think they're excellent."

Launch Date Confirmed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After reviewing all aspects of preparations, the Apollo program director has given the go-ahead to proceed toward a Jan. 31 launching to the moon.

Dr. Rocco A. Petrone met throughout the day Thursday with key Apollo officials to discuss the readiness of the Saturn 5 rocket, the spaceships, launch operations, tracking, recovery forces, the astronauts and other phases.

"We had a very thorough review," Petrone reported. "All elements appear ready at this time to support the Jan. 31 launch date."

Among those who participated in the review were the three astronauts who will fly the Apollo 14 mission, Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell.

Shepard and Mitchell are to attempt a landing in the rugged lunar highlands near the crater Fra Mauro to search for ancient soil that might provide clues to the origin of the moon.

The review was conducted as a flight readiness test at the launch pad was delayed Thursday because of a faulty airborne computer in the Saturn 5. The computer was replaced, with a delay of about seven hours in the exercise, which was to be completed late today with a simulated liftoff in which the three astronauts are to participate.

Congress Relents, 'Queen' Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 46-year-old paddleboat Delta Queen—wooden superstructure and all—will again ply the waters of the Mississippi River under a bill passed by Congress

A measure providing a three-year lease on life for the sternwheeler passed through the House and Senate with little comment Thursday and went on to President Nixon.

The conference committee which exempted the Queen from Safety at Sea Law tagged it to a report obscurely titled "relief of one Elmer R. Grade."

Grade, a government worker who in the private relief bill would be allotted moving expenses, has nothing to do with the Queen or her battle to stay afloat.

Owned by Greene Line Steamers, Inc., of Cincinnati, Ohio, the sternwheeler stopped operations several weeks ago under the safety law requiring boats with 50 or more overnight passengers to have metal superstructures.

The Queen, mostly wooden, carried passengers and cargo on the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee rivers from St. Paul, Minn., with stops in New Orleans, St. Louis and Pittsburgh.

Now berthed in New Orleans, the Delta Queen is exempted under the bill from complying with the safety law until Nov. 1, 1973. That, the conferees said, "will give Congress time to hear and decide how to assist in saving the last symbol of a bygone era."

In addition, they recommended that space agency technological developments be used to find a way to make the vessel fireproof.

Officials for Greene Line said they would voluntarily take safety precautions beyond those required by the Coast Guard before refloating the vessel.

Busy Hands Bring Joy to Others

Debbie Lyman, Tina Duquette and Paula Frederick hand a wreath made by their Brownie troop, to Diane Wroblewski. Larsen, a patient in the pediatrics ward at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

The joy of Christmas manifests itself in many ways during the weeks preceding the holiday. Hands, small and large, busy themselves in the Fox Valley with a wide variety of projects, hoping to bring a little happiness into the lives of others, who for one reason or another, find themselves unable to join families or friends on the most beautiful of days.

Little children who find the wait for the jolly old man so long have been kept busy helping mother make cookies and decorate the house. They share, too, in the fun of wrapping packages and hiding them away. Somehow, the extra effort put forth by mother to include the little ones in the pre-holiday activities helps to keep tension to a minimum.

Brownie Troop 192 from Jefferson School surprised the children in the pediatrics ward at St. Elizabeth Hospital Monday afternoon with a lovely pine cone wreath they had made and Junior Troop 337 from St. Therese School filled Santa Claus jars with candies. These they gave to the Salvation Army Thursday to add to the gifts that will be distributed before Chrisfmas.

Young voices rang through the halls of Appleton Extended Care Center Thursday when Junior Troop 66 from St. Pius School sang carols for the residents. They also brought tree decorations and handmade Christmas cards to give to those who reside there.

Tiny hands were busy frosting cookies at the YMCA as pre-school children enrolled in classes there prepared for parties scheduled during the last class period before vacation time begins.

It took almost a year for the women of Chrismons Club of Immanuel United Church of Christ, Kaukauna, to make ornaments for the 20-foot tree which adorns their church. Trimmed entirely in white and gold and highlighted with small white lights, the tree is decorated with crowns, scepters, crosses and stars fashioned from white plastic foam material and covered with pearls, sequins and beads.

Tasting the Frosting seems to be more fun than frosting the Christmas cookie for little Julie Ahlquist, one of the children enrolled in the YMCA pre-school classes. As she tastes, Greg Werner concentrated on spreading colored sugar on his already frosted cookie.

Nancy Mader, a Member of Junior Troop 337 at St. Therese School, holds one of the Santa jars the girls filled Thursday afternoon for the Salvation Army to distribute during the holiday season. The hands of one of the residents of Appleton Extended Care Center hold some of the cards made by St. Pius Junior Troop .66.

The 20-Foot Tree at Immanuel United Church of Christ, Kaukauna, is beautifully decorated with ornaments made by the women of the Chrismons Club.

Helping to Trim the Tree at the Appleton Extended Care Center are Terry La Plante and Linda Burkard. At right above, Joan Ferron stops to give Mrs. Bernice Hibbard a Christmas card as she and the other girls in her troop arrive at the center to sing carols and to help with the tree.

When Raymond Mc Henry heard Junior Scouts from Troop 66 singing carols in the halls at Appleton Extended Care Center Thursday afternoon, he met them at his door and played a Christmas carol for them.

Poisoning Major Cause of Brain Damage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have helped us a great deal in our fight against mental retardation. We are again asking for your help in alerting your millions of readers to the dangers of accidental poisoning of children.

Poisoning is one of the major causes of brain damage among children under 12 years of age. In Illinois alone during 1969 there were 12,429 cases of accidental poisoning of children, over one-third of these being from aspirin tablets. Other leading causes are household cleaning preparations, pesticides, paints and varnishes.

Please, Ann Landers, remind parents to keep all medicines and poisonous materials locked up or safely out of the reach of children. Such precautions could save thousands of children from brain damage and death Thank you for your help. — David Moss, executive director, Illinois Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Dear David Moss: Here's your letter with an added word to every mother who reads this column. Nothing you do in the next 30 minutes can be so important as checking your medicine cabinet and supply cupboards to make certain all medicines and potentially harmful substances are locked up and safely out of the reach of your children. I urge you not to put it off. Do it now. It's a matter of life and death.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 30 year-old homosexual. Actually, I think "closet queen" is the name applied to people like me. I play it straight in order to protect my career. No one would guess in a hundred years.

My problem is that I am lonely. I avoid close friendships with girls because I hate to be unfair. I don't feel comfortable enough with most men to be "one of the boys." I have no contact with other homosexuals, in fact I avoid being friendly with the flagrant types for fear of being linked with them. I would never hang around a gym or gay bar.

What happens to people like me? Do we just accept the fact that we must go through life lonely? Can you help us? —Gay but Not Happy

Dear Friend: I have been told that perceptive homosexuals have a built-in radar system when it comes to sensing the presence of their own kind. I believe this is true. The signals may be ever so faint, but they are discernible to one who is alert. The attitudes toward homosexuals in our country are changing. They are no longer considered criminals in some states. I say it's high time we emerged from the Dark Ages. Perhaps you would be happier in a larger city where the tendency to consider homosexuals freaks, is not so great.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My fiance and I have a family crisis we'd like to settle before we marry I hope you will not think we are a couple of nuts.

Neither Leonard nor I use tobacco We both dislike smelly ashtrays and the lingering odor of stale smoke on draperies and upholstered furniture, not to mention the small holes that appear mysteriously after the nicotine fiends have left We do not want any cigaret or cigar smoking in our apartment. Problem: My mother is a heavy smoker When I told her of our decision she stated flatly that she would not visit us if that's the we felt. (Incidentally, she lives in this city.)

Our decision has become a topic of conversation among the relatives. Are we being foolish, stubborn and unreasonable? — Canadian Dilemma

Dear Can D.: Since you and Leonard have decided there will be no smoking in your apartment your mother should respect your wishes — as you would respect hers under similar circumstances.

Preemptive bids are either ugly weapons or gracefully handled rapiers. It depends on whether the opponents do the preempting or whether you do.

Dealing with an enemy's preemptive bid often provides some of bridge's most frustrating moments. And occassionally some of its most satisfying moments.

Witness today's cliff-hanger, played in one of the latter rounds of the 1970 Spingold tournament.

Open-room bidding:

East	Wolff South	West	Jacoby North
3 ♣	3 NT	Pass	Pass
Pass

Aces Bobby Wolff and Jim Jacoby sat South and North in the open room.

East's opening bid of three clubs presented Wolff with an ugly problem He could not double for penalties, since Jacoby would interpret a double for take-out. His only alternatives were to pass and hope that Jacoby could act, or to bid three no-trump and hope for the best.

He bid three no-trump and began hoping

In the closed room, South also became declarer at three no-trump. However, Ace Billy Eisenberg (East) had not bid at all. West, Ace Bobby Goldman, opened the queen of hearts. South won with his king and planned his play as follows.

Since he had no clue concerning the club suit distribution, South cashed a high diamond and then led clubs. If clubs divided decently, the contract would depend upon a successful diamond finesse — two hearts, four clubs and three diamonds. The plan was shipwrecked and declarer went down three tricks — minus 300.

In the open room, West also opened the queen of hearts. However, since Wolff had been alerted to the bad club distribution by East's preemptive bid, he chose the winning line of play.

Wolff won the heart king and played the ace and king of diamonds, dropping West's queen The jack of diamonds was cashed and dummy entered with the heart ace. After the run of dummy's diamonds, Wolff took the club finesse to make his contract.

Had Wolff peeked into West's hand? No Since he knew clubs were bunched, the diamond suit offered the only chance. Further, since dummy had only one entry in the heart ace, and that entry needed for the club finesse, Wolff could not afford to finesse in diamonds. Ergo, the diamond queen must be a doubleton; therefore, Wolff's "supernatural" play.

East's preemptive bid hand turned into a boomerang that gave Wolff a special glow of satisfaction. Turning a preemptor's blunt weapon against its user never fails to satisfy some of our more basic instincts.

Shape Up With Right Clothes

There are some figure problems diet and exercise can't touch, like a short waist, small bosom, heavily built legs, etc., because they are structural. But don't despair. The right clothes can give the illusion of four or five pounds lost in exactly the spots you want to drop them.

Or, if your problem isn't structural and you're on a diet, let the right clothes help make the most of your efforts. Here's a run-down from the latest issue of Glamour Magazine about the newest, best-looking clothes around and how to get the most figure help from them.

Wear long jackets if your hips are too heavy. One super choice for girls with too much weight in the hip and thigh area could be a long safari jacket and matching pants tucked into tall boots. The long jacket helps to camouflage heavy hips, behind, thighs.

Wear a slit skirt if you're too tall. Girls who are really long on height might try a midi skirt with a deep center slit to break the line A matching coat is an added plus

Wear cinch belts if you have a tiny waist. It's smart thinking to make the most of your assets — then the problem areas seem less important. If your waist is small, cinch it with a wide belt.

Another great look that makes the most of a tiny waist — gaucho pants and a battle jacket tied together with a wide leather belt.

Wear pants if you're too skinny. A pin-dottted jumpsuit and matching coat is not only a great fashion look, but a lifesaver for a too thin girl. The overall pattern plus nonclingy lines can help avoid the skeletal look.

Softened bright colors help camouflage too much thinness, too. Try a bright but softened red to keep from looking too sharp and angular

Try separates in matching neutrals to slim you. Neutral separates tend to elongate and slim the body and the color is more interesting than the usual black or navy.

Wear different colored separates to break a too long body line. Separates are good for tall, thin girls. A different color top and bottom breaks up what could be a stringbean line. Another way to keep a long, thin body from looking like a broomstick is a jumper or jumpsuit worn with a bright sweater or shirt. The spark of color diverts the eye. The shirt or sweater worn underneath also adds a pound or two to a thin figure.

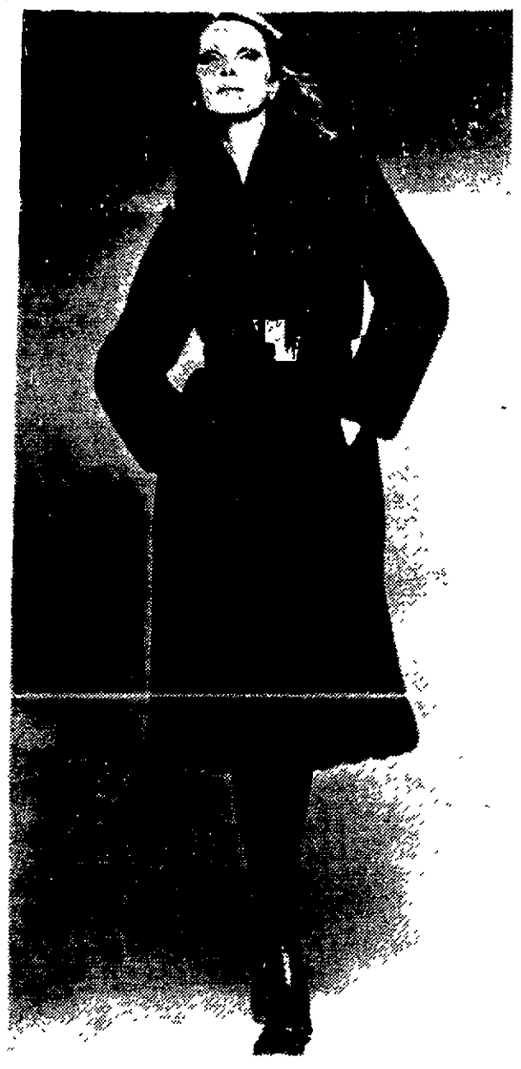
Think When You Make Yours Mink



The Elegant Wrap-Up for every occasion comes in natural dark ranch Blackglama mink from Ben Kahn. The let-out pelts are worked vertically in this long line beauty; the direction of the pelts is esthetic only—it does not affect quality, workmanship or durability of the mink.

The best way to get a woman wrapped up in a subject is to help her into a mink coat.

When a woman is ready to buy a mink, the biggest favor she can do herself is to learn exactly what to look for, says Dave Loffman, marketing manager of Great Lakes Mink Association. A basic knowledge of fur quality, workmanship and color goes a long way in making the right investment.

The first step is to select a furrier with a reliable reputation. "Beware of the supposedly good buy," the fur authority warned, "for top quality mink pelts and workmanship involve costs that can't be cut in producing a fine mink garment."

The responsible furrier will provide a statement on request certifying whether the mink's color is natural or dyed. A good natural dark ranch mink fur has a lustre and richness that dyed mink is unable to match. The color of both the guard or top fur and the under fur should be clear and sharp. The under fur, however, will contrast slightly. A good pelt has under fur that is clear or rich blue-black, but never brownish.

To test the quality of the fur itself, first check the hair's silkiness — to the eye and the touch. Then examine the length of the fur. The guard fur should be half again the depth of the under fur. Next, using your thumb, gently pull back the top fur. The exposed under fur should be compact and dense.

The best mink coats are fashion-right and lightweight with pelts that lie smooth and straight, but there's more to quality workmanship than meets the eye at first glance. All fine mink coats are "let out," a process that involves making hundreds of tiny cuts in the pelts and then sewing the cuts together again. Let out tailoring gives the coat a richer flow of fur. Even the amateur can detect let out styling by checking the back side of the fur. The reverse side of the fur, or the leather side, should be a maze of tiny, evenly stitched pieces — a great, pieceworked pattern.

Horizontally or vertically worked pelts are a matter of individual preference. They do not affect the quality of workmanship. The best made horizontal mink coats are seamless and cost more than coats with seams down the back or sides of the garment. These are all checkpoints when you're selecting a fine, quality fur.

Clothing fads come and go but a mink's fashion appeal is as durable as the finest fur pelts. Mink is the most durable of furs. And that's the best possible reason for making a careful investment when you make yours mink.

Shapely Fabrics

Stretch-fabric garments resume their shape and resiliency best after laundering in a dryer set at the proper temperature. Otherwise, they should be laid flat instead of being hung up for drying.

Progress Seen In Cancer Fight

There are 1.5 million Americans alive today who have been "cured" of cancer—i.e. without evidence of the disease for at least five years after diagnosis and treatment. An additional 700,000 are expected to join these ranks after completing their own five-year period.

Since 1956 one in three cancer patients are "saved", according to the American Cancer Society (ACS). In the late 1930's, fewer than one in five were alive five years after first being treated.

The ACS estimates that about 335,000 cancer patients will die in 1971, 106,000 of whom might have been saved by earlier, better treatment.

File Rivets To Insert Handle

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: My rake handle caught fire once too many times while raking leaves and finally snapped off just above the iron part. How can I get the stump out so I can put in a new handle? — Waterbury.

A: File off the rivet heads so you can pull or drive them out. Then the stump can be pried out if it doesn't drop out by itself.

Q: Two years ago, I put a recommended sealer on my basement walls. Then a year later I painted; also with recommended paint sold by local cement company. Now the paint has peeled in a few places. There is a little dampness there, but the basement is always dry. What is the reason? — Oconto Falls, Wis.

A: From description, sounds as though you may have missed the peeled spots when you put on the sealer, or didn't put on generously enough. I suggest merely retreating these spots with the sealer. Then the paint should stick.

Q: The wall above our fireplace slopes back slightly. Can this be made vertical so we can hang a picture or two on it? — Columbia.

A: Perfectly possible. The false wall can be any type paneling, such as Masonite, plywood, etc., fastened to an outline of one-by-one lumber on the ceiling. You can add quarter-round molding on the outside of the joint if desired. Then paint or paper to match.

Q: I plan to expand our 18-foot-wide garage. The house and garage are all lannon stone, 14 years old. I'm pretty sure the new built-on section is likely to be somewhat conspicuous. How can I make the new lannon stone the same color as the present? — Norfolk.

A: Unless you're lucky in finding a perfect or close-to-perfect match, you'll just have to leave this question up to time. Even if you tried to work some light tossing of dust or dirt near the junction, rain would wash it off pretty fast.

Q: We have asphalt tile on a plywood base in our bedroom. We would like to put down wall-to-wall carpeting with a rubber padding underneath. Must we remove the tile first? — Brookfield, Wis.

A: Unless you'd like to try saving the tiles for some other floor, leave them. The worst rubber padding will do, under normal circumstances, will be to leave a yellow stain on the tiles. So what if it does?

Improvements to School Don't Satisfy PTA

Controversial old Jackson Elementary School is getting a grooming, and Principal William Schein also is rearranging a few rooms to centralize the school operation.

"We think this will enhance the whole attitude of the pupils and everyone," he said. "The rooms are fresh and clean, each with a new coat of paint and varnish."

Paint and varnish isn't the whole story.

Minimum safety standards demanded by the state have been more than met; ceiling and roof leaks repaired; walls and ceilings repaired and holes plastered; the north side (fire escape) windows replaced with wired ones, and ceilings tiled.

Schein took the advantage of the repair time and altered certain room uses. Supply cabinets from the girls' basement restroom were moved to a vacant upstairs room where the office and teachers work room also will be.

A small second floor office will be used for speech and testing which formerly was conducted at Columbus School. Speech classes had been held in the gym or wherever a spare room could be found, Schein said.

The teachers lounge was converted to a health room, with the door removed for easy access.

It was estimated it would cost about $2,500 to upgrade the north side school, but William Knuth, director of business, said it probably will cost between $1,200 and $1,500 because materials from old McKinley School and school maintenance personnel labor were used extensively.

Schein noted the administration was concerned with the tight money situation. He said the school now should be usable for many years.

However, the final cost won't be known until the project is completed.

Ironically, the spiffing up isn't impressing the group of PTA leaders who clammered long and loudly about the building's alleged hazards and educational inadequacy that the board of education finally felt compelled to spend money on it.

"It's nice that there's paint on the walls but it doesn't do a thing for equal education," commented Jrs. John Livingston, PTA co-president.

The classrooms are still the same size — too small; there's still no auditorium — the Christmas play will be held in the halls, and the gym is still inadequate, she said. The annex also must be heated by piping heat through uninsulated pipes from the main building, she added, noting this means the main building will have to be overheated.

The annex is a small building adjacent to Jackson.

Schein moved one class out of the main building into the annex to ease the pupil pressure. Jackson has 213 pupils in grades kindergarten through fifth grade (Intermediate 2).

A. L. Buechner, State Department of Public Instruction official contracted by an attorney hired by the PTA, urged in a recent letter that safety standards be met and that unauthorized personnel kept out of the school.

Noting the PTA leaders' request for the vacation of the second floor as a safety measure, Buechner wrote that "this is a local school district decision. Obviously if it can and is done, the major safety hazard will have been reduced to a considerable degree."

PTA leaders contended the second floor fire escape pathway was inadequate. Buechner suggested a smoke retardant stair enclosure.

Annexation Includes 200 Town Acres

City Proposal Is For Industrial Park, Northeast Property

A proposal for bringing about 200 acres of Town of Grand Chute territory into Appleton was unveiled today by City Atty. David Geenen.

The city attorney plans to have the official notice published Saturday announcing intentions to circulate an annexation petition among owners and residents of the area.

The area includes about 70 acres of Northeast Industrial Park land owned by the city, and in addition encompasses property occupied by about 100 electors and owned by 15 or more persons, according to Geenen.

The electors live primarily in a trailer park on the west side of French Road and north of Northland Avenue. A few others live in a small subdivision just south of the trailer park, where 23 lots are platted along Florida and Second avenues and Bonita Street. Some of the owners of major parcels in the territory also live in the area.

Want City Sewage

At least two businesses in the area, the Coenen Bros. meat packing plant and Hietpas Dairy, are under state pollution abatement orders. They have asked to be connected to the city's sewage treatment system to meet the state orders.

The city is preparing to extend a main sanitary sewer trunk lines across the Fox River from the sewage treatment plant on the south side of the river to serve the industrial park and surrounding territory including that proposed for annexation.

The area involved in the annexation has the Chicago & North Western Railway tracks as its southernmost boundary, adjoining former Outagamie County Airport property in the industrial park. The annexation borders extend northward to take in property lying on both sides of French Road to a point just short of U. S. 41. A slim strip also extends west along the north side of Northland Avenue from French Road to include the packing plant.

Confident of Acceptance

Geenen expressed confidence that the annexation will be accepted by a sufficient majority of residents or landowners in the area. He and other city officials have conferred with more than 50 persons involved and received commitments from enough of them to convince Geenen the boundaries could be drawn as now included in the proposal.

The notice to be published this weekend starts the legal steps required. Not less than 10 days nor more than 20 after the notice appears, the petition for annexation must be circulated and signed. A legal description of the area involved must be served upon the clerks of the city and the Town of Grand Chute.

Geenen's action follows on the heels of City Council action Wednesday night accepting a petition from developers owning 100 acres on the Southeast side also seeking annexation. They plan to develop an apartment and shopping center complex on the former Purdy Farm.

Buckley to Run for County Executive

Appleton Mayor George Buckley announced this morning that he will be a candidate for the newly created post of Outagamie County executive.

He is the second candidate to announce. Kimberly Public Works Director Patrick Flanagan announced earlier this year.

Buckley

In a prepared statement, Buckley said, "I do believe that our county executive should be one who has served in an elective position, preferably that of chief executive of a Wisconsin city — such as mayor or city manager."

He said he was not attempting to tailor the job description to fit him but said, "I feel this way because a part of the duties of the county executives are to coordinate and direct all administrative and management functions of the county government. This is exactly what each mayor of our major cities does every day."

He also listed the executive budget which will be required of the county executive as a facet in his favor. "I would assume that the people of our county would prefer to have someone who has had experience with the executive budget of a large city."

The position of elected county executive for counties other than Milwaukee County was created by the 1969 state legislature and adopted by the Outagamie County Board last summer after a referendum in Apfil.

The post carries a four-year term and an $18,500 annual salary.

Buckley, 54, served one two-year term as mayor and is in the middle of the first four-year term established for that office. He would come up for re-election in 1972. The mayor's job carries a $16,000 salary.

He previously served as 14th Ward alderman in Appleton for four years and as an alderman in Chicago for four years. He is married and has one child.

Lucey Fiscal Plan Rapped By Froehlich

Outgoing Assembly Speaker Harold Froehlich rapped Gov.-Elect Patrick Lucey today for crying wolf about the current state financial picture when the state is expected to have an $18 million surplus at the end of the fiscal biennium next June 30.

Froehlich, who will become Assembly minority leader, claimed the Democratic governor-elect was trying to build up the surplus to more than $18 million so he could spend that money during his administration.

Froehlich also charged that "it's fraudulent" for Lucey to claim the state is in fiscal trouble now and should institute an austerity program immediately.

Lucey's austerity campaigned also encountered some friction Thursday from Gov. Warren Knowles, who urged at his final State Building Commission meeting that with such a surplus expected about $27,000 should be spent for improvements at the University of Wisconsin.

'Off the Hook'

Froehlich said that Lucey was "trying to blame a fiscal mess on the Republicans so that he can get off the hook on his campaign promises for the next two-year period." Froehlich said the surplus should be used to reduce the need for additional taxes "which Lucey has been talking about."

The Assembly speaker from Appleton said that the state had been in danger of a $25 million deficit near the end of the last biennium because of increased welfare costs but Knowles instituted an austerity program and the deficit was held down to about $4 million.

On the current surplus, he said that sales taxes probably will be raising about $40 million more than was anticipated but that corporate and personal income tax revenue will be down about $22 million.

Froehlich called Lucey's austerity plea "the biggest farce ever perpetrated on the people of the state."

Th Assembly leader's statement noted Lucey's forecast of a $500 million gap between tax revenue and budget requests for the 1971-73 state budget, despite prospects of a surplus in the current budget of $18.5 million.

"You don't have a fiscal crisis when you have an $18 million surplus," Froehlich said.

Lucey's appeal had better luck with Republican Rep. David Martin of Neenah who, during a meeting with Knowles and the State Building Commission, called for delays in construction spending at the University of Wisconsin.

The commission was asked to postpone action on 28 UW remodeling projects worth $270,000, then modified the idea and approved $150,000 in projects.

"None of them are so essential that they can't be delayed," Martin, the unsuccessful Republican candidate for lieutenant governor Nov. 3, told the commission.

But Knowles, presiding at his final Building Commission meeting, said it would be a "very short-sighted policy not to do the things that have to be done when you have the money."

"I've never found yet that you save money by deferring," the governor argued.

Nevertheless, Knowles joined Martin in voting against the $150,000 appropriation, which UW could disperse as it sees fit.

Martin did not specifically mention Lucey's request that state government be temporarily conservative about spending in an effort to hold down tax increases.

But he did say he thinks "we have an opportunity to act in accordance with the position taken by the governor-elect," and prefaced the observation by suggesting Wisconsin doesn't have a financial crisis.

"I think the present administration is leavng the state of Wisconsin in good shape," the assemblyman said.

The Building Commission rejected Martin's request to defer the UW funds 4-3. It voted 6-2 for the $150,000 settlement.

Suspect in Burglary Faces Court

A 28-year-old burglary suspect, wounded during a police stake out of Xavier High School last Saturday, appeared in court this morning after being released from St. Elizabeth Hospital to answer to two counts of burglary.

Harry Mueller, Madison, appeared before Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer and informed him that his Madison Attorney would not be able to be present until Tuesday. Schaefer, granting the recommendation of the district attorneys office, remanded Mueller to the county jail under $25,000 bond.

Mueller was struck in the chest by shotgun pellets that killed Richard Eickhoff, 42, Madison, in a corridor at the high school.

He is charged with burglaries at Xavier and one which police say immediately preceded it, at St. Bernard Catholic Church.

A Combined Locks couple, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Zehren, 500 Hartjes St., appeared in court before County Judge Gustave J. Keller Tuesday, and their cases were continued to Dec. 23 for perliminary hearings. Zehren is held in the county jail without bond. Mrs. Zehren was left free after posting $150 of a $1,500 signature bond.

Admission Rules Needed for Early Opening of Apartments

Faced with a month-earlier completion date, the Appleton Housing Authority Thursday scrambled to pick up speed in preparing to open the city's public apartment project for the elderly.

Commissioners got over one sticky problem — picking a name for the 10-story building — and moved on to what may be the stickiest job of all — setting admission requirements for tenants.

"Oneida Heights" is the name chosen from a list of 12 suggested by commissioners or citizens.

Authority President Leon Jensen appointed three of the five commissioners to study the admission requirements problem.

The building is now 55 per cent built and scheduled for completion April 27, rather than the June 1 date estimated at groundbreaking on April 16 this year.

Admission Rules

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has asked the authority to propose admission rules by Jan. 31.

Mrs. Doris Cobb, the authority's executive director, in turn has asked HUD to remember the advanced construction schedule in acting on the authority's admission proposals.

Jensen told the three-member panel to prepare its recommendation quickly and said a special meeting of the authority will be called to discuss the committee report.

Jensen appointed William Wachtendonk chairman of the committee, with Harvey Kittner and John Oliver as members.

9-Point List

They will work from a nine-point list of items from HUD which are used by some housing authorities to decide who is admitted to similar projects. The local authority may use some or all of the requirements, arranging them in the order they consider most suitable.

Some limits are set by HUD and are beyond the local authority's power to change. Minimum age and maximum incomes are in that category. Rents must be 25 per cent or less of each couple's or single tenant's incomes as determined by HUD. The authority adopted a resolution confirming that policy, to meet a HUD request.

Court decisions prevent a local authority from restricting the apartments to occupancy by Appleton residents only. Mrs. Cobb told the authority that city residents may be given first preference over nonresidents, however. But she added that rule also is being tested in courts.

Jensen expressed surprise that residency can't be used as the basis for admission, but Mrs. Cobb pointed out some of the persons who have sent their names as possible applicants lived in Appleton most of their lives but have been forced recently to move outside the city to find housing they can afford.

Other commissioners pointed out that some communities have been happy to accept nonresidents after being unable to fill their housing units with residents.

Many Interested

That seems unlikely here however. Mrs. Cobb reported 41 couples, 18 single males and 216 single females have sent in their names requesting application forms. If all were found eligible, the Authority could fill 275 apartments. The Oneida Heights project contains only 150.

In addition to the major issues, the authority continued to deal with the steady parade of small problems and chores that have accompanied the project from the outset. They picked draperies and drapery rods for the apartments, agreed on the form of a commemorative plaque to be provided by the development firm, discussed problems in buying carpeting and accepted designs for small signs labeling major special purpose rooms.

But the authority objected to one suggestion by Hutter Construction Co., Inc., the Fond du Lac developer. The lounge for male tenants may be labeled anything, commissioners agreed — except the "Stag Room".

Fire Precautions at Apartments Criticized

Fire precautions built into Appleton's Oneida Heights apartment project for the elderly meet government codes and underwriters' standards, but are described by local fire officials nevertheless as "minimum".

Appleton fire officials met with the Housing Authority Thursday afternoon and won quick agreement that steps should be taken to do better than meeting minimum standards.

Leon Jensen, authority president, said the 150-unit apartment building's fire safety facilities will be the first order of business at the authority's next meeting.

In the meantime, authority officials plan to contact the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to investigate ways of upgrading the system, confer with Hutter Construction Co., developers on the project, and have local fire officials compile a list of recommendations.

Early in the discussion, Jensen remarked that he believed the system as presently designed and being installed is "more than adequate now."

Fire Inspector Robert Ertl disagreed. "It's minimum. It's not more than adequate," he replied.

After studying the building specifications and discussing them further with Ertl, Jensen observed, "We are conforming with the federal requirements and we are conforming with the state requirements, but these are minimum. And I hate that word 'minimum' when it comes to fire safety."

He said the authority's objective must be "to augment this system, if it's a minimum system, to something better."

Money is a central factor in making changes. The budget for the $2.3 million project is set and contingency funds for altering the plans and facilities are limited.

A primary criticism of Fire Chief Roland Kuehnl and Inspector Robert Ertl is that the water supply for the 10-story building is a "dry standpipe" type which must be turned on and charged with water when a fire breaks out.

Asked by housing commissioner John Oliver what it would

Critics Should Check Other Officials

Froehlich Defends Traveling Lawmakers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Critics of legislators who indulge in junkets to distant places at the expense of the state have failed to acknowledge that most other state officials take such expense-paid journeys to conferences and conventions of interest and concern to them. Speaker Harold Froehlich, retiring chief of the Wisconsin State Assembly, said in a statement made public here today.

Froehlich responded to widespread press notices about the travels of 23 members of the legislature, representing both political parties, to and from Puerto Rico recently as delegates to a national conference of legislative leaders.

Useful to Lawmakers

They traveled at state expenses, and the party included members who had retired voluntarily or were defeated in November elections, press critics have noted.

The Appleton legislator who accompanied the delegation to San Juan said such conferences are as useful to lawmakers as the many other professional conventions are to administrative and academic employes of the state who frequently travel with state reimbursement of expenses also.

Froehlich urged the press also to report the presence at such conferences of state-paid "bureaucrats and university professors."

He recalled that legislative auditors recently discovered that the University of Wisconsin "alone spent $1,114,000 to fly its personnel around the nation and around the world," in a single year.

"This is for air fare alone. These expenditures are seldom questioned by the press, or by the public, which is unaware of these facts," he complained.

Most other departments regularly dispatch state officers and employes to topical conventions around the country, at considerable state expense, but their travel vouchers are not scrutinized by Capitol reporters with the care that is devoted to the examination of legislators' expense accounts, he said in a periodical bulletin which he entitles "legislative capsule report."

Grand Chute Turning To Landfill Operation

BY PETER BACH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A bulldozer widened a trench that was dug Thursday at the Town of Grand Chute dump this morning in a race to bury instead of burn.

Although state orders from the State Department of Natural Resources had yet to reach the Town Hall, Grand Chute was preparing to operate its 40-acre dump as a sanitary landfill.

"As soon as we get their (DNR) order, I will call their Green Bay office," Chairman Ira Livingston said.

Livingston said the site, about three miles north of Appleton at the deadend of Gillette Street, was to be inspected at 1:30 p.m. by a representative from a Kaukauna contracting firm, from which the town may possibly get equipment necessary for the daily operations of the dump.

Town Cited

The DNR's solid waste division issued the order Thursday, citing Grand Chute as one of three in the state which has failed to comply with halting open burning and failure to cover debris.

Trash at the site was set afire for the last time Thursday, according to Edward Ziegler, a town supervisor. A caterpiler tractor, with an end loader, bit into the snow-covered earth at the east end of the site, opening a hole 200 feet long, 10 feet wide and 11 feet deep

Access to the burial area can be made by traveling the same dump road off Edgewood Drive (Outagamie County Trunk JJ) then driving through a clump of trees about one-quarter mile east of where trash had been burned.

Ziegler said the town hoped to cover the path through the woods with gravel, and later, to cover it with blacktop. He expected the heavy equipment to further enlarge the hole by 4 p.m. today

Only Temporary

Livingston said Thursday that the landfill process will be at least temporary, until he can confirm the orders banning burning with the state. That won't be possible until the orders actually arrive at the town hall, he said.

Should the state decide to close the present dump, in operation since 1955, entirely, Grand Chute would have to find suitable arrangements for disposal of its garbage elsewhere, Livingston said. He referred to a dump not affected by the state ruling.

A license has been issued to the town for operation of its dump as a sanitary landfill, but does not authorize it for open burning.

Livingston has been informed by City Disposal Co., of Madison, that a study of the present site will be made to determine its feasibility for regular use as a sanitary landfill. The firm said it will later submit a complete proposal to the town offering a permanent solution to the problem. City Disposal also expects to incorporate in its plan a consideration of surrounding municipalities as well.

HUD Likes Joint Housing Approach

NEENAH-MENASHA — According to a federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) official, a joint application by the Neenah and Menasha housing authorities for housing project construction reservations could give the applications a higher spot on the federal priority list.

Robert Miller, deputy director, production division in the housing assistant office in Chicago, said today that "a joint application would be a very good idea because it would save administrative cost."

Regional Basis

Miller added that HUD has been encouraging combining of smaller housing authorities to get housing going on a regional basis.

Ed Gray, president of Nike, a Madison consulting firm which has been hired by the Neenah Housing Authority to process its application for federal money to construct a housing development, and is being considered by the Menasha Housing Authority, said his firm would encourage a combined application.

Both Miller and Gray agreed that a combined application would not determine where the units would be constructed. Miller explained that "a combined application could get a reservation for 200 units with half built in Neenah and the other half in Menasha."

"The combination would be strictly for administrative purposes," Miller said.

Gray said, "Each housing authority in Wisconsin right now that has a project has its own administrator no matter how many units there are. Sometimes, there is one man to handle 40 units, when he would be taking care of 1,000."

Joint Efforts

Gray said his firm would encourage joint fforts between the two. "A thing as simple as a letter of intent to cooperate to bring the projects under a common management would probably get a higher priority for the two cities."

"HUD is very anxious to get this happening in all smaller communities," Gray explained.

Miller said there would be another advantage to join be cause "there would be more money between the two to hire a good staff."

Gray said Nike had already talked to both housing authorities about a possible combination. "But, we have to be very careful because we're outsiders. It's really too early to push because we don't have a contract with Menasha," he said.

Neenah finalized its contract with Nike Thursday night which calls for $8,5000 to process an application for up to 100 units.

The prime value of Nike is its knowledge of HUD policies and procedures which the Neenah authority thinks will avoid delays caused by inaccurate applications having to be revised.

"Our job is to make sure that our client understands HUD policies and procedures, which could accelerate the application and reservation procedure," Gray explained.

Recall Petitions Are Filed Against Board

WINNECONNE — Petitions have been filed for the recall of three Winneconne board of education members, one of whom has already resigned.

The petitions, seeking the recall of board members George Tipler (who resigned Monday night) Gerard Eisch and George Dobberke, have been filed with the school board's clerk Robert Schueler and contain some 1,560 signatures in all

The recall attempt comes in the wake of the fourth referendum defeat of a new senior high school for the Winneconne School District.

"We feel definitely that the entire building program has been one-sided and pre-determined. And it does not include other solutions," Harvey Weiss, temporary chairman of the Winneconne Taxpayers Association (currently in the formation stages), said this morning.

He emphasized that the group is not against education and is not against children, but the citizens have been upset with the methods by which the programs are put forth and want better management.

With the 1,560 signatures, or more than 500 on each petition, Weiss said he feels there are enough signatures to have a recall election. Less than 2,500 persons voted in the last gubernatorial election.

He said that, according to state statute, the recall election must be held within a period of 40-45 days, providing the petitions are in order. The board members under recall, also have a 10-day period in which to resign, if they wish, he said.

Tipler, who was president of the school board, had served the board as a member for 25 years before resigning Monday night, claiming that his work with the Wisconsin Association of School Boards took up much of his time.

Both Eisch and Dobberke have served on the board for several years. In order to recall a board member, he must have served on the board for at least a year.

Board member Andrew Blaauw, who was named the new president Monday night, has been on the board about six months, and Schueler was elected last July.

The three-year term of Floyd Davis expires this coming July along with Tipler's term.

The other board member is Abraham Eckstein Jr. who was the only board member to vote against the proposal for a new senior high school.

Weiss said the Winneconne Taxpayers Group was formed last summer after people came out of informational meetings on the proposal for a new senior high (for the September referendum) with doubts.

The group was formed with "Followers of about 1,100 people," Weiss said.

The new Winneconne Taxpayers Association, the result of the Winneconne Taxpayers Group, considers itself the watchdog of the actions of the present school board, the spending, the building programs, Weiss said.

"We wouldn't be doing what we're doing if we didn't feel we were right," Weiss said.

He said the group wants to bring the Winneconne school board into prospective so people can start voting yes.

"We want something for the children," he said, and added that he wanted to destroy the feeling among some Winneconne people that "senior citizens hate kids"

"People say we're against children. . .it's not true," he said.

The Winneconne Taxpayers Association is looking for a "realistic" program, he said.

The present people in command, with the exception of Eckstein, have been "oblivious to anything suggested by any people," Weiss said.

Twin Cities 2nd in Wage Rating

NEENAH-MENASHA — The Twin Cities maintained their second place status for average weekly earnings of production workers in the state during November, according to the latest Wisconsin Work Force report from the Department of Industry, Labor and Human relations.

A slight increase in weekly earnings in Neenah-Menasha was accompanied by a similar trend throughout the state, despite an unemployment total of 102,800 in mid-November, the highest in 15 years.

The average weekly earnings for production workers in Neenah-Menasha during November was $162 29, up $2.03 over the October figure and $3.74 over the Nov., 1969 figure.

That ranks Neenah-Menasha behind only Madison, where average weekly earnings for production workers during November was $178 21

The average number of hours worked during November increased from 42.7 to 43.3 for workers in the Twin Cities They were tied with production workers from Green Bay for state leadership in that category.

The average hour pay scale of the 12,300 workers from Neenah-Menasha included in the state survey report was $3.75. That's unchanged from October and up 19 cents over Nov., 1969.

In that category, the Twin Cities ranks behind five other survey areas in the state. The weekly earnings of Neenah-Menasha workers are higher than the state average of $148.78 because they work more hours than the average production worker in the state.

Paper Field

Workers in the paper and allied products category of the report averaged weekly earnings of $165.41 in the state during November, an increase over the $163.80 of last month and $5 50 over Nov., 1969.

Teachers OK Contract With School Board

Kaukauna Offers Educators Base Salary of $7,450

KAUKAUNA — The Kaukauna Education Association has ratified an agreement with the board of education calling for a base salary of $7,450 for 1971, effective Jan. 1.

The new base compares with a base of $7,000 for 1970 and represents an increase of 6.4 per cent, slightly more than the 6 per cent increase in cost of living index for 1970, according to school officials.

Negotiations began in May, and 10 meetings were held between the board personnel committee and representatives of the education association. Another 10 meetings were held with the board of education.

The new salary schedule calls for a minimum salary of $7,450 for a beginning teacher with a BA degree and a maximum of $11,920 after 15 years Previous maximum after 15 years for a BA degree was $11,200 For a teacher with a masters degree, the schedule calls for a beginning salary of $8,046 with a maximum of $13,075 after 15 years. Previous maximum was $12,280.

After 15 years no additional increases are provided on the increment step. Other city school systems in the Fox Valley on a calendar year have salary schedules ranging from $7,450 at Neenah to $7,500 at Green Bay and Oshkosh and $7,600 at Appleton, school officials noted

The agreement also calls for the board of education to pay 75 per cent of health insurance for the first four years a teacher is in the system rather than 60 per cent as was paid previously. After four years the board pays 90 per cent of the premium

The new agreement calls for a lower rate of pay for graduate credits earned by the teachers. The rate for 1970 was $35 per credit if earned during the summer and $20 per credit if earned during the school year Beginning Jan , 1971, the rate is lowered to $20 and $10 respectively.

Changes made in insurance benefits raises the hospital room rate allowance from $31 to $40 per day.

Appleton Man Hurt in Crash

OSHKOSH — An Appleton man is reported to be good condition at Mercy Medical Center here with possible back and leg injuries he received Wednesday when the car he was in was hit broadside by another car.

Michael D. Donnermeyer, 26, of 2722 N. Richmond St., Appleton, was injured about 11 a.m. Wednesday at the intersection of County Trunks A and Y or Sunnyview Road, just north of Winnebago.

The driver of the other car, Richard F. Worden, 40, of 2609 N. Morrison St., Appleton, was not injured.

Police cited Donnermeyer in the accident. A police report said Donnermeyer was westbound on Sunnyview Road, stopped for the sign and then pulled out in front of the southbound Worden auto.

$4,000 Limit To Remodel Home Is Set

New Juvenile Unit Expected to be Ready Early Next Month

A $4,000 ceiling has been placed on remodeling costs of Outagamie County's new juvenile receiving home which is expected to be ready for occupancy early next month.

The county board's Special Building Committee, which Thursday night met jointly with the Board of Social Services, accepted renovating plans submited by Curt Biggar Associates, but ordered that the cost of the project be cut by several hundred dollars.

Biggar's plan, in total, would have required the spending of about $4,575 on the recently acquired two story house at Fifth and Walnut streets. Biggar estimated his fee would be another $300-$350.

A county welfare official earlier had told the committee it would cost about $2,500 to remodel the house. One of the major projects will be the remodeling of the kitchen to handle 12-13 persons.

Biggar said many of the renovations are necessary before the building can meet State Industrial Commission standards. The state must license the home for operation.

The $4,000 remodeling cost includes purchase of several major appliances, including a dishwasher. "I don't know why, as a taxpayer, I should get excited about a dishwasher and other things I don't have in my own house," remarked County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt.

LaVern Leach, group care coordinator for the Outagamie County Department of Social Services, explained that the state requires the house to be adequately equipped to prepare food for a large number of people.

Not Ordinary

"A situation like this is not one of an ordinary family," Leach said. He explained that having to do everything manually can become "too big a load" on the receiving home parents, especially at times when most of the children in the home are young.

"This was one of our problems before. We went through two sets of (receiving home) parents rather quickly," Leach declared.

Both Biggar and Leach told the committee there was some renovation work that could be delayed so the immediate cost could be held under $4,000. Biggar cited a $300 fence that had been planned for near the playground area. The fence could be constructed later.

Work on the home should be done by Jan. 1, the committee was told.

"The building is in real good shape," Biggar said "It's a good building and a safe one.'

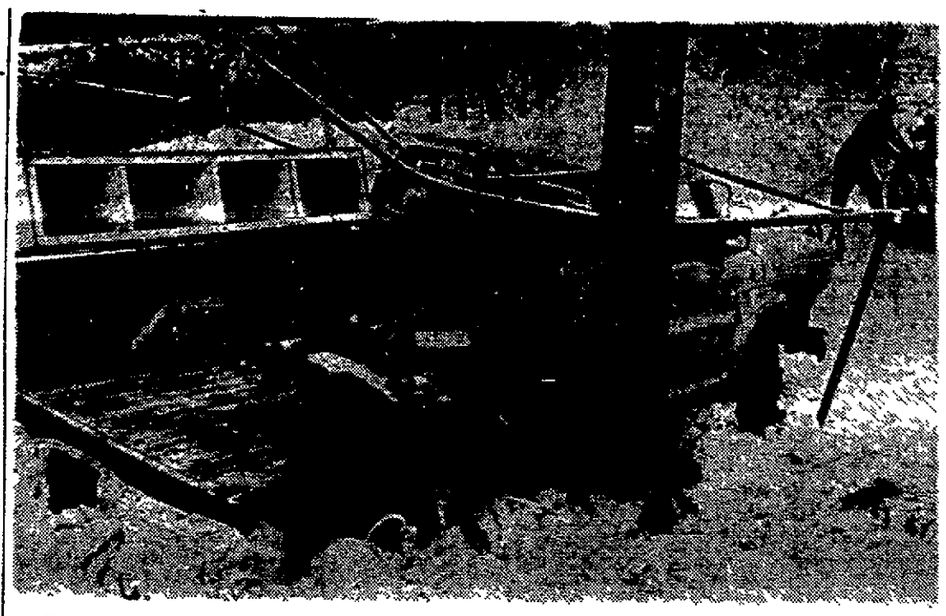
The county has been without a receiving home for nearly two years.

The Board of Social Services, which later Thursday conducted its own meeting, voted to spend $1,154.60 for furnishings for the new home and approved spending up to $300 for drapes.

Leach outlined the agreement that will be entered into by the receiving home operators and his department. He said a separate lease will be signed by the operators and County Clerk Arthur Hoolihan. Both the lease and the agreement await state licensing of the home.

Under terms of the agreement, the county would pay the operators a service fee of $100 per month for each foster child. The home will accommodate up to seven children. The county also would make a board payment of approximately $5.50 per day for each child.

In return, the operators would pay the county about $340 per month under the lease proposal. Leach noted, however, that the monthly lease figure was tentative.



Harry C. Francis, 38, 160 Rought St., Kaukauna, and his passenger, Steve Luedke, 21, 1836 W. Marquette St., were taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital Thursday afternoon after this truck was hit by a train. Francis, the driver, complained of pain to the right knee, while Luedke sustained cuts to the head, lip and right hand. Outagamie County police said the accident occurred on Capitol Drive, at the Soo Line crossing. Francis had been traveling east, the train north when they collided. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Bonds to be Sought For Safety Building

The Outagamie County Board's Special Building Committee, after being told Thursday night that February interest rates look most favorable for the county, voted to start working with Appleton State Bank on the issuance of general obligation bonds to cover the cost of the proposed $2.1 million safety building.

Test soil borings were started this morning on the parking lot site between the courthouse and annex for the safety building.

Four borings will be made to determine the bearing capacity of the soil and the size of the footings necessary for the three-story building.

The on-site work is expected to be completed Monday.

County Administrator Alvin Woehler said the issuance of the bonds could be based on architects' estimates.

Citing what he said should be favorable February interest, Woehler urged the building committee to move fast so the bonding proposal, once it is worked out by his office, the treasurer's office, the finance committee and bank officials, can be submitted to the county board next month.

"That would give us funding by March," Woehler said. Since some of the county's short term notes are being considered for consolidation and refinancing, the bond issuance could run as high as $3.5 million.

The building committee also approved a payment schedule to Sauter, Seaborne, Paynter, Duszak, Ltd., architects for the safety building project.

Four Equal Payments

The architectural fee of $112,250 is based on six per cent of the estimated $1,870,840 cost of constructing the facility.

The firm's contract with the county provides for monthly payments in proportion to services performed. The firm informed the county Thursday that since the design development phase of the planning has been completed, the amount due now is $39,288 — about 35 per cent of the total fee.

Another 40 per cent of the total cost will be due in four equal monthly installments of $11,225 through April 15. That amount will cover the preparation of construction documents, including specifications.

The remaining $28,062 — minus a sizeable credit due the county — will remain outstanding until the architectural firm completes its work.

Although the special building committee approved the architect's bill, it will be up to the finance committee to determine where the money will come from. Woehler said the money probably would be taken from trust funds which would be replenished after the proposed bonds are issued.

The building committee also approved payment of a $1,499.50 bill to Sauter, Seaborne, Paynter, Duszak, Ltd. for engineering services in construction of two parking lots at Sixth and Walnut streets, on land recently acquired by the county take to keep water pressure throughout the system at all times, Ertl said check-valves would have to be installed and an additional water supply line extended to the street main.

With the dry system, fire officials estimated it could take up to 15 minutes from the time a fire is reported until firemen begin fighting it, if it broke out in the most remote portion of the building. Firemen estimate 2½ to 3 minutes would be required for firemen to arrive on the scene, after which they would have to connect hoses and charge the system.

They also would have to carry their own hoses, since the building provides two outlet valves on each floor of the building but no hoses.

Mrs. Doris Cobb, authority executive director, said HUD officials discourages installing hose boxes throughout the building because hoses are costly, must be replaced in 10 years or less and are unlikely to be useable by elderly tenants. Instead, two fire extinguishers are provided on each floor, along with a fire alarm system.

Instruction Sessions

Ertl said the Fire Department will conduct fire safety instruction sessions among tenants once the building is occupied, and the custodian will be taught to evacuate residents living on floors from the site of a fire and above.

Mrs. Cobb said that local civic groups and clubs have asked what items they could contribute to furnish the building and she has listed small, apartment-sized extinguishers among items that would be useful.

The fire officials asked to meet with authority members after Kuehni and Ertl inspected the building.

In Winnebago County

Nine Sanitary Districts Envisioned

BY DAVE WEITZ
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Nine sanitary districts are being formed in Winnebago County to improve poorly planned rural sewage disposals, said Carl Mailahn, county zoning officer, Thursday, during a meeting of the Winnebago County Rural-Urban Development Council.

Construction could start in two years on sewage systems linking parts of the Town of Oshkosh to the municipal treatment plant here, Mailahn predicted.

Unplanned development along the shores of Lake Winnebago and Lake Butte des Morts has resulted in many undersized lots with ineffective septic tank systems, he said.

"A major portion of our lake frontage has been developed with too-small lots." The problem is compounded because often such dwellings were constructed without consideration for proper drainage elevations. "Many of our septic tank failures. . .are in these areas along the waterways."

Although the county earlier adopted a zoning ordinance it was not until 1967 that it was adopted by 15 of the 16 towns in the county. All towns now are included in a floodplain and shoreland ordinance required by state law, Mailahn explained.

Sanitary districts now will permit development of treatment facilities in crowded areas in the county.

A Town of Oshkosh district including eastern parts of the town along Lake Winnebago will transfer sewage into Oshkosh for treatment. A district including much of the western portion of the Town of Oshkosh and an area surrounding the Village of Butte des Morts also will pipe wastes into Oshkosh for treatment.

In the Town of Algoma a district is being formed along the south shore of Lake Butte des Morts. This area eventually will funnel sewage into Oshkosh.

Oshkosh also will receive sewage from a new sanitary district including the Stony Beach area adjacent to the south city limits of Oshkosh.

A small treatment facility will be built to serve the needs of individuals living in the Reighmoor Plat sanitary district along the south shore of Lake Butte des Morts.

The Town of Winchester also will develop a treatment plant to serve dwellings along the intersection of State 150 and State 110.

Sewage in a new Town of Neenah district along Lake Winnebago south of Neenah will be piped into that city for treatment.

The Town of Black Wolf also is developing a sanitary district south of Oshkosh along Lake Winnebago including property along both sides of U.S. 45.

A proposed sanitary district would include the Village of Eureka and part of the Town of Rushford. A treatment facility must be designed to serve the area, said Mailahn.

"Those towns have got to do something," said Mailahn, stressing the need for adequate sewage systems in ill-planned areas.

Updated sewage treatment facilities and the need for an improved site for solid waste disposal also claim high priority at Omro, said Mayor Archie Daggett.

Plant Required

Department of Natural Resources orders have given the city until the end of 1972 to build a new sewage treatment plant. Daggett said a plant is now being designed. A clear water ordinance has been passed to keep drains from funneling excess water through the present treatment plant which provides only primary treatment. "Hopefully we are proceeding in an orderly manner," he said.

The city also is now planning to lease an area for a new solid waste disposal site to comply with Department of Natural Resources regulations, he said.

After hearing reports, Dr. Millan Uucnich of Oshkosh State University urged the council to attack individual county problems.

"There are problems which are particular and unique to rural areas and to urban areas." The council could coordinate planning in both areas, he suggested.

Vernon Peroutky was named chairman of the new council. Jerome Starling, Fox Valley Council of Governments regional planning director was named vice-chairman, and Henry Malchow, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager was elected secretary. Isaac Hart, a Town of Clayton Grange member also was elected to the group's steering committee.

No Counterfeit Bills Found

The story that counterfeit $20 bills were being found in the Fox Cities area apparently is counterfeit.

Appleton police said today that they checked bills at numerous business places, including three bills at the First National Bank of Appleton, and found no counterfeit ones.

A detective said he would continue to respond to calls but wasn't conducting an investigation anymore.

A spokesman for First National of Appleton said that the bills apparently weren't counterfeit but that the bank still was concerned and was sending in several bills to be checked by the Treasury Department.

At Green Bay, where the counterfeit scare originated, a police detective said he knew of no counterfeit bills which his department had seen.

At the same time, a spokesman for the Green Bay bank which reportedly had found a bad $20 bill said the scare was unjustified. He noted that counterfeit bils are found and turned over to the U. S. Treasury Department at various times over the years.

He said the scare started when the Green Bay Area Chamber of Commerce was alerted to possible counterfeit bills in the area.

A spokesman from First National of Appleton said he had five counterfeit $20 bills Thursday, but apparently none really were. Appleton police and a Treasury Department investigator have answered complaints in this area.

Interstate Student Compacts Backed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Student exchange compacts with Michigan and Minnesota, to permit students in border communities to attend school in the neighboring state at in-state tuition rates will be recommended for renewal by the Coordinating Council on Higher Education (CCHE).

The CCHE program committee, after a one-year study recommended the continuation of the program, primarily because the practice can ultimately help the two states concerned in each arrangement to eliminate duplication of programs in nearby schools.

The arrangement with Michigan will be recommended subject to approval by that state's legislature. The compact with Michigan for Upper Peninsula students and Northern Wisconsin students in effect since 1967 has never been formally approved by the Michigan legislative body. A bill has been drafted to approve the concept.

The compact with Minnesota would be revised to limit the exchange to 200 students from each state, a reduction from the current 300 student quota.

For the first time this year the Michigan-Wisconsin compact has reversed an existing imbalance so there are now more fulltime equivalent students from Wisconsin in Upper Michigan schools than Michigan students in Wisconsin institutions

Imbalance Hit

The imbalance that found more Menominee County, Michigan, students at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Marinette campus than Wisconsin students at both Bay de Noc Community College, Escanaba, and Gogebic Community College, Ironwood, has been the subject of criticism since the compact was initiated in the 1967-1968 school year.

With the construction of a new campus at Gogebic and an expanded curriculum this year, the balance has been reversed. There are 104 Michigan students at the Marinette campus, compared to 140 Wisconsin students at Gogebic and four at Bay de Noc.

In recommending the continuation of the program L. Joseph Lins, director of research for the CCHE said there is need for further study of the arrangements.

"Current enrollments indicate the Michigan-Wisconsin Compact is a viable compact. However," he said, "representatives of the Michigan and Wisconsin institutions question that the compact is sufficiently encompassing to meet the needs of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan and Northern Wisconsin students. For example, over 200 Michigan Technological University, Wisconsin students attend Michi- which is not a part of the compact.

Lins also indicated the compact would be more beneficial to both states if vocational technical schools could be included.

New Ruling

The vocational - technical school addition to the compact, that is not part of the 1971-1972 recommendation, would be possible Lins said, as a result of a ruling by Attorney General Robert Warren this week that vocational-technical schools come under the description of higher education and therefore can qualify as part of education compacts under the state enabling legislation passed in 1965.

If the expansion were approved it can be assumed the new vocational-technical school in Marinette and the Rhinelander school could both be included in the compact.

The Minnesota - Wisconsin compact would involve the Wisconsin State University campuses at La Crosse, River Falls and Superior with quotas for the three schools set at 16 Minnesota students at La Crosse, 164 at River Falls and 20 at Superior. A total of 10 Minnesota schools within 35 miles of the Wisconsin border are involved.

The program committee recommendation provides that if applications from Wisconsin students for admission to Minnesota schools for the fall of 1971 exceeds 200 then the CCHE and the Minnesota Commission should be authorized to raise the quota.

W. Roy Kopp of the WSU regents and member of the CCHE endorsed the renewed compact, but said he favored the 300 student quota. It was pointed out that Wisconsin students participating in the program jumped from 132 in the fall of 1969, to 174 in the fall of 1970, an increase of 30 per cent, and that the 200 student ceiling may be too low.

The Knight of the Month award for outstanding community service was presented recently to Nick Ruys, center, for rescuing a 97-year-old Kimberly man from his burning home early the morning of Nov. 14. The man Cornelius Boelhower, is recovering at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Appleton. With Ruys are Rich Van De Hey, left, fraternal chairman of the Father Vanden Borne Council of the Knights of Columbus, Kimberly, and James Arts, grand knight. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Funds OK'd To Remodel UWGB Union

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — An additional sum of $8,400 was approved for the remodelling of the Shorewood Club, temporary student union on the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay campus by the state building commission Thursday.

The money was requested to provide for fast-food service, rather than traditional meal preparation facilities in the former golf clubhouse.

The additional money was approved with the recommendation of State Rep. David Martin, R-Neenah, that the remodeled Shorewood Club serve as the only student union on the campus for a considerable time.

Martin, defeated candidate for lieutenant governor, and lame duck Republican Assemblyman, made his recommendation to the as-yet-unnamed new building commission. He said that UWGB would approach the building commission with a request for another union during the new legislature and that it will be unnecessary.

The $123,000 remodeling project is to be paid for entirely out of student funds.

The university already has requested funds for a study-social commons that the Coordinating Council for Higher Education turned down. In denying the request, however, the CCHE did agree to include a recommendation to Gov.-Elect Patrick J. Lucey that funds be approved for a student union facility if its design and program plan, still to be worked out, first is approved by the coordinating council.

Land Purchases OK'd At Two Campuses

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADSON — The Oshkosh and La Crosse campuses are in the most serious need of additional land among all nine Wisconsin State Universities, the state building commission was told Thursday by State Rep. Harvey Gee of Wisconsin Rapids.

The commission approved the purchase of a total of 18 parcels of land for the La Crosse campus and one parcel at Oshkosh, as well as additional land at Menomonie and Platteville.

The La Crosse purchases initially will involve the sale of 15 parcels offered by landowners to the state, in an area adjacent to the campus and another three parcels that will be used in the near future for parking spaces.

The commission also agreed that appraisals and options to buy should be executed for several other parcels and additional sites in the same area should be regarded as areas the state will buy when owners are willing or anxious to sell at a fair price.

15 Parcels

The state universities had requested $991,100 for advance land acquisition funds for the La Crosse purchase, but the amount was reduced to $225,000 to initiate purchases of the 15 available parcels. A total of $49,700 also was approved for the parking lot land.

The purchase of .3 acre of land adjacent to the new fine arts building on the Oshkosh campus was approved. The land will be purchased at a price of $28,500 and be used in the near future for a seriously needed parking lot for the art center, and ultimately for an academic building.

Two mall shelters for use by volunteer groups to provide entertainment at the Grand Army Home at King were approved for a total cost, including construction and design, of $11,000.

The permanent park facilities will be opensided shelters, located in the central mall. They will be used for volunteer entertainment programs on weekends, as refreshment stands and for recreation throughout the week during the summer.

Long Range Plan

A review of the Grand Army Home long range plan was approved to insured orderly completion of projects, the location of roadways and review location of proposed building.

The $2,000 study is needed, the commission was told to be certain that future plans are still adequate and appropriate to the Home's needs in view of recent construction completed at the facility. The review will also determine where roads should be located around new buildings and what should be done about some roadways that are now too narrow for traffic loads.

The construction of a maintenance and central storekeeping facility and a mall on the recently abandonned Pine Street were approved on the La Crosse campus.

The Most Exciting Headache News In Years!

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Non-Narcotic Tablet That Needs No Prescription Proves Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

If you're one of the many who get tense, nervous headaches, these latest tests by doctors should be of the greatest importance.

In recent medical tests doctors proved a famous tablet that needs no prescription gives the same complete headache relief as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors.

These doctors' tests proved, beyond a doubt, that Anacin is just as effective to relieve tension headaches, yet Anacin needs no prescription and is far more economical.

With Anacin, headache pain and its nervous tension vanish in minutes. Despite its strength, Anacin is not narcotic. You can take it without getting dizzy or an upset stomach.

Next time take powerful, fast-acting Anacin®. Anacin Tablets give the same complete headache pain relief as the leading prescription product for which doctors wrote 21 million prescriptions last year.

Byrnes Sees Little Chance For Revenue Sharing Bill

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Nixon's proposed revenue sharing bill to return federal tax funds to the states won't pass the 92nd Congress and only an "optimist" would look for passage of such a plan at any time in the foreseeable future.

That's the outlook as seen by Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, who is one of the staunchest foes of the plan — and who could prove to be a presidential stumbling block of mammoth proportions if the issue is pushed.

For Byrnes not only combines vast committee power and acute political sensitivities in making his judgments of the plan he also wields the most finely developed understanding and resourcefulness on the Republican side on the rules, regulations and political mannerisms of the House of Representatives.

One intimate of Democratic Speakers much of this century says that Byrnes is the only Republican since the departure of Melvin R. Laird to master the depth of understanding of parliamentary procedure and House precedents to rank him as one of the few classic lawmakers of House history.

That status might well be put to use by Byrnes in the event of a clash over revenue sharing, pushed by Pres. Nixon and state level forces as a solution to the financial crunch hitting state governments throughout the country.

'Front Two'

In leading the opposition to the revenue sharing bill, one of the Washington newspapers has dubbed Byrnes half of the "Front Two," a front line of opposition they rate as deadly as the Front Four of the Minnesota Vikings.

The other half of that duo is Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee for the Democrats.

The deadliness of the two is due in part to the intensely close relationship that Byrnes and Mills have developed as the ranking representative of their parties on the committee, one of the power centers of the House.

It is also due to the fact that the Ways and Means Committee is a prime example of what political scientists term a "consensus committee." All committee member voices, from the most senior to the most junior in both parties, are heard fully during the course of closed committee deliberations. Government, Byrnes stresses, is "the mechanics of compromise," and it is practicised fully inside that committee, the researchers have found.

Tight-Knit Support

The end result is that when bills emerge from the Ways and Means Committee the committee position is backed by a tightly-knit contingent of powerful House members — a sure key to getting things done.

Practical political considerations also tend to block passage, Byrnes says.

"The average guy on the Ways and Means Committee is saying that they are just inviting a situation in which he will have to raise somebody's taxes," Byrnes explains.

Because the Ways and Means Committee, through which the bill has to pass, bears the special responsibility of voting on tax measures before they can reach the floor of the House, the members of that committee will be less susceptible to any administration campaign to rally support of home state governors for the plan.

The Wisconsin 1970 elections and those of several other states point out the problems of taxpaying voters who revolted against tax pressures, he says. Congressional forces could see that possible future for themselves as well, he adds.

Other Approaches

Far better approaches are the Family Assistance Plan which would federalize many state welfare costs, and a return to the pre-Depression federal tax credit for state inheritance and estate tax collections, says Byrnes.

Wisconsin Secretary of Health and Social Services Wilbur Schmidt said in preparing his 1971-73 budget request that his proposed 30 per cent new tax spending hike could be cut to a level of less than 20 per cent if the Nixon plan passed.

But that bill is stalled in the Senate and is thought unlikely to pass the "lame duck" session of Congress. Liberals have reversed early support for the plan, making prospects for passage in 1971 cloudy.

Byrnes said that the White House should not have been "surprised" at his adamant opposition to the plan which was projected by the administration at an eventual $5 billion cost — but which critics claim could climb to a $130 billion level.

He fought such a proposal during GOP platform proposals in the past, he says.

But the White House didn't consult him before announcing the plan, said Byrnes. "This is something that they just went out and said that they were going to do," he commented.

No Hearing

The power of that Mills-Byrnes combination can be seen in the fact that no hearing has been held by their committee on the bill, born more than a year ago bearing the names of 33 members of the Senate and 88 members of the House.

If the Vietnam War ended, and if environmental and other pressing social needs were well financed, and if the Congress did not continually face deficits it is unwilling to tax the nation to cover, then there might be a proper "atmosphere" in which a revenue sharing plan could pass, he said.

Asked what the prospects are for pasage in the 92nd Congress which opens in January, he replied tersely:

"I just don't think it's in the cards for next year."

Asked what the chances are for passage at any time in the foreseeable future, he smiled:

"You would have to be an awfully big optimist to predict that."

Man Given Probation for Bad Checks

A Madison man was placed on two years' probation Thursday for passing 17 worthless checks in the past year, 12 of them in Outagamie County.

A three-year prison term was stayed for Don Forrer, 41. County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, as a condition of probation, directed Forrer to begin serving a four-month jail sentence with the Huber Law privilege.

Forrer stood convicted on ten original charges Thursday. Before sentencing, Schaefer read into the record two other counts from this county and five charges that had been consolidated from as many other Wisconsin counties.

The bogus checks amounted to $2,173. They had been issued in private transactions, at motels, and a Grand Chute tavern since Jan. 31 of this year. The original counts involved notes drawn on the Farmer's State Bank of Waunakee.

Forrer was to have been sentenced on Dec. 8, but a presentence investigation was not yet complete. Schaefer Thursday ordered immediate restitution. Forrer also must pay court costs.

County Participation In Libraries Sought

A first step has been taken for more county participation in municipal public libraries. An Outagamie Board ad hoc committee with representatives from area libraries met Thursday and accepted two sets of questionnaires which will be sent to libraries in the county to determine services and needs.

The questionnaires, submitted by an agent from the state division of library services, will ask for information on library hours, population service finances, resources and the status of community library boards.

According to Supv. Kenneth Gibson, chairman of the special committee, the questionnaires will be sent out immediately and will request return by Feb. 1. This will allow for library data for the 1970 calendar year to be included, and it is expected to correspond with the arrival of U.S. Census information that is needed for the study.

All Are Open

The problem with which the committee hopes to grabble does not concern exclusion of any county residents from various municipal libraries within the county. Appleton Librarian Gordon Bebeau, in fact, pointed out, that "since the county provides some funds for libraries, all are open if one gets a card."

But rather it is suspected that many libraries inadequately serve their population, he said. The problem may be one of funding, and if the county might assume more responsibility in this area, it could insure that library facilities correspond with county population trends.

A letter was read from the librarian at the Town of Oneida, who described its situation as critical due to a lack of sufficient funds.

Oneida's library is not directly affiliated with any municipality or county, receiving most of its funds from the federal government. But many who use the facilities are from Brown County while the library itself is in Outagamie. The letter asked Outagamie for $2,000 to be matched by Brown.

No Authority

Bebeau reminded the group that it had no authority to offer funds, but he added, "think that if Oneida submitted a request to the county board, it would be hard to ignore."

This brought to the floor the question of a regional library system, prompting one official to remark, "something should be worked out with Brown County." Another stated, however, "before anything can be done on a regional level, more county control must be established."

A meeting is set for Jan. 19 at which time it is hoped a representative from Brown County can discuss its county system and help iron out a solution for Oneida.

Kaukauna Offers Special School Lunch Program

KAUKAUNA — Parents of students attending public schools have been notified by school officials, that their children may qualify for free hot lunches at the school.

The board of education recently approved the free hot lunch program sponsored by the federal government for participation in the surplus food program. Application forms for free lunches were sent to homes with school children.

Families who think their children may be eligible are to complete the application and return it to the school. They will be kept in strict confidence and reviewed prior to determining whether a student qualifies.

If a family is denied the program, they may appeal to a special committee who will hold a hearing. The formal free lunch policy statement and appeal procedure are on file in the office of Thomas Nytes, business manager, for review by interested citizens.

Standards also allow a family to participate in a reduced lunch program if sufficient need is shown. A families' income and the number of children are determining factors for eligibility.

Second by Mr. Becker and carried on roll call vote.

Mr. Dusseault presented a progress report on the construction of the additions to and remodeling of Roosevelt and Wilson Junior High Schools.

Mrs. McClanahan moved approval of the agreement between the Appleton Board of Education and the Appleton Municipal Employees Union Local 73, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFSCME, AFL-CIO for the calendar year, 1971. Second by Mr. Buchanan and carried on roll call vote.

Kenneth Schmidt, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, presented a report on work his crew has completed during 1970 and the amounts budgeted for each project.

Old Business:

Mr. Sager reviewed the results of a survey of Jackson School parents completed by Mrs. Archie Mauk and Mrs. William Wenszell as it relates to the closing of Jackson School.

Mr. John Livingston, President of the Jackson School PTA, gave the background for the organization retaining an attorney to represent the group before the Board in order to get some action on the closing of the school.

Mr. George Miotke, representing the district P.T.A., expressed his concern that the P.T.A. image was being used as a tool rather than for its intended purpose.

Mrs. Danford had circulated some of her own observations on Jackson School along with possible solutions and comments and showed slides to verify the condition of the building.

Mrs. McClanahan reiterated her request made at the November 16 special meeting that the Jackson School P.T.A. and-or its attorney submit a complete list of industrial codes which they had charged were in violation by the Board.

The Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, Kenneth Schmidt, pointed out that the recommendations made by Mr. VanHandel were comparatively minor in nature and that the building was not a fire hazard. Further, that the facility could be made more liveable by adding paint, ceiling tile, etc., which he estimated to cost not more than $2,500 and about 20 days for his crew to complete.

Mr. Sager recommended that a committee be appointed to study the recommendations and requests made by the P.T.A., parents and administration and submit a report to the Board. The committee to consist of: four parents of the Jackson Attendance Center, one teacher from Jackson School, Mr. Westphal, Mr. Schein and two Board members. There was no further action taken.

Mr. Buchanan recommended that no further research be made on the project. He pointed out that an architect has been employed by the Appleton Public Schools to design an elementary school on the Menning site which is scheduled to open in the fall of 1972. He further indicated that it did not seem feasible to close Jackson School in January 1971, nor in September, 1971. Therefore, if the school remained open for 1½ years it would seem logical to spend $2,500 to $3,000 to repair the building or do whatever is necessary to make it liveable — more logical than busing pupils to other schools. In the fall of 1972 when the building is opened on the Menning site, there are two possibilities — to make Jackson School a primary unit or close it. However, it was his feeling the Board should proceed to do the necessary maintenance at Jackson School during the holiday season this year. If there is no money to do it now and if there is no money to do it in January after the 1971 operating budget is passed, then the building will have to remain as it is. All work and the extent to be determined by the availability of funds.

A suggestion was then made by Mrs. McKenzie that a study committee be appointed consisting of three Board members, Mr. Schein, Mr. Zieman and Mr. Westphal to examine the following alternatives:

(1) Repair the building

(2) Vacate all or part of Jackson School and place the children in nearby public schools

(3) Possibly renting space on a temporary basis outside the public schools

A report of findings to be presented to the Board at the second regular meeting in December. No action was taken on this suggestion.

A directive was given the administration to proceed with cleaning-up and some renovation of Jackson School — bring it up to code as noted in the report by Mr. VanHandel and that ordinary maintenance be accomplished which would insure appearance and safety of the school. Further, that the administration attempt to find money in the 1970 operating budget to do whatever portion of this work that can be financed at this time.

Mrs. Danford requested that priorities for maintenance and repairs be placed on buildings where children are housed.

There was no new business.

Mrs. McClanahan moved that the Board resolve into Executive Session to discuss teacher negotiations. Second by Mr. Becker and carried.

Mrs. McClanahan moved to reconvene the regular business session. Second by Mr. McKenzie and carried.

Mrs. McClanahan moved adjournment. Second by Mr. McKenzie and carried.

New Furniture Offers Flexibility in Office Planning

A line of office table-desks and accessories which bring new flexibility to contemporary offices is being offered by Sylvester Nielsen, Inc., Appleton.

Mr. Ervin F. VanDyke of Sylvester Nielsen, Inc., Appleton, said the new line, manufactured by Steelcase, includes tables with add-on drawers, auxiliary tables, with and without casters, and rollaway files.

"With this new Steelcase furniture," VanDyke said, "an office planner can start with a basic table or desk-table with box and file drawers in a number of combinations."

Changes Possible

"As job requirements change, desk drawer combinations can be changed. If more work surface is needed, just add either a desk-height or machine-height auxiliary table If more storage is needed, add a roll-away file cabinet."

"Because of its contemporary, open styling, this new furniture is equally appropriate for offices with walls, offices formed by Steelcase Mobiles, or areas formed by random placement of plantings and screens," VanDyke said. Phone number of Sylvester & Nielsen, 213 E. College Avenue, is 739-9431. (Adv.)

Thalidomide Trial Ends—No Verdict

ALSDORF, Germany (AP) — An Aachen State Court today ended the 2½-year-long thalidomide trial without a formal verdict but said it was convinced that the drug was responsible for the epidemic of malformed infants a decade ago.

Judge Benno Dietz, reading a 30-page explanation of the court's ruling, said there was a definite correlation between the marketing of the drug in West Germany from 1957 to 1961 and the thousands of babies born during those years with malformed or missing limbs.

The judge also held thalidomide responsible for causing nerve damage in some adult users.

Five past or present employes of Chemie Gruenenthal, the company that produced the drug, were charged in a 972-page indictment with negligent manslaughter, inflicting bodily injury and violating federal drug laws.

The defense moved on Dec. 7 that the trial be ended with no verdict, and the prosecution accepted the motion because Chemie Gruenenthal had set up a $27.3 million fund for malformed children and agreed to pay $1.09 million to the adult plaintiffs who claimed they suffered nerve damage.

The West German government has offered to pay another $13.6 million to families of the malformed children. Between 2,200 and 2,300 children, most of them West German, stand to benefit from the company and government compensation.

Thalidomide, a sleep-inducing drug, is blamed for the malformation of some 6,500 babies in 20 countries whose mothers took it in the early stages of pregnancy. The trial in Alsdorf dealt only with cases recorded in West Germany, where an estimated 4,000 thalidomide babies were born. A third of them are said to have died.

English and Swedish companies that produced the drug under a license from Gruenenthal have agreed to compensate families of children crippled in their countries. Another suit is pending in Japan.

Dr. Frances Kelsey, who was with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration when thalidomide was being sold, blocked marketing of the drug in the United States. However, some American women gave birth to malformed children after taking thalidomide that came from abroad.

The thalidomide trial began May 27, 1968, after a 6½-year investigation. There were originally nine defendants, but three, including the company president, were excused because of illness, and another died.

Schulte-Hillen, who is the father of a thalidomide-crippled boy, now 9 years old, said in an interview that the damages suffered by thalidomide children and their parents were 20 times what Gruenenthal had offered to pay, but the parents realized that the company could never pay that kind of money.

"The main thing," he said, "is that we finally get cash in the hand."

Although it agreed to pay, the company insisted to the end of the trial that no casual relationship had been proved between thalidomide and birth defects.

Liberals Bar Dole From GOP Chair

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal-moderate Republicans appear to have blocked—at least temporarily—the selection of conservative Robert J. Dole of Kansas as GOP national chairman.

The chief pressures, according to Senate sources, have come from Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and from what were described as "some of the biggest operators in the party around the country."

The result, in the words of one Republican senator close to the White House is "obvious indecision" not only about who to name but apparently about what role the chairman should play.

Many of Dole's colleagues still say he will be chosen to succeed Rep. Rogers C.B. Morton because his reputation as an energetic supporter of President Nixon makes him the best man for the job.

There is one school of thought which holds that the White House sees Dole as becoming the administration official who would hold Democratic feet to the fire with sharp rhetoric while Vice President Spiro Agnew's image is "retooled" into that of a moderate.

"Somewhere in the Nixon campaign organization for 1972 there will be a swashbuckler, a real gut fighter," said one senate admirer of Dole. "Bob would be perfect if they really mean to retool Agnew."

Dole, in an interview, said he remained confident of being selected and that 31 senators had contacted the White House in his behalf, including 28 who signed a telegram.

"But I don't want to contest it," Dole said. "If the President wants somebody else that's fine. I don't like walking around the floor like a suspect or something."

Despite Dole's confidence, some of the 31 senators are playing both sides and it is apparent that opposition to Dole is real.

The overriding reason appears to be the desire of many liberal-moderates for a newer image for the party than the one projected by Dole.

Many people, including Dole, expected an announcement by early this week. Dole attributes the delay to a busy presidential schedule.

In the interim, however, Scott pointedly told newsmen he expected to be consulted about the chairmanship and said he was opposed to the selection of an elected official who wouldn't first resign his regular job.

As a former national chairman who held the job while a member of the House, Scott says he knows firsthand that both at one time are too much for one man.

Scott told a newsman Thursday he has been contacted by "several people at the White House" and at their request had submitted a list of his own choices.

Legislature Called Into Special Session

Fave joined Froehlich in the talk about seeking reconsideration of bills. LaFave remarked about merits of some bills as compared to the governor's "pet appointments."

The governor appealed to legislators not get involved in matters other than his appointments.

The nominees include such Republican leaders as Ody J. Fish, former state party chairman whom Knowles named to the University of Wisconsin's Board of Regents.

Other important assignments include nomination of George Greeley as secretary of the Department of Regulation and licensing, and Charles Hill as secretary of the Department of local Affairs and Development.

Republicans met in caucus earlier this year, and rejected talk of continuing the 1969 session beyond January, 1970.

Knowles said he is calling a special session "with full appreciation for the reluctance expressed by some members of the legislature."

Knowles, however, said he has "a responsibility which requires me to make every effort to secure confirmation of individuals who I believe have the ability to effectively serve our state."

If committees which are reviewing the nominations can have recommendations ready when the Senate convenes Tuesday, the session should be able to recess by noon Wednesday, Knowles said.

"If this timing is followed," Knowles chided, "all members of the legislature will have ample opportunity to return to their families for the Christmas holiday."

The governor's decision received backing from the Republican majority leader in the Senate, Ernest Keppler, who declared it a "legitimate reason . . . to help complete the business of the Knowles administration."

Keppler said the governor should be allowed to have his nominees confirmed before a new governor from an opposition party is sworn in with the power to replace the candidates.

The senator also said he is confident the session won't last more than two days "since the only business will be action on the appointments."

While the governor has called a special session, a majority of the legislators could expand it to a continuation of the 1969 regular session.

"I trust this will not occur because it would open the floodgates for all other legislation, including new bills to be brought before the legislature," Keppler said.

"No governor should have his vetoes unchallenged, especially since he is determined to get us back in Madison anyway," Froehlich said.

Might Balk

LaFave said he might balk at approving Knowles' nominees unless some consideration is given also to bills.

LaFave singled out a bill which would have set aside 35 per cent of liquor tax revenue for veterans' programs. He called the bill "more important to the people of this state than his pet appointments."

Risser said he doubts legislators will convert the special session to a general session, and even begrudged Knowles his nominees.

"The governor has a right to make appointments, and they should be confirmed — unless there is some special reason for not confirming," the Democratic minority spokesman said.

Knowles' brother, Republican Sen. Robert Knowles, said he doesn't figure Democrats would help dissident Republicans set up a regular session.

Such action, the senator suggested, could lead to bills that would further erode the shaky financial situation which Lucey's Democratic administration inherit next month.

Froehlch said he is ready to vote for re-opening of the 1969 session. He said there would probably be a vote on it Tuesday, and predicted the poll outcome will be "pretty close."

Conference on Children Ends on Discordant Note

WASHINGTON AP) — The White House Conference on Children ends today following a stormy breakaway session in which delegates demanded an end to the war in Vietnam.

The final item on the agenda was consideration of specific recommendations to President Nixon on ways to improve the lives of the nation's young.

Forum leaders announced Thursday 10 "issues of overriding concern" which they said have surfaced in five days of discussions among the 4,000 delegates.

Among them were elimination of racism, improvements in the system of child justice, more diverse systems of education, development of day-care programs, an office of child advocacy and a federally financed national child health care program.

Resolutions demanding an end to the war, hunger and the supersonic transport program were adopted Thursday night at a wild rump session attended by about 1,000 delegates.

Takeover Tried

The session was thrown into chaos at the start with attempts by self-styled spokesmen for blacks to take over the chairmanship and devote the proceedings to discussion of racism.

For two hours persons claiming to represent various minorities tried to upstage one another. Finally the chair was taken by Arlene Harris Taylor, dean of the Baltimore College of Bible.

"We must stop this farce. We are not here to campaign for women's liberation, or black liberation. We are here campaigning for the children," said Mrs. Tyler, who is black.

The group also adopted resolutions calling for federally guaranteed income levels, expansion of the Head Start program and establishment of Cabinet-level office to oversee services for families and children.

The session was called by delegates unhappy because the conference schedule provided for no general session "to talk about overriding issues."

Conference Chairman Stephen Hess turned down their demand for one, saying it would turn into a shouting match and end up "endorsing motherhood" instead of concrete proposals.

Social Security Pay Boost Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's conglomerate bill on Social Security, trade, welfare and a variety of other subjects appears dead despite a demand from President Nixon that action be taken by Congress before it adjourns.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday he sees no chance of rescuing the legislation in a conference, even if the Senate passes it.

And key senators, after a parliamentary go-round lasting for hours, said all the maneuvering leaves almost no chance for the legislation in the Senate.

Nevertheless, supporters of the three major provisions in the bill still are trying to keep their pet projects alive.

Backers of a 10-per cent Social Security increase said they expect the big bill to die but still hope to slip their proposal through at the last minute as a rider on an excise tax extension bill.

Sponsors of a quota-setting trade rider attached to the omnibus bill in the Senate Finance Committee succeeded in getting a bobtailed version of it up for Senate debate.

Still Trying

And administration officials continued to lobby hard to get the Senate to attach President Nixon's welfare reform proposal to the bill. The welfare plan would guarantee a family of four a $1,600 annual income.

The foreign-trade, welfare reform and other measures were attached to the Social Security bill by sponsors who hoped their legislation could be carried through by the popular Social Security proposal.

Mills said it would not be fair to the House to consider the many-faceted bill in a conference in the dying days of the session.

He pointed out the Senate Finance Committee had discarded the separate House measures on trade and welfare reform, and thus these House versions would not even get consideration in a Senate-House meeting.

The cut-down version of the trade rider maneuvered before the Senate Thursday contained only three items—textile and shoe quotas and authority for the president to cut tariffs 20 per cent.

It dropped provisions on oil import quotas and broad authority to give increased protection to a wide variety of products.

Pusey to Become Head Of Mellon Foundation

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, who is retiring as president of Harvard University next June, has been named president of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

The announcement Thursday by Paul Mellon, who established the foundation in 1969, said Dr. Pusey would take over in the fall of 1971. He will succeed Charles S. Hamilton Jr.

Before going to Harvard, Pusey was president of Lawrence University.

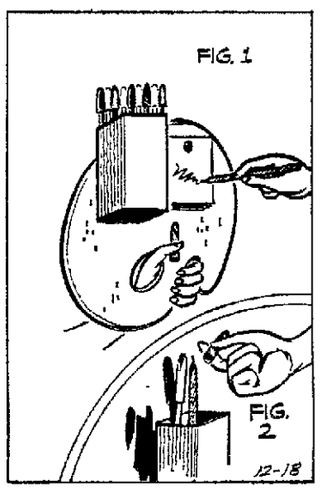
Palette Pen Holder Handy for Young Artist

BY CAPPY DICK

For the boy or girl who likes to color pictures with felt-tipped brush pens, the palette



Corrugated Board

and pen holder shown in figure 1 is a handy device. It has the added advantage of providing the young artist with a pad of paper on which to test various colors.

The palette is simply a piece of corrugated box board cut to a suitable shape. As shown in figure 1 a thumb hole should be cut into the board and a large notch should be cut into the edge of the palette for the artist's fingers. This arrangement makes it easy to hold the palette with one hand while using the other hand to select coloring pens, test their colors on the scratch pad and use them in coloring a picture.

Tomorrow: A newspaper headline game that's fun to play!

Yule Concert Sunday At Fox Valley Campus

Old-Fashioned Carol Sing Scheduled For After-Program Entertainment

BY JINGO

Jingo's in the mood for "Jingle Bells" as that important Christmas Day draws closer and with this statement goes an announcement.

The University of Wisconsin-Fox Valley Center is holding its 10th annual Christmas concert at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the Fine Arts Theater on the Midway Road campus.

It's a jolly, come-one, come-all gathering started as an informal program in the spirit of the holiday season. Everyone's invited and Jingo echoes the invitation because this is a very nice, very friendly get-together at the right time for the yuletide.

So many programs seem to be given early in the spirit of get-them-over-with, but this one at the Fox Valley campus happens just before Christmas every year.

It's just as music director Franklin Doverspike says. "It's a fun program. It's a family sort of celebration — for young and old — with something here for everybody." Actually, the whole thing started a decade ago with the idea of communicating and creating the spirit of the holiday season.

In Jingo's opinion, this is exactly what it does and will again Sunday night because the evening is more like a Christmas Festival than a concert.

There'll be the informal carol sing (along with refreshments) in the cafeteria after the program is done. Students will be on hand to serve the punch and cookies.

As in other years, the choir for the program will be part students and part singers from the community.

Returning against from last year's program will be Bonnie Offenstein, Tom and Daisy Orbison, Ralph Buesing, Grace Marincic, Gloria Johnson, Steve and Sandy Jarrett and Robert Sawyers.

Mrs. Robert Sawyers will be at the piano and Arthur Jaehnke will play the celeste. Student guitarists and instrumentalists will assist.

David and Karen Fennema, the former drama instructor at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, will be the readers.

One of the featured presentations will be a Fred Waring arrangement of Clement Moore's " 'Twas the Night Sawyers and Bonnie Offenstein are the soloists.

There'll be new carols and old ones . . . there'll be Christmas spirituals and other melodies which reflect the Christmas season. Jingo's going, how about you?

Right Author Found for Story on Drugs

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Producer Charles Larson, of The Interns, wanted to do a story about drug addiction among young teen-agers. He knew who to turn to for a script — Barry Oringer, a TV writer who lives at Synanon, an institution for drug addicts. Oringer, not an ex-drug addict himself although married to one, produced a touching tale of a 14-year-old girl who dies of an overdose. This causes Dr. Sam Marsh (Mike Farrell) to wonder why, and he begins a search that affects his marriage and makes him consider his own past. The search winds up at Synanon, in Santa Monica, and the company filmed there several days.

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — The spotlight is on the prune in The Partridge Family tree this week — Danny, who may just be the most unpleasant kid on television. Danny, played by Danny Bonaduce, gets a good review and promptly decides to quit the family and go it alone. He dreams a few tasty situations and starts to implement his idea — even holding auditions for a replacement.

7:30-9 Channel 5 — The Name of the Game tells the story of a big league evangelist (William Shatner), who has been helped by Dan Farrell (Robert Stack), and now seems to have a tentful of problems. There's something rotten in his books and something rotten in his marriage and, besides, his son is not the model of filial respect. A good cast helps a basically logical story — Dina Merrill is the wife, Don Scardino the son, Howard Duff and Jackie Coogan are the evangelist's associates, and Edward Binns a politician who is against him.

9-10 Channel 5 — Bracken's World has Laura (Elizabeth Allen) falling for a young opportunistic singer and helping him get started. Since the relationship between the two could be embarrasing, if not played right, producer Stanley Rubin gave Miss Allen the courtesy of letting her read with several young actors, and she picked Tim Matheson. The result is a good feeling between the two.

Write Santa on Computer Cards

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — Although there was a great deal of excitement at the time of the merger of Santa Claus and the conglomerate of Consolidated Consortium United, it did not work out as well as everyone had expected.

If you recall, a press conference was held at the North Pole where Harley B. Dickens, the chairman of the board of Consolidated, announced that his company had bought out Santa Claus for $150 million worth of Consolidated stock, which was then selling at $144 a share.

Mr. Claus was reluctant to sell the operation, but his wife had insisted. "You're getting old and you have to think about your security when you stop working," she said.

Dickens told the press there would be absolutely no change in the Santa Claus operation, and it would continue as it had in the past. Santa Claus would still be in charge, and the only thing that CCU would contribute would be top flight management, resources and efficiency. Dickens pointed out that since CCU was a worldwide company, more children would benefit from Christmas than ever before.

"We are not changing the image of Santa Claus," he said. "We'll just be streamlining it."

After pictures were taken of Mr. Claus and Mr. Dickens, the chairman returned to New York and for several months Santa Claus continued to operate as he had done in the past.

Several Suggestions

But one day a CCU systems analysis expert reported to Dickens that he made a study of the Santa Claus setup and he had several suggestions as to how to improve it.

"The idea of children writing individual letters to Santa Claus is time-consuming and wasteful. It takes 10 elves working eight hours a day to open and read all the mail. This is wasteful and inefficient and requires overtime to fill all the orders.

"I therefore suggest that we make all children write to Santa Claus on computer cards, checking off the toys they want. We would put a warning on the cards that any child who bends, folds or mutilates a card would be automatically cut off Santa's list."

Dickens okayed the idea, and although Santa Claus protested vigorously that it would take the personal touch out of Christmas, the chairman assured him that Consolidated would run a large advertising campaign explaining that the computer card would actually make writing to Santa more fun.

A computer complex was installed at the North Pole and several gnomes were hired to feed it.

Handling Charge

Unfortunately, a few months later, while Santa Claus and his elves were hard at work, the Consolidated stock started slipping. From $14 a share, it went down to $10. Dickens ordered economies. First he depleted the work force in Santa's toy shop by 50 per cent. Then, instead of a list of 100 toys for children to choose from, he cut it down to three.

He announced "regretfully" that because of the state of the economy, there would have to be a handling charge on every parcel delivered more than 30 miles from the North Pole.

Once again, Santa protested, but to no avail. The Consolidated stock was now selling at $2 a share, and Dickens telexed Mr. Claus, "Get rid of the reindeer."

This was too much for Santa Claus, and he took his life savings, $2,500, and offered to buy back his own company. By then Consolidated had filed for bankruptcy, and the creditors were happy to take anything they could get.

"We were millionaires on paper," Santa said to his wife as he put the last touches on a doll house. "But I stopped believing in myself."

"I was wrong, Santa," Mrs. Claus said tearfully. "Better you should work for yourself and die with your boots on."

The first thing Santa Claus did before making his deliveries this Christmas was to load the computer on his sleigh and drop it on Harley Dickens' home.

Nixon Adviser Says He's Broke

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's longtime political adviser, Murray Chotiner, has told a divorce hearing he is deeply in debt.

Before he was married five years ago, Chotiner told Superior Court Wednesday, he had $48,000 in several bank accounts. After the marriage, he said, "I had to borrow money to pay household expenses."

Amalia Chotiner seeks $750 monthly support from her husband, a Washington, D.C., and Newport Beach, Calif., attorney. Chotiner testified his estranged wife has adequate resources to support herself.

He said he earned $74,000 last year and that his income this year will be $42,000. He submitted to the court a list of debts, including a $20,000 loan he obtained to pay his income tax last April.

Starr, Nitschke Say They'll Play Again in 1971; Willie Wood Undecided

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — One Packer great, the most durable athlete in National Football League history, will be calling it a career in Detroit's Tiger Stadium Sunday afternoon.

Another, deeply disappointed

over the team's 6-7 record and failure to qualify for the playoffs, is thinking of following suit.

But two others, likewise holdovers from the triple title years of 1965-66-67, are hoping to use the season finale as a successful springboard to 1971.

Certain to retire — he insists this time it is definite — is Forrest Gregg, the most honored offensive tackle in NFL history.

"It will be my last game," Gregg, who three times in the past has announced his retirement only to be lured back, said Thursday. "I definitely will not play again . . . this is it."

Willie Wood, the Pack's defensive captain, is undecided but admits, "The chances of my coming back next year are somewhat slim . It's going to take some consideration of the situation."

Quarterback Bart Starr and middle linebacker Ray Nitschke, meanwhile say without reservation that they will return in '71.

Gregg, who Sunday will stretch his NFL consecutive game record to 187, said, "I hate to have this one be my last game because we have had a bad season. But I don't have any regrets otherwise, because I wasn't planning to play this season, anyway."

The 37-year-old Texan, eight times an all-pro and the NFL's "Blocker of the Year" in 1965, was persuaded to return at the start of the regular season when a knee injury felled Dick Rimes.

"I just feel fortunate to have been able to make the whole year," Gregg said.

A member of the coaching staff the last two seasons, the 14-year-veteran admits this final campaign has not been entirely devoid of rewards.

"It feels good having broken that durability record," he admitted "There is some satisfaction from that."

Gregg chuckled and added, "I thought it was all over a couple of years ago."

Wood, closing out his 11th season in Green Bay threads, indicated he will do some off season soul-searching before arriving at a decision.

"I'll have to discuss the future with my family, for one thing," he said. "I'll have to talk it over with my wife and see what she thinks.

'Money a Factor'

"Money, of course, is a factor. I hate to give up the kind of salary I'm making, although you have to do it some time.

"Physically, I feel great but my spirit is real low. That's partly due to the fact our record was so poor this year . . . I really had prepared myself for this season — I really thought we had something going.

"I checked things on paper in June when we came up here for our fitness tests and things really looked good. I thought we were going to be winners and worked hard to prepare myself so I would be able to give it my best, so it's been quite disappointing."

Starr, who this season became the first 15-year man in Packer history, indicated he already has a "game plan" for 1971.

"I want to make an effort to get my arm cleared up, like I did with my shoulder last year," said Bart, who has had tendonitis in his salary arm most of the season. "I definitely plan to play.

"Seven-eighths of me feels

great. If my arm were all right, I'd feel great all over," he explained.

Deep Affection

Starr, who has a deep affection for his violent profession, added, "I haven't found anything that even comes close to exciting me as much as football."

Nitschke is equally positive about next season. "I'm going to play," he said. "I was hurting a little earlier in the year but I feel good now . . . I haven't given any thought to retiring."

The 13-year veteran, a 3-time all-pro, appended with spirit, "We'll be after 'em Sunday."

Flashing a crooked grin, Nitschke turned to 1-year pro Carroll Dale and jested, "How about you Carroll, are you going to retire?"

Responding in kind with a faint smile, Dale said, "I'll be back . . . if they'll have me."

PACKER PATTER — Relatively balmy temperatures permitted the Packers to return to their South Oneida Street practice field for Thursday's session. . .They had practiced in Lambeau Field Wednesday.

The title-contending Lions, meanwhile, concluded the California portion of their work week at Long Beach. . .The Lions remained in the land of sunshine, following their 28-23 victory over the Rams Monday night, to avoid further wear and tear on Tiger Stadium turf. . . The surface presently is covered to protect it for Sunday's match.

The Lions were scheduled to work out indoors on the dirt floor of Detroit's State Fair Coliseum today.

questionable because of a knee injury, sophomore Bill Hayhoe is likely to get the starting call at right tackle, offensive line coach Ray Weitecha indicated Thursday.

"That is, Hayhoe will start if he's okay," Weitecha said. The 6-foot-8, 270-pound USC alumnus has been troubled with a pulled muscle. If he is unable to play, the duty will fall to Gregg.

Badger Track Marks Fall in Indoor Meet

Intrasquad Test Sees Matzdorf Snap High Jump Record

MADISON (AP) — Members of Wisconsin's track squad chalked up improvements on their records Thursday during an intrasquad indoor meet.

Junior Pat Matzdorf of Sheboygan, the conference's defending high jump champion, cleared the bar at 7 feet, 1¼ inches, the best by a Big Ten undergraduate.

The undergraduate records listings are separate from those set in the annual Big Ten meet. Matzdorf set a national collegiate mark last season of 7 feet, 1¾ inches.

His school record is 7 feet, ¼ inch.

Team captain Mark Winzenried covered the half mile in 1 40.3, only five-10ths of a second off his Big Ten record.

Kenya's Pat Onyango broke UW's school record with 51 feet, ½ inch in the triple jump, the best for a Big Ten undergrad.

UW's school mark was 49 feet, 8 inches by Mike Bond last February.

Senior Mark Kartman of Cassville, the Big Ten outdoor quarter-mile champion, covered the indoor quarter mile in 49 seconds.

Freshman Chuck Curtis was clocked at 1:11.8 in the 600-yard run.

Don Vandry went the mile in 4:07.2. Sophomore Glenn Herold won a two-mile test in 8:58.3 with Vandry second at 8:59.5.

A freshman from Greenwood, Ind., Gordon Crail, set a school frosh mark in the pole vault with 15 feet, 6 inches.

Greg Johnson was a triple winner, taking the long jump in 24 feet, 10 inches and the 70-yard low and high hurdles in :8.1 and :8.6.

Bobcats Duel Iron Rangers On Home Ice

GREEN BAY — The final game of the Brebner Cup series will be played at the Brown County Arena at 8 p.m. today.

The Green Bay Bobcats took the first match, 5-4, over the Marquette Iron Rangers. The Cup is awarded to the team that scores the most goals in the 2-game set. Marquette won the cup the first two years it was awarded. Green Bay won the second two.

Expenses Up; Gate Receipts Down

Foxes Suffer Slight Financial Loss

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

The Appleton Foxes achieved — emphatically — their "higher attendance" objective for 1970. The goal next season will be higher income.

Despite attracting an all-time club record 83,818 fans in '70, the Foxes were sprinkled with some drops of red ink The operational deficit for the year is $50 42, it was reported during Thursday night's annual stockholders meeting

An interest payment of $2,139 44 brings the net loss for the 12-month period to $2,189 86

These figures compare with a 1969 operational profit of $2,695.65 and a club record net profit of $5,760.43.

This year's income dropoff was primarily due to a rise in the cost of living and a drop in gate receipts. Despite the fact that the attendance increased 25 per cent — to 83,818 — last summer, actual gate receipts fell more than $6,500 to $11,679 55. The answer lay in extra promotional nights which enabled fans either to get into the games free or at a reduced price. Nine such nights, 41-752 fans

Club President Bob Rahn said, "I was disappointed to see a loss in view of the large attendance We should have had a profit Rahn, who later was reelected during the directors' meeting, principally blamed the cost of living increases. He added, "We'll have to shoot for higher income in 1971"

Rahn and Business Manager Ed Holtz went on to explain that the financial results were somewhat better than the figures might indicate at first glance. The club paid off $2,000 on its construction loan, and a total of $1,650 was paid to the architect, the plumbers and others for work done in the recent clubhouse project.

Rahn underscored the high cost of operating a minor league franchise with these figures: In 1970, the total expense for operating the Foxes was $161,043.26 — and the manager's salary isn't even included. Of the amount, the Appleton Baseball Club paid $76,328.59, while the parent Chicago White Sox paid $84,765.09.

Such items as meals and lodging for players on road trips ($10,741) bus transportation ($4,173 51) and insurance ($2,624) all were up over the previous season.

The biggest "plus" in the $76,278 17 receipts column was concessions. The total revenue from this source was $33,206.80. Advertising ($14,105) was the next biggest income source.

Schouten Resigns

Jim Choudoir was elected vice president, to succeed Joe Schouten, who resigned. Bob Cisna was elected recording secretary to succeed Choudoir. S. M. Timmers and Gerald Bayer were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Rahn also appointed Cisna to fill the unexpired term, on the boards of directors, of Dr. Keller, who died earlier this year.

Seven directors were re-elected to 3-year terms. They are George Banta III, Choudoir, Gorge Kloes, A G. Patterson, A. W. Parnell, Willard Storch and Timmer.

Among 10 associate directors named by Rahn were two newcomers, Thomas H. Schmidt and Milt Drier.

The meeting was held in the community room of the Outagamie Bank building

Gary Collins May Miss Denver Tilt

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The status of Cleveland Browns' flanker Gary Collins for Sunday's game at Denver was in doubt Thursday as the veteran underwent a medical checkup for what was believed to be pleurisy.

Collins, who has been bothered by rib problems most of the season, wasn't ruled out of the game by trainer Leo Murphy. Collins was the only player missing Thursday's practice session.

Last Non-Loop Duel

FVL Meets Xavier

Fox Valley Lutheran and Xavier will renew Appleton's oldest intracity basketball rivalry when they clash Saturday night in the Foxes' gym.

It will be the last time the two parochial schools meet on a non-conference basis. In the future, any non-tournament meeting will constitute a league game, since FVL joins the Fox Valley Catholic Conference, of which Xavier is already a member, for the 1971-2 season.

The Foxes, who have never beaten Xavier since it became a 4-year school, will take a 3-4 record into Saturday's tilt.

Xavier (now 2-4) has an important date tonight — at Little Chute St. John — before it can turn its full attention on the FVL contest.

Last season, the Hawks stopped FVL, 71-54, in a non-leaguer and beat the Foxes, 81-63, in a WISAA tournament tussle.

The Foxes found Joe DeNoble was the most troublesome Hawk last season, as he scored 42 points in the two games. Mark Collar added 25. Tim O'Dell, another Xavier returnee, contributed 15 points in the tourney game after having played little in the teams' opening clash.

Dave Romberg led the Foxes, with 24 points in the two starts against Xavier. Jeff Grow and Bill Lecker each totaled 20 Dennis Kasten, the current FVL scoring leader, coined seven points in the second contest after having seen little service in the opener.

Kasten is currently scoring at a 14.7-point-per-game clip for the Gerhard Kaniess-coached Foxes. Troge is team runnerup, with a 10-point average.

For Jerry Schmidt-coached Xavier, O'Dell is scoring at an all-games pace of 23.3. DeNoble and Collar are next with 17 and 10.1, respectively.

FVL has a better defensive rate to date — 56.1, compared to Xavier's 60.8. But the Hawks have scored at a faster clip — 65.1, to the Foxes' 52.7.

points, while Eric Troge had 15.

The selection, announced by Commissioner Walter Kennedy, completes the 10-man team of stars from the NBA's first 24 years who have completed playing careers.

Previously named in balloting by players who achieved All-Star recognition since the NBA was founded in 1946, were forwards Bob Pettit, Dolph Schayes, Paul Arizin and Joe Fulks and centers Bill Russell and George Mikan.

Pro Gridder of Year

Blanda Gets 'Maxie'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — George Blanda, ignored by 25 other National Football League clubs when he was put on waiver last January by the Oakland Raiders, has been named by the Maxwell Club as the outstanding pro football player of 1970.

The club chose the 43-year-old veteran quarterback here Thursday, also tapping another signal caller from the college ranks.

While Blanda's selection may have been unexpected by some, the selection of Stanford's Jim Plunkett as the No. 1 college player came as no surprise.

Plunkett has previously received New York's Heisman Award and has been picked at quarterback on most All-America teams.

Francis (Reds) Bagnell, Maxwell awards committee chairman, said Blanda had been selected by "more thn two-thirds of the 1,000-odd ballots, which came from every state except Alaska and Hawaii."

Not So Great

Plunkett's margin was not so great, Bagnell said.

Blanda and Plunkett will receive "Maxies" at the club's annual dinner here Jan. 18. "Maxies" are statuettes of the late Robert (Tiny) Maxwell, for whom the club is named.

Both as a substitute for quarterback Daryle Lamonica and as a place kicker, Blanda played a major role in the Raiders' drive to the Western Division title in the American Conference of the NFL.

The snowy monster has finally met his match.

Elinor Picks Lions And Giants to Win

of regulars. Jets might upset.

New Orleans Saints 24 — Chicago Bears 16

A Saints victory and they lose a shot at Jim Plunkett.

Minnesota Vikings 20 — Atlanta Falcons 14

Vikings will be tuning up. Cuozzo will play. Maybe that's good for Atlanta.

Philadelphia Eagles 27 — Pittsburgh Steelers 20

Denver Broncos 17 — Cleveland Browns 10

Browns are out of it if Bengals beat Boston in earlier game. Visitors have tough time in Denver in winter.

Kansas City Chiefs 31 — San Diego Chargers 20

Buffalo Bills 27 — Miami Dolphins 24

A stab in the dark and a very tall order for Buffalo QB Dennis Shaw who is in the running for Rookie of the Year. Perhaps playing on a good field will help the Bills. Or maybe they are an off-track team. Time will tell.

Cincinnati Bengals 24 — Boston Patriots 17

Too many times teams trying to clinch play too conservatively. Throw in rain or snow and the Bengals might not have the easiest romp in the world.

New York Giants 20 — Los Angeles Rams 16

For the Giants: a better QB and the fact that the Rams don't like to play in cold weather. For the Rams: desperation, frustration, and the fact that the Giants had big trouble with Buffalo's big line, which almost trampled the Giants to death. Rams' line is bigger. Would you believe that the Giants have only beaten TWO teams with a winning record this year?

St. Louis Cardinals 42 — Washington Redskins 35

Detroit Lions 20 — Green Bay Packers 13

Dallas Cowboys 27 — Houston Oilers 17

Cowboys will be watching scoreboard for Giants-Rams score. They will have to remember to keep their eyes on the ball too.

San Francisco 49ers 20 — Oakland Raiders 13

What will Al Davis do? On the road to the Super Bowl, Big Al would like to rest Lamonica, Keating, etc. etc. But he hates the 49ers, so much that he won't allow this game to be televised: "I have an obligation to my 50,000 ticketholders whom I don't want to sell out."

Cyclones in Key Clash at Fond du Lac

Fox Valley Campus plays at WSU-Fond du Lac at 8 p m Saturday in a battle for the lead in the North Division of the Wisconsin Collegiate Conference. Game time is 8 p m

The Cyclones, 4-4 overall after a split of their two games last weekend, go into the tilt against Fondy with a 2-0 record in league competition. The host Centaurs own a 4-0 mark.

Fond du Lac has been hot of late, winning its last seven contests in a row after two opening defeats. Leading the way for coach Richard Knar's cagers is sophomore Kim Evans (6-2), who was the leading scorer in the conference last year and an all-league choice.

Along with Evans the Centaurs will start 6-2 Chuck Boegel, 6-6 Scott Wittchow, 6-1 Don Baertschy, and 6-1 Dave Wietor. Boegel tallied 32 points and Evans 27 Wednesday as Fondy swamped UW-Marshfield, 101-71

Pacing the Cyclones will be guards Steve Krueger and Ron Haack, who are hitting at 26.8 and 13.1 clips, respectively. Terry Noeller is the only other Cyclone in double figures at 10.8.

After Saturday's contest, Fox Valley will break for the holidays and won't resume action until Wednesday, Jan 6, date at home (the Maplewood gym) against the Lakeland Jayvees.

St. John Frosh Top Xavier, 48-41

Little Chute St John's freshman basketball team extended its record to 6-2 recently with a 48-41 triumph over Appleton Xavier. The winners held a 24-15 edge at the half

The Chuters got 15 points from Scott Schommer, 12 from Stu Driessen and 10 from Tom VandenHogan. Driessen and Joe Lucassen each had 16 rebounds, and the latter added seven points.

Tom Floodstrand collected 18 points and Rich Kewley 15 for Xavier.

'Pud' Ebben Tops Senior Pin Loop With 582 Total

KIMBERLY — "Pud" Ebben slammed a 582 series, including handicap, to sweep honors for the women in the Kimberly-Little Chute Senior Citizens Bowling League at Jerry's Lanes

"Pud" had games of 219, 196, and 167 for the high total. Jackie Hopfensperger hit a 217 game and 556 series and Laura DeWildt had 528.

For the men, Leo Caron was high with a 560 series while Joe Kortenhof had a booming 232 game. Bernie Schlude hit 193-199-555, Erv Robinson had 192-192-555 and Steve Diedtrich hit a 227 game and 553 series.

Wisconsin OUTDOORS

MADISON — There's a good supply of snow over most of Wisconsin outdoors this week, ranging from about 20 inches in the Iron County area to an inch or less in Door County.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR advises that summaries of snowmobile regulations and a listing of open areas will be distributed soon to field offices. Information on snowmobile regulations, rentals and accommodations will soon be available on request from DNR in Madison (Box 450, Madison 53701).

Here are the reports from around the state:

NORTH CENTRAL DISTRICT

Snow cover ranges from five to ten inches and snowmobile trails are getting heavier weekend traffic. Everything is set for Crandon's Snowmobile Derby this weekend. Nearly all ski areas are open and reporting good conditions. Ice fishermen are having good success with panfish on Willow flowage and Minocqua and Big Arbor Vitae lakes. Metong and Pelican lakes are producing catches of walleye. There is little bowhunting pressure. Snowshoe rabbits are plentiful.

NORTHWEST DISTRICT

Snowmobiling is good around Hayfield where snow cover is 10-12 inches. Spooner and Hayward report very little snow on the ground. Walleye fishing is generally good. Panfish are providing the action on Bashaw Lake in Washburn County and Clam Lake in Burnett.

LAKE MICHIGAN DISTRICT

Door County has up to five inches of snow on the ground with some bare spots. There's good snowmobiling in Newport State Park. One snowmobiler struck and killed a deer on Washington island. Winnebago County reports that snowmobiling activity is increasing. Ice conditions are unsafe for snowmobiling or fishing.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT

SOUTHEAST DISTRICT

Early ice fishing was good for northern pike and bluegills. The ice cover is generally dangerous, but fishermen are finding it thick enough to venture out on near Delafield where Upper Phantom Lake is producing good northern pike. Many lakes are still wide open. Fishing is at a standstill on Lake Michigan. Snow depth ranges up to about a foot.

WEST CENTRAL DISTRICT

Snowmobiling is in full swing. Ice fishing is producing well on perch, bluegills, crappie and northern pike, depending on location. Snow conditions are excellent for hunting as the bow season winds down. Ruffed grouse hunting is producing excellent results.

Falcons Post 44th Win

Rockets, Jays Share Lead

Neenah and Menasha hiked their Fox Valley Association records to 2-0-1 by posting victories in area wrestling action Thursday.

The Rockets dumped Kaukauna, 25-19, and Menasha whipped Appleton West, 36-15. Kimberly flattened Oshkosh, 34-14, in the other FVA test.

In the East Central Conference, New London posted a convincing win over Ripon 32-16, and Berlin crushed Omro, 32-13, as the winners remain deadlocked for the lead with 30 records. Hortonville trampled Waupaca 45-5 and Weyauwega downed Winneconne, 35-8, in the other bouts.

Opening Central Wisconsin Conference matches had these results: Marion whipping Wautoma, 32-18; Bonduel edging Wittenberg, 26-24, and hapless Little Chute being beaten by Manawa, 36-14.

Falcon Win 44th

Amherst continued its dual meet streak by romping over Wild Rose, 46-7, in Central States action. The victory is the 44th straight for the Falcons.

Little Chute coach Marty Marasch not only dropped his fourth straight bout, but lost his eighth varsity wrestler as injuries continue to plague the Mustangs.

Menasha's Tom Borchart (185) had his pin streak ended at seven, but posted his eighth straight win. Terry Zielinski (145) and Greg Jenks (167) also are 8-0. Jenks turned in a quick 26-second pin Thursday.

Gary Zeinert increased his record to 7-0-1 by pinning his foe in 2:15 for Neenah. The Ghosts' Norm Van Wychen is 5-1 after posting a win at 119.

6th Straight Pin

Amherst's Dave Hansen posted his sixth straight first period pin of the year by flattening Tom Czeskleba in :42 of his 112 match. Bob Ward (155), Pete Trzebiatowski (167) and Gene Glodowski (185) all are 6-0 after last night's action.

Hortonville's mighty-mites of Gary Stiles (98), Gene Huettl (105), Gary Selle (112), Randy Strey (119), Jim Schroeder (126), and Conrad Becher (132) increased their aggregate record to 43-5 as the Polar Bears won the first 11 bouts against Waupaca.

Kimberly's Steve Bauman is 6-0 after posting his fourth straight pin at 98 pounds. New London's Mike Hobbs (119), Don Konrad (145) and Pat Curler (167) posted their sixth straight wins and heavyweight Len Luedkte his fifth straight victory against out manned Ripon. MORE 5½ pt.

Area Ski Reports

BY CHUCK TORINUS

Four more ski areas have joined the ranks of available open slopes for skiing this weekend, providing the Fox Cities skier a little more variety.

Rib Mountain in Wausau hopes to be open for skiing Saturday with limited slope available providing the weatherman cooperates today and tonight. Porcupine Mountain in Ontonagon hopes to be open Sunday. And Brule Mountain in Iron River and Cliff's Ridge in Marquette are officially open to the public. Brule has good-to-excellent conditions, while skiing at Cliff's Ridge is reported fair.

As is usually the case throughout the season, excellent skiing conditions now prevail in the Bessemer-Wakefield, Mich. area. Indianhead Mountain reports 3 new inches over an 11-inch base and Big Powderhorn reports 2 new inches over a 12-inch base. Another Michigan area, Pine Mountain in Iron Mountain reports good-to-excellent conditions.

The only other Wisconsin area, Mt. Telemark, usually offers good skiing early. This week, the report is good-to-excellent skiing, with a trace of new snow over a 10-inch base.

Two Techs Collide

Weekend Bowl Menu Serves Up Sun, Pasadena Events to Fans

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Tech and Georgia Tech football teams arrived here Thursday for the 36th annual Sun Bowl.

The game—which could be among the best of the post-season classics—is rated even and both teams bring 8-3 records into the contest.

The statistics show that Georgia Tech has an edge offensively, while Texas Teen is slightly stingier defensively.

Georgia Tech's 5 - 7. 165-pound tailback Brent Cunningham, gained 740 yards during the regular season for the Yellow Jackets.

Texas Tech's halfback Doug McCutchen, a 5-11, 202-pound bulldozer, trampled over opponents for 1,086 yards this year and was named the Southwest Conference Sophomore of the Year.

Then there's 6-5, 250-pound offensive guard Jerry Ryan who faces the unenviable task of trying to push around Georgia Tech's All-American defensive tackle Rock Perdoni.

The game will be televised nationally by CBS.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The gambling, aerial - minded Cardinals of Louisville and the power-running 49ers of Long Beach State collide Saturday in the Pasadena Bowl.

Long Beach State, representing the Pacific Coast Athletic Association with a 9-2 record, generally hand off to Little All-American Leon Burns, 9.4 sprinter Jim Kirby or fireplug fullback Hans Albrecht.

The Missouri Valley Conference champion Cardinals 8-3, put their faith in sophomore quarterback John Madeya, who has broken some of Johnny Unitas' passing records at Louisville.

Chilton-Kewaunee Game Was Dream Grid Contest

The dream match-up on the football field could likely be a mismatch on the basketball court as Chilton travels to Kewaunee Friday in a Packerland Conference contest.

Chilton and Kewaunee each were unbeaten in their division of the league in football, but didn't meet head-to-head. One division is used in the cage standings and scheduling.

Friday's affair will be a head-to-head contest, with the head advantage going to the taller Indians. Leading the home team is 6-8 Dale Koehler and 6-4 Jack Novak.

Last week Algoma tried a slow-down offense against Kewaunee, but still got wiped out 64-28.

Unbeaten Eau Claire Defeats Stout, 90-71

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unbeaten Eau Claire State extended its winning streak Thursday night while Wisconsin-Parkside opened holiday tourney play for Wisconsin colleges with a victory in East Coast basketball competition.

Parkside edged New York Tech 85-84 to reach tonight's semifinals of the Quantico Marines Christmas tournament. Parkside will face Alderson-Broaddus, which downed Ft. Belvoir 79-66.

Frank Schade and Mike Ratliff scored 19 points each for Eau Claire. Ratliff scored his entire package in the second half as the Blugolds soared away from a 44-38 intermission lead.

Long Beach State (5-1), which faces nationally fourth - ranked Marquette in Milwaukee Saturday night, hit 47 per cent of its field shots Thursday in its conquest of UWM.

Boston's Prize Draft Selection

Cowens Rebounding Keys Celtics Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The glamour picks in the National Basketball Association draft last spring were Pete Maravich by Atlanta and Bob Lanier by Detroit and although both have made considerable progress, the Boston Celtics figure they came up with the No. 1 rookie in big Dave Cowens.

Cowens has played a vital role in Boston's revival this season and teamed with Jo Jo White and John Havlicek to lead Boston to 102-93 victory over Buffalo Thursday night.

In other NBA games, Phoenix topped Detroit 117-114 in overtime and Philadelphia turned back Seattle 125-117.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky defeated the Floridians 126-123 and Denver took Memphis 108-99.

Cowens has taken over under the boards for the Celts and his rebounding was a major factor in the Celts' 11th victory in the last 12 games.

The big rookie picked up four fouls in the first half and then sat out most of the third and fourth periods before coming off the bench to dominate the rebounding at both ends in the final minutes.

Havlicek had 26 points, 11 in the final quarter, and White contributed 35 points. Bob Kauffman led Buffalo with 25 points.

Phoenix blew a 31-point lead against the Pistons but came back to whip Detroit in the extra period.

John Wenzel stole the ball in the final moments and converted two free throws to put the game away for the Suns, who got five points from Connie Hawkins and four from Neal Walk in the overtime. Jimmy Walker of Detroit led all scorers with 38 points while Hawkins had 29.

12 Straight

Philadelphia scored 12 straight points at the outset of the second half, opening a 22-point lead over Seattle, and coasted the rest of the way. Archie Clark collected 12 of his 28 points in the third period and Hal Greer hit for 10 of his 23 in that quarter as the 76ers built a 102-69 lead.

Lee Winfield topped the SuperSonics with 25 points.

Kentucky, four points behind with only 1:31 to play, rallied to beat the Floridians. The Colonels scored seven straight points in the final 91 seconds to pull out the victory.

Jim Ligon, who led Kentucky with 28 points, and Les Hunter each dropped in a pair of free throws in the winning rally. Larry Jones and Mack Calvin topped the Floridians' attack with 29 points each.

The Memphis Pros were delayed several hours by a snowstorm in Salt Lake City and were better off in the white stuff because when they finally got to Denver, they were whipped by the Rockets.

The Pros, as cold in the opening quarter as the storm they were stuck in, shot just 25 per cent and dropped 12 points down by the half. They stormed back and cut Denver's lead to as little as three points but the Rockets hung on for the victory.

Larry Cannon led Denver with 25 points while Steve Jones' 20 was best for the weary Pros.

Bears Offer Reward in Starr Case

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears are offering $100 reward for identification of the culprit who intercepted Bart Starr's equipment Sunday.

The theft didn't occur on the playing field at Wrigley Field, where the Bears defeated the Green Bay Packers 35-17, but after the game in the dressing room where a well-dressed man made off with Starr's uniform and specially constructed protective gear.

"The uniform is no problem," said a team spokesman, "But the rib protector is. It took a long time to make originally, and had to be adjusted several times before it fit properly."

Man May be Charged in Fatal Crash

Two Cars Involved In Accident That Took Youth's Life

A coroner's inquest has brought the recommendation that a 45-year-old rural DePere man be charged with failure to yield the right of way in connection with a fatal traffic accident Dec. 6.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps made the recommendation this morning for James Garvey, route 2, West De Pere, after studying testimony recorded during the inquest Wednesday.

The inquest revealed that two cars, one believed to have been driven by Garvey, were involved in the accident early Dec. 6 that killed Roy E. Skenandore, 19, of 2896 Commissioner St., Oneida. Skenandore died about five hours after the accident. It occurred in front of the Garvey home on County Trunk E, 3½ miles east of Freedom, about 1 a.m.

Assistant Dist. Atty. R. Thomas Cane said this morning that the county will probably prepare the citation and issue it to Garvey. At this point, however, Cane said testimony at the inquest didn't conclusively show the Garvey car to be the one that collided with one driven by Michael J. Thomas, 20, Oneida, in which Skenandore was a passenger.

Cane said a definite finding awaits tests to be conducted at the State Crime Laboratory in Madison on paint scrapings taken from both cars and pictures of skid marks at the scene.

Debris from the Garvey car was discovered between two driveways on their property and across E when the accident was investigated. The Thomas auto came to rest on its top just north of the second driveway, with Skenandore lying unconscious alongside. Both cars were damaged on the left side.

Testimony revealed that the Garveys turned south onto E from one of their driveways and that Mrs. Garvey heard a "thud" moments later. A statement read by Kemps, taken from Thomas three days later in the hospital, indicated he saw car lights ahead as he traveled in the opposite direction on E, and swerved to avoid them. Garvey had told police he thought he was sideswiped after the couple left the driveway.

Lame-Duck Governors Bitter About Nixon

Kirk of Florida Offers to Bet $100
President Won't Head '72 GOP Ticket

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

SUN VALLEY, Idaho — Beneath the surface criticism of President Nixon at the Republican governors' conference here was the deeper, more ominous anxiety that Mr. Nixon's formidable reputation as a practical politician may prove to be one of the great myths of contemporary politics.

At the end of the governors' festive evening on Sunday, defeated Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida pulled a wad of bills from his hip pocket, peeled off $100, and offered an open bet that the Republican ticket in 1972 would not be headed by Richard M. Nixon.

For lame-duck Kirk, whose irrepressible antics provided the only light touch in the three-day winter meeting of the Republican chief executives, the $100 bet contained an element of hyperbole. But the gesture was symbolic of the darkening mood that gripped the large majority of Republican Governors after two years of the Nixon Presidency.

In fact, the strength of this mood of anxiety was the chief factor behind the governors' decision hot to hurl any public thunderbolts at Mr. Nixon's handling of the presidency, from the creeping economic crisis to the botched November election campaign. As one midwestern governor who survived November told us: "That would only make matters worse. We're all on the same life-raft."

Privately, however, the list of grievances against the Nixon White House tells a story of blatant political ineptitude, much of it concealing a callous disregard of the Republican governors. Matters of perhaps small signficance in themselves, these grievances inevitably establish Mr. Nixon's declining credibility as a shrewd party leader.

Last August, for example, when lame-duck Gov. Don Samuelson of Idaho faced a state problem of crisis proportions, he telephoned the White House asking for no more than 10 minutes on the telephone with Mr. Nixon, at the President's convenience. Impossible that day, he was informed. He tried again, several days later, with the same result. Samuelson, who has never had a private talk with Mr. Nixon since he entered the White House (but used to dine at the White House with Lyndon Johnson), finally got his 10 minutes on the phone — but with his old friend Vice President Spiro Agnew, not Mr. Nixon.

Likewise, when retiring Gov. David Cargo of New Mexico was pointedly asked by the President last fall what job he might like in the administration. Irish-Catholic Cargo said he could think of only one: ambassador to Ireland. Fine, said Mr. Nixon, send me a note to remind me.

Several weeks after sending the note Cargo got an answer from White House political aide Murray Chotiner saying that his letter had been referred "to the proper people" and that if Cargo got a favorable response Chotiner would like to hear about it.

If Mr. Nixon were succeeding in his larger goal of making the Republicans the majority party, this limitless list of grievances could be dismissed as petty griping Instead, many of the most thoughtful governors here perceive the President's inability or refusal to understand and deal with their own problems as symptomatic of his failure to reach that larger goal.

Thus, instead of growth they fear a shrinking party which, on the national level, is driving away blacks and youth with little compensating gains in the middle class — largely because of the lethal combination of unemployment and inflation.

Evidence of how deep this anxiety really runs is found in Kentucky Gov. Louie Nunn's private decision to give up his earlier plan to run for the senate in 1972, after his present term ends. Instead, he now plans to accept a federal judgeship. The obvious reason: 1972 begins to look like a disaster year for Mr. Nixon's party.

The President thus confronts a crisis of confidence with his own Republican governors, now reduced from 32 to 21, which would surely have exploded into nasty headlines were it not for their fears that washing the party laundry in public, far from cleaning up the crisis, would simply make it dirtier.

Ex-Irish Agitator Claims Shots Fired

SHOREHAM-BY-SEA, England (AP) — Brian Behan, brother of the late Irish playwright Brendan Behan, says somebody has been shooting at his houseboat.

Behan told police Wednesday he was asleep in a chair when awakened by a crashing sound he thought was children throwing stones. He said he then found a bullet in the houseboat kitchen.

Police said four or five shots apparently were fired.

Behan, 43, a former leftist political agitator, is now a student at Essex University. He lives on the boat with his wife and three daughters.

Coast Guard Ship Escorts Freighter

GREEN BAY (AP)—The Coast Guard escorted a cargo of cement Tuesday in an effort to keep Green Bay open to navigation before winter ice seals the Great Lakes bay.

The steamer E. M. Ford, headed for the port of Green Bay, anchored Monday about 15 miles up the bay. The bouy tender Mequite of Sturgeon Bay smashed through the ice three inches thick Tuesday to clear a path for the Ford, which was carrying a load of cement.

Huron Cement, whose fleet includes the Ford, said it has one more freighter to get into the port before ice closes the bay.

Nearly 2 Million People Figure In Settlement

Montgomery Ward Insurance Premiums Will be Returned

CHICAGO (AP)—A settlement has been approved in Circuit Court whereby Montgomery Ward & Co. charge account customers who unknowingly paid life insurance premiums are eligible for reimbursements.

An attorney for the mail order company said after the settlement was approved Wednesday by Judge Nathan M. Cohen that the number of eligible persons who used the Charg-All plan was probably about 1.8 million.

All customers and former customers who can produce monthly statements will receive refunds of the insurance premiums, said attorney Edwin Roth. He also said others who had been enrolled as Charg-All customers would be eligible for a $3.50 certificate.

The legality of the insurance program was challenged in a suit filed Jan. 16, 1968, by Chicago attorney Robert Holstein on behalf of all Wards Charg-All account holders.

On Jan. 23, 1970, the Circuit Court ruled that the account holders were not legally enrolled in the program because they failed to state explicitly that they wanted the insurance. The court also ruled that the customers were entiled to refunds or credit for premiums paid.

Roth said there is no way of knowing how many of those eligible actually will make claims on the company. He said Wards would seek to contact customers through mail and newspaper advertisements.

Only those who were Charg-All customers before March 1, 1968, are entitled to refunds under terms of the settlement.

Suggestions on How You Can Cut Fuel Costs

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The dreaded fuel crisis of winter '71 has apparently been averted for now. Among the headlined reasons given credit for this are:

President Nixon has ordered relaxation of curbs on oil imports and production; the Office of Emergency Preparedness has called on the oil, coal and other energy industries to increase their supplies of fuel; the Interstate Commerce Commission has hiked the charge on idle coal hopper cars, thereby speeding up their use and easing the railroad car shortage; several special moves have been made to increase transportation of oil and natural gas from Canada; a joint board at the cabinet level has been established to identify emergency fuel problems and coordinate promp remedial legislation by responsible federal agencies. Etc., etc.

And, of course, these steps have been crucial in lessening the threat of a shortage of fuel in coming months.

But the real reason for the brighter outlook lies not in the publicized moves. Rather, both industry and government experts agree, it can be summarized in three words. Higher fuel prices.

See Better Profits

For to put it as bluntly as possible, it is the prospect for higher prices and fatter profits which now is spurring production of major fuel sources and long-term exploration-development of new energy sources.

Specifically, since early fall, coal prices at wholesale have climbed to a level 50 per cent above a year ago. As a result coal production is way up and many small coal mines have resumed activity.

Since early fall the New York harbor price of residual fuel oil has increased to a level 68 per cent over a year ago. As a result residual oil output has skyrocketed too.

Near the end of October, the Federal Power Commission staff recommended new price ceilings for natural gas a full 25 to 30 per cent above the previous gas ceilings. As a result: exploration and development of new sources for this very clean fuel will sharply expand. John G. McLean, chairman of the National Petroleum Council and president of Continental Oil Co., confidently forecast during a luncheon interview a few days ago. McLean insists that the FPC's unrealistically low pricing of natural gas has dangerously restricted its supply in the past and that, even with higher prices, it will be five to six years before the supply of natural gas can be raised to a proper level.

"What's more," added C. Howard Hardesty Jr., senior vice president of Continental Oil, "you can't mistake the price outlook for energy in all its forms.

"The age of abundant and cheap energy is over. A new era of rising prices on which easily may last five, 10 or more years."

Again to illustrate, McLean sees coal prices climbing 5 to 7 per cent a year. Hardesty sees natural gas prices up as much as 30 to 50 per cent only five years from now. This is merely a sampling.

And both McLean and Hardesty argue that you and I are still getting energy comparatively inexpensively, for since the base year of 1957 the cost of gasoline has risen only 10 per cent, and of home heating oil 15 per cent (not counting taxes). In contrast, the overall consumer price index has jumped 28 per cent; food is up 25 per cent; apparel is up 26 per cent and medical care is up 60 per cent.

Much as you and I may resent it, the background certainly favors their prediction.

Our needs for energy will double within the next 15 years alone. One study estimates that, just by the end of this decade, we will need 43 per cent more coal, 52 per cent more gas, 43 per cent more crude oil, 78 per cent more electric power.

To meet these needs, the petroleum industry alone will have to raise $300 billion of capital and utilities will have to raise another $125 billion for plants and equipment. This means the companies must be sufficiently profitable to attract investors.

At the same time, many other forces will be pushing up prices: climbing wages, increased machinery costs, pollution curbs.

Well, if that's it, what can we do about it? We can actually slash our energy costs by as much as 50 per cent, that's what we can do.

WEEKLY FARM SECTION OF THE POST-CRESCENT

Farm Bill May Increase Fox Valley Corn Output

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent Farm Editor

Corn production may jump during 1971 in the Fox River Valley as farmers take advantage of the 1970 Farm Bill which lacks many restrictions of former feed grain programs.

There will be no payments for diverting land from production— and few restrictions on corn production during 1971.

Individual crop-by-crop controls, traditionally the backbone of feed grain programs have been pared from the new Farm Bill.

After qualifying for payments by withdrawing a set-aside and conserving base acres from production farmers can use their land for whatever crops they desire.

New Program

Under the new approach the set-aside will tentatively be 20 per cent of corn base acreage. The base acreage and conserving base acreage are the average acres of corn planted and the acreage in grasses or legumes during 1959 and 1960.

Both small and large farmers will be invited to increase corn production under the new program, according to Leo Ley, Madison, state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) project specialist.

Many small farmers diverted entire farms from corn production last year. With the demise of diversion payments these farmers may attempt to cash in on stronger corn prices by withholding only their set-aside and conserving base from production.

Programs Eased

Often larger farmers ignored restrictive programs finding more profit in raising corn. They now may be drawn into the new program which requires a set-aside of only 20 per cent of their corn base and a minimum conserving base acreage.

Because diversion payments have been eliminated and restrictions lifted small farmers may receive less money in 1971 while larger farmers participate in the program for the first time, according to Ley.

One result could be a program embracing a greater number of farmers with less spending. "I think it'll be less money from government sources, and from the production of corn hopefully more money from the market," said Ley.

A built-in market for corn exists in the Fox Valley which historically has utilized more corn than it has produced, said

Prices, Credit Top Farm Priorities

Dangers of waning prices and increasing needs of farmers for credit will top priorities for farm organizations during the next decade, according to Ray Penn, Madison, University of Wisconsin agricultural economist.

The new problems were analyzed during a farm policy meeting Tuesday at the Grand Chute Town Hall. The series was sponsored by the University of Wisconsin extension service and Fox Valley Technical Institute.

Under the new farm bill, Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin has more authority than past officials to establish price support levels, said Penn. Because government policy now appears to stress reduced consumer prices, farm organizations must press Hardin to maintain price support levels, said Penn.

"It's going to mean that there is pressure on the farm group." Organizations must be ready to counter consumer demand for dips in price supports, he said.

Increased farming costs will skyrocket needs for credit during the next decade, said Penn. "You'd be hard put to farm if you didn't have access to $250,000," he said.

Farmers will face the need for increased funds in the future, he predicted. "Some people have said that's going to go up to $750,000 by 1980."

By pushing to make credit available to farmers and supplying business consultants farm organizations may ease pressures on farmers.

Penn also said control of commodity supplies, and establishment of prices will expand in importance during the next 10 years.

Trade bills controlling increases in exports also will jump in importance. Although dairy farmers primarily are concerned with halting the flow of dairy imports their competition would be increased vastly if soybean oil exports were reduced dumping supplies on domestic markets. "You have special groups with different kinds of

Laird Has Numerical Goal For Hiring of Minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has decreed that managers in his department must meet numerical goals and timetables to increase hiring of blacks and other minorities.

This new requirement is included in a tougher defense antidiscrimination policy laid down by Laird Thursday.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Roger Kelley, the Pentagon's manpower chief, denied the "numerical goal" represents quotas.

As he described it, "a goal is a flexible thing . . . it is something that has to be subject to change, depending on changing circumstances."

Kelley said it is not the Pentagon's aim to "end up with precisely the employment of minorities, including racial and second minorities, and ethnic strains as they bear to the total population."

Kelley, who formerly was personnel chief for a major industrial firm, said these goals should be accompanied by a timetable "so that we don't drift aimlessly from one year to the next without accomplishing things and without making clear progress."

He refused to make public any specific numerical hiring goals and timetables, saying, "We don't want to get caught up in a numbers game here."

Laird's newest directive is the latest in a long series of memoranda and orders dating back at least 10 years and all designed to promote equal opportunity for blacks and other minority groups in both the armed services and the civilian ranks of the Defense Department.

In one major way, Laird took a step beyond the past regulations aimed at correcting racial inequities around military bases.

Laird has ordered base commanders to act on their own judgment to declare off limits apartment buildings, stores, places of entertainment and other establishments found practicing discrimination.

Previously, a commander had to refer such matters to the office of the secretary of defense in Washington, and sources said only minor off-limit actions resulted.

Another new element in Laird's equal opportunity directive involves the rating of commanders on what Kelley called "good performance or bad performance in the equal opportunity area."

Kelley made it clear that "failure to step up to the responsobilities" expected of a military officer in the race relations field could result in "removal of the individual from his command post."

Legislature Ordered Into Special Session

Appointee Approval Desired

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles' directive for a brief special session of the legislature next week produced complaints Thursday among members of his own party, some of them are talking about converting the event to a review of his vetoes.

Knowles, leaving office after six years as a Republican governor, asked legislators to convene Tuesday to confirm some of his executive agency nominations before Democrats take over Jan. 4.

It was known that the governor had been thinking about a special session for several weeks. His Democratic foes and Republican dissidents were prepared, therefore, with remarks that ranged from "inopportune" to "purely partisan."

Rep. Harold Froehlich, Republican speaker of the Assembly, said legislators may try to work on a number of items although Knowles called the session only to get Senate approval of 39 nominees.

Related Story on Page A-5.

Democrat Patrick J. Lucey, who replaces Knowles as governor Jan. 4, said he doesn't think a 48-hour special session would have much impact on his hopes for austerity in government expense if legislators refrain from doing anything other than consider Knowles' nominations.

State Sen. Fred Risser, the 1969 session's Democratic minority leader, said the special session will "cost thousands of taxpayer dollars" and was scheduled by Knowles for "purely partisan purposes."

Less Expensive

The senator had suggested earlier this month that Knowles' appointments could be handled less expensively during the 1969 legislature's final hour prior to swearing-in ceremonies Jan. 4 when lawmakers will be in Madison anyway.

The governor said he decided against Risser's suggestion because the constitution indicates action would be invalid if adopted on that day by the 1969 legislature.

Rep. Robert Huber, Democratic minority leader in the 1969 session, said the governor was calling a special session on appointments simply to "play Santa Claus for his political buddies."

Froehlich Calls Majority Caucus

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Retiring Speaker Harold Froelich of the Wisconsin Assembly said Thursday that he has summoned the Republican majority members of the expiring legislature into caucus here on Tuesday morning to decide whether they want to expand the calendar of the legislative session ordered for that day under a special call by Gov. Warren P. Knowles.

Froehlich declined comment on the probable conclusion of the caucus of the Republican legislative majority that will be in control of the house until the 1969 legislature expires Jan. 4.

But he recalled its earlier position at a post-election caucus here that Republican assemblymen opposed the idea of a special session call by the governor, and their declaration that if Knowles was determined to summon the legislators to return to Madison, they would insist on the right to act on legislative bills as well as gubernatorial appointments.

The retiring speaker seemed to imply a belief that a change of position of position of his colleagues is unlikely.

One of the major issues that would be taken up in the event the legislators insist on going beyond gubernatorial nominations is a public employe retirement bill that was vetoed by Knowles nearly a year ago. The veto has not yet been acted upon because the legislature has not been in session since that time.

Knowles complained about the cost of the proposed liberalization of retirement benefits, and singled out for criticism the provisions that would benefit elected officials, including judges and legislators. He said such officers are not entitled to pension provisions that are more generous in terms than those permitted for other public employes, and also objected to the cost of the proposal.

Some of the legislators who did not run for re-election this fall, or were defeated, would benefit from the bill immediately, if it should be passed into law.

A veto of the governor can be over-ridden by the legislature by a two-thirds vote in each house.

Resor Report

Army Spying Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says a preliminary investigation has found no truth to charges the U.S. military spied on an Illinois senator, congressman and former governor.

"I can state that neither Sen. Stevenson, Rep. Mikva, nor former Gov. Kerner are or ever have been the subject of military intellignce activities or investigations related to political activities," Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor said in a statement Thursday.

Resor replied to charges raised a day earlier by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who quoted a former Army agent as saying Army intelligence personnel had collected data on Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, former Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal judge, and Rep. Abner Mikva.

The allegations, Resor said, "are without foundation in fact." He pledged the Army's cooperation in Ervin's probe of the former agent's story.

Resor said the agent's statement that several other Illinois citizens—including civil, church, education and political leaders—were spied on will be investigated separately. The investigation is continuing in the case of the three Democratic officials, he said.

Ervin quoted the former agent as saying the military intelligence unit at one time was spying on every person in Illinois who expressed disagreement with U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia or who openly opposed Nixon administration domestic policies.

There has been no indication what use, if any, was made of information allegedly gathered by the agents.

After Ervin issued the report of the former agent's statement, the White House released a statement opposing domestic spying and said, "It will not be done under this administration."

Military Personnel

Asked whether military personnel actually are engaged in spying on citizens, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler pointed to a statement by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird: "It is not going on in any way at this time."

However, The Associated Press has obtained documents outlining Air Force and Navy requirements for investigation and reporting on "civil disturbances and dissident or subversive activities . . . ."

An example of what Air Force agents were told to look for is contained in a May 25, 1970, memorandum issued by Col. Jack January Jr. at Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls, Tex. The guidelines have since been rescinded.

The first draft of the directive ordered Air Force personnel to report to their supervisor on such persons as those "attempting to spread antiwar sentiments in public places" at Sheppard or those "Making statements with racial overtones."

When Sen. Ervin asked about the guidelines, Robert C. Moot, assistant secretary of defense, said the Pentagon has a "very real concern for the privacy and constitutional rights of members of the armed forces . . . .

"As a general rule, investigations are not initiated where the allegation is based on the mere expression of views opposing official U.S. policy in Vietnam,"

Mitchell Sees Nothing Wrong In Hoover Causing Uproar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said today he doesn't believe FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's recent statements are a cause for rebuke.

The attorney general also said, in a news conference, the federal government plans no further action in the slaying of two yourg blacks at Jackson State College in Mississippi last spring and that no decision has been made on whether a federal grand jury probe of the Kent State incident in Ohio is necessary. Four students were killed during a demonstration at Kent State.

Mitchell said he has been satisfied with the job Hoover has been doing as head of the FBI and that Hoover has done nothing so far that would require Mitchell's taking action.

Hoover recently created a stir when he accused two imprisoned antiwar priests, the brothers Philip and Daniel Berrigan, of heading a conspiracy to kidnap a government official.

Mitchell said Hoover's comments, in a magazine interview, that Mexicans and Puerto Ricans pose little threat against a President because "they can't shoot very straight" could not be considered a racial slur.

"You have to read the statement in context," Mitchell said. "He was not castigating any race or creed or anything else.

"I wouldn't try to impede Mr. Hoover's freedom of speech," Mitchell said. "Until he gets to the point where he is doing something improper, and he has not come anywhere near reaching that point, he can say anything he wants to."

In regard to his own future and rumors that he will resign to run President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972, Mitchell told reporters at his first news conference in five months:

"I haven't been asked and sure as hell haven't volunteered."

Asked about Nixon's chance for re-election in 1972 he replied: "I think they're excellent."

Rioting Resumes In Polish Cities

WARSAW (AP) — More trouble was indicated today in Szczecin, shaken by rioting and arson, and tanks were deployed in Gdansk, but the days of violence against government price increases appeared on the wane.

A traveler from Szczecin, Polands' largest port, said mobs burned the Communist party headquarters Thursday in a continuation of rioting that has left 10-20 dead and hundreds injured.

A Western diplomat who returned from the Baltic port of Gdansk, where the major violence broke out Monday, said tanks were positioned every 100 yards along the main street. Warsaw radio reported that life in Gdansk was "fully normal."

Radio Szczecin appealed for observance of the nightly curfew and for "calm, prudence and work" and said the port had begun a normal working day.

But the continued appeals for calm and order were considered evidence that the city the Germans called Stettin had yet to return to normal. Buildings were burned and shops were looted before authorities imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew Thursday.

A Swedish newsman who was in Szczecin Thursday said armored cars charged a crowd outside the burning Communist party headquarters and ran down a woman and her young daughter. He reported the police headquarters and several other buildings were burning when he left the city that night.

Workers Strike

The reporter, Anders Tunberg of the Swedish Broadcasting Corp., said a third of the 22,000 shipyard and dock workers had failed to report for work Thursday morning, and the rest refused to work. He said at noon several thousand workers marched into the heart of the city, but "heavy police forces" stopped several thousand others who tried to leave the shipyards.

The nightly curfew also continued in force in the tri-cities of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot, on the Bay of Danzig 180 miles east of Szczecin. Passenger train service from Warsaw to Gdansk resumed today after a four-day suspension, but plane and telephone service were still suspended.

Warsaw Radio reported that all shops in Gdansk were open this morning and fully stocked, "people were queuing to get morning newspapers; city transport is operating on a full-scale basis and so is the inter-tri-city electric train line."

The broadcast said all workers went to their jobs in all three cities.

Radio Gdansk had reported a new flareup in the city Thursday night, with "gangs of hooligans" attacking food trucks. "Many of the trucks were thoughtlessly destroyed," the broadcast said.

The government meanwhile declared the equivalent of a state of emergncy throughout the country and warned that demonstrators resorting to violence would be shot on sight.

Launch Date Confirmed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After reviewing all aspects of preparations, the Apollo program director has given the go-ahead to proceed toward a Jan. 31 launching to the moon.

Dr. Rocco A. Petrone met throughout the day Thursday with key Apollo officials to discuss the readiness of the Saturn 5 rocket, the spaceships, launch operations, tracking, recovery forces, the astronauts and other phases.

"We had a very thorough review," Petrone reported. "All elements appear ready at this time to support the Jan. 31 launch date."

Among those who participated in the review were the three astronauts who will fly the Apollo 14 mission, Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell.

Shepard and Mitchell are to attempt a landing in the rugged lunar highlands near the crater Fra Mauro to search for ancient soil that might provide clues to the origin of the moon.

The review was conducted as a flight readiness test at the launch pad was delayed Thursday because of a faulty airborne computer in the Saturn 5. The computer was replaced, with a delay of about seven hours in the exercise, which was to be completed late today with a simulated liftoff in which the three astronauts are to participate.

Congress Relents, 'Queen' Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 46-year-old paddleboat Delta Queen—wooden superstructure and all—will again ply the waters of the Mississippi River under a bill passed by Congress.

A measure providing a three-year lease on life for the sternwheeler passed through the House and Senate with little comment Thursday and went on to President Nixon.

The conference committee which exempted the Queen from Safety at Sea Law tagged it to a report obscurely titled "relief of one Elmer R. Grade."

Grade, a government worker who in the private relief bill would be allotted moving expenses, has nothing to do with the Queen or her battle to stay afloat.

Owned by Greene Line Steamers, Inc., of Cincinnati, Ohio, the sternwheeler stopped operations several weeks ago under the safety law requiring boats with 50 or more overnight passengers to have metal superstructures.

The Queen, mostly wooden, carried passengers and cargo on the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee rivers from St. Paul, Minn., with stops in New Orleans, St. Louis and Pittsburgh.

Now berthed in New Orleans, the Delta Queen is exempted under the bill from complying with the safety law until Nov. 1, 1973. That, the conferees said, "will give Congress time to hear and decide how to assist in saving the last symbol of a bygone era."

In addition, they recommended that space agency technological developments be used to find a way to make the vessel fireproof.

Officials for Greene Line said they would voluntarily take safety precautions beyond those required by the Coast Guard before refloating the vessel.

Bonds to be Issued For Safety Building

County Aims for 'Favorable Interest

The Outagamie County Board's Special Building Committee, after being told Thursday night that February interest rates look most favorable for the county, voted to start working with Appleton State Bank on the issuance of general obligation bonds to cover the cost of the proposed $2.1 million safety building.

County Administrator Alvin Woehler said the issuance of the bonds could be based on architects' estimates.

Citing what he said should be favorable February interest, Woehler urged the building committee to move fast so the bonding proposal, once it is worked out by his office, the treasurer's office, the finance committee and bank officials, can be submitted to the county board next month.

Possible Consolidation

"That would give us funding by March," Woehler said. Since some of the county's short term notes are being considered for consolidation and refinancing, the bond issuance could run as high as $3 5 million.

The building committee also approved a payment schedule to Sauter, Seaborne, Paynter, Duszak, Ltd., architects for the safety building project.

Four Equal Payments

The architectural fee of $112,250 is based on six per cent of the estimated $1,870,840 cost of constructing the facility.

The firm's contract with the county provides for monthly payments in proportion to services performed. The firm informed the county Thursday that since the design development phase of the planning has been completed, the amount due now is $39,288 — about 35 per cent of the total fee.

Another 40 per cent of the total cost will be due in four equal monthly installments of $11,225 through April 15. That amount will cover the preparation of construction documents, including specifications.

The remaining $28,062 — minus a sizeable credit due the county — will remain outstanding until the architectural firm completes its work.

Although the special building committee approved the architect's bill, it will be up to the finance committee to determine where the money will come from. Woehler said the money probably would be taken from trust funds which would be replenished after the proposed bonds are issued.

The building committee also approved payment of a $1,499.50 bill to Sauter, Seaborne, Paynter, Duszak, Ltd. for engineering services in construction of two parking lots at Sixth and Walnut streets, on land recently acquired by the county.

Test soil borings were started this morning on the parking lot site between the courthouse and annex for the safety building.

Four borings will be made to determine the bearing capacity of the soil and the size of the footings necessary for the three-story building.

Native of Clintonville Receives U.S. Award

CLINTONVILLE — Richard E. Kenfield, a native here, was among five men of the topographic division of the U. S. Geological Survey who recently were presented awards for their voluntary service in Antarctica.

Kenfield, who lives at 3403 N. 13th St., Wausau, served in that region in 1963-64. He is the son of Mrs. George Spearbraker, 29 16th St., Clintonville, and a brother of Thomas Kenfield, 50 Pearl St., Clintonville.

Kenfield was in Clintonville this past summer doing a geographical survey for the Federal Government.

The men were awarded the Congressional Antarctic Service Medal and the Department of the Interior Antarctic Service Certificate.

Kenfield was among a group of men selected to work in support of the U. S. Antarctic Research Program. As part of the program, he was given intensive training in Antarctic survival and ice movement study techniques.

The assignment, lasting about five months, involved rugged weather and spartan living conditions.

The Antarctic project involves the collection of data for use in the compilation of topographic maps of the region.

An engineer, Kenfield holds a bachelor of science degree in geology from the University of Idaho, and has done graduate work at Stanford University and at the Colorado School of Mines. He also has completed a work assignment in Saudi Arabia.

Kenfield presently is a project engineer for the Survey's 14-state central region. In that capacity, he supervises field surveys in connection with topographic mapping operations. His temporary headquarters now is Alexander, Ala.

Man Pleads Guilty to Burglaries

The third of three young Appleton men taken into custody Dec. 9 for several burglaries pleaded guilty Wednesday to four counts and will be sentenced Dec. 29.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer directed a presentence investigation for Ronald Kelly, 22, of 303 E. South River St., who he remanded to the county jail without bond.

Appleton authorities alleged that Kelly broke into W. T. Grant in the Northland Plaza Shopping Center, Valley Meat Service, the Malchow Service Station and the R. Sabee Co. in crimes committed between Feb. 27 and Nov. 7.

A fifth charge, burglary of the Country Aire Club, 2311 W. Spencer St., is expected to be included at the time Kelly is sentenced. Other counts, consolidated from other Wisconsin counties, are also expected to be read into the record Dec. 29.

Milton Aures, 24, 821 E. John St., and Stephen VanZummeren, 23, of 1516 W. Lawrence St., will be sentenced Dec. 22 by Schaefer for three and two counts of burglary respectively. Aures is also expected to be charged with the break-in at the R. Sabee Co., on Dec. 22, and consolidation efforts have been initiated for the pair.

Policeman Is Cited For Work

NEW LONDON — Officer David Berglund, a member of the New London Police Department, has received the Wisconsin Law Enforcement Officers Association Meritorious Service Certificate.

Berglund was cited for his work in the investigation of the drug problem in the city early in the fall.

The award was presented by Police Chief Jack V. Algiers.

Berglund started the drug investigation after he stopped a car full of young people, and discovered several items of drugs in it. The pursuing investigation lead to the questioning of several area persons, and the acquisition of detailed information on the drug problem in the city.

Visits to Nursing Home

These Chilton Girls Don't Forget

BY ALICE CONNORS
Post-Crescent Correspondent

CHILTON — Residents of the Toth Nursing Home are not forgotten during Christmas time — or any other holiday for that matter — by a group of eighth grade girls who call themselves the "Forget-Me-Nots."

Once a week the 28 girls separate in two groups and visit the home. They get together Thursday evening with the residents and have sing-alongs, play bingo, and show slides and movies. Some even are assisted with letter writing.

This is the fourth year the girls have been visiting the home, according to Mrs. Joseph Schlaefer, who with the help of Mrs. Clarence Hilbert, organized the group.

Mrs. Schlaefer said she use to take her Cub Scouts pack to the home at Christmas time and they would sing carols. When they would leave, the residents would say "come back soon," but often another year would pass before they would.

This way, the girls can alternate and some visit the home each week.

Show Appreciation

When you stand back and observe the girls each week and the small incidents that happen, you realize that the girls return because the people have a way of conveying their appreciation to the girls for their kindness, Mrs. Schlaefer said.

—The smiles on their faces as they place the birthday hat on someone's head and sing Happy Birthday.

— The couple who hold hands as they sing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

— The man who sings to the girls.

— The people who tell the girls to come back again after visiting and singing to them in their rooms

— The 94-year-old lady in the wheel chair by the doorway who always greets the girls with, "I've been waiting for You."

Some Assistance

The Forget-Me-Nots have received financial assistance from many organizations and individuals. Many volunteers bake cupcakes and cookies for special occasions and the girls themselves bake and make all the decorations for all happy occasions at the home

Assisting in organizing groups at the home are Mrs Norbert Propson, who leads the sing-alongs, and Rick Hostettler, who takes care of ordering the movies and showing them.

Absence among the girls is never too much of a problem, according to Mrs. Hilbert. They always try to get a substitute from the other groups if they cannot possibly make it

The good deeds our youth do seem to go unnoticed, but not to the residents of the Toth Nursing Home, who look forward to that weekly visit of the Forget-Me Nots

Residents Dissatisfied

Fremont Board Is Asked To Study Dump Operation

FREMONT — Dissatisfied residents have asked the village board to investigate the possibility of again maintaining a dump site.

Some of the residents who appeared at the board's meeting this week complained of the cost of the new refuse collection and disposal service They said the cost was not properly related to their short seasonal business.

They also objected to additional charges for disposal of large items such as appliances and furniture, the lack of bargaining power in negotiating the cost price of the pick up and the number of pickups per week.

It was asked if aid was available for a dumping site. Herbert Reickmann of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission stated that presently all agencies were out of funds but that the Farmers Home Administration participates in land acquisition and the partial funding of equipment, for which local units of government are eligible.

Don Radtke, Weyauwega, realtor, asked the council to close a portion of Wisconsin Street between West Street and Lake Street which has been intersected by the construction of U.S. Highway 10.

Toepke explained that the particular street could be of no value to anybody. Trustee Walter Warnke agreed that there was no reason the street could not be closed

Closing of a street requires the agreement signing of all adjacent property owners Radtke Realty owns all adjoining land in this case Formal action will be taken at the January board meeting

Manawa High Students Attend Wausau Program

MANAWA — Rebecca Baumer, Theresa Zellmer and Judy Buschke, all freshman at Little Wolf High School attended for the first time the Wausau Research and Guidance Laboratory for Superior Students on the Marathon County Campus in Wausau

Also attending were sophomores Mark Buchholz and Bryan Nelson who are in their second year of the program. George Lehto, guidance director who accompanied the group, noted that this center is designed to assist schools in developing procedures for educating and guiding academically talented students through high school, college and into adult citizenship.

The students attend the laboratory for the first time in the ninth grade, then for a full day at least once a year until they graduate from high school. During the visits the students are tested and counseled. The total performance of the day is interpreted and all information obtained is shared with the students

In Winnebago County

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Nine sanitary districts are being formed in Winnebago County to improve poorly planned rural sewage disposals, said Carl Mailahn, county zoning officer, Thursday, during a meeting of the Winnebago County Rural-Urban Development Council.

Construction could start in two years on sewage systems linking parts of the Town of Oshkosh to the municipal treatment plant here, Mailahn predicted.

Unplanned development along the shores of Lake Winnebago and Lake Butte des Morts has resulted in many undersized lots with ineffective septic tank systems, he said.

"A major portion of our lake frontage has been developed with too-small lots." The problem is compounded because often such dwellings were constructed without consideration for proper drainage elevations. "Many of our septic tank failures. . .are in these areas along the waterways."

Although the county earlier adopted a zoning ordinance it was not until 1967 that it was adopted by 15 of the 16 towns in the county. All towns now are included in a floodplain and shoreland ordinance required by state law, Mailahn explained.

Permit Development

Sanitary districts now will permit development of treatment facilities in crowded areas in the county.

A Town of Oshkosh district including eastern parts of the town along Lake Winnebago will transfer sewage into Oshkosh for treatment. A district including much of the western portion of the Town of Oshkosh and an area surrounding the Village of Butte des Morts also will pipe wastes into Oshkosh for treatment.

In the Town of Algoma a district is being formed along the south shore of Lake Butte des Morts. This area eventually will funnel sewage into Oshkosh.

Oshkosh also will receive sewage from a new sanitary district including the Stony Beach area adjacent to the south city limits of Oshkosh.

A small treatment facility will be built to serve the needs of individuals living in the Reighmoor Plat sanitary district, along the south shore of Lake Butte des Morts

The Town of Winchester also will develop a treatment plant to serve dwellings along the intersection of State 150 and State 110.

Sewage in a new Town of Neenah district along Lake Winnebago south of Neenah will be piped into that city for treatment

The Town of Black Wolf also is developing a sanitary district south of Oshkosh along Lake Winnebago including property along both sides of U.S. 45.

A proposed sanitary district would include the Village of Eureka and part of the Town of Rushford. A treatment facility must be designed to serve the area, said Mailahn.

'Those towns have got to do

Froehlich Defends Traveling Lawmakers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Critics of legislators who indulge in junkets to distant places at the expense of the state have failed to acknowledge that most other state officials take such expense-paid journeys to conferences and conventions of interest and concern to them. Speaker Harold Froehlich, retiring chief of the Wisconsin State Assembly, said in a statement made public here today.

Froehlich responded to widespread press notices about the travels of 23 members of the legislature, representing both political parties, to and from Puerto Rico recently as delegates to a national conference of legislative leaders.

They traveled at state expenses, and the party included members who had retired voluntarily or were defeated in November elections, press critics have noted.

Useful to Lawmakers

The Appleton legislator who accompanied the delegation to San Juan said such conferences are as useful to lawmakers as the many other professional conventions are to administrative and academic employes of the state who frequently travel with state reimbursement of expenses also.

Froehlich urged the press also to report the presence at such conferences of state-paid "bureaucrats and university professors."

He recalled that legislative auditors recently discovered that the University of Wisconsin "alone spent $1,114,000 to fly its personnel around the nation and around the world," in a single year.

"This is for air fare alone. These expenditures are seldom questioned by the press, or by the public, which is unaware of these facts," he complained.

Not Scrutinized

Most other departments regularly dispatch state officers and employes to topical conventions around the country, at considerable state expense, but their travel vouchers are not scrutinized by Capitol reporters with the care that is devoted to the examination of legislators' expense accounts, he said in a periodical bulletin which he entitles "legislative capsule report."

Meanwhile a $585.86 expense voucher was approved by the state Bureau of Finance Thursday for Rep. Paul Alfonsi, R-Minocqua, one of the lawmakers who recently traveled to Puerto Rico at taxpayers' expense.

Alfonsi's voucher was the first filed by the 23 Wisconsin lawmakers who made the trip to San Juan.

Expense vouchers for the Las Vegas junket by Wisconsin lawmakers totaled $3,136.

K-C Officials Weigh Report On Pollution

New York Group Hits Pulp Mills for Effuse Practices

Kimberly - Clark Corp. fared better than most of the companies surveyed in a report in which a New York group said the pulp and paper mill industry has been remiss in controlling water and air pollution, a K-C spokesman said today.

spokesman said Thursday.

day, said that of 131 mills operated by the 24 industry leaders surveyed, 77 have failed to do what is realistically possible to abate particulate, soot and ash emissions. It also said that 55 of the mills emit noxious odors.

The report claimed that nearly two-thirds of the wastes these mills discharge into lakes and streams — some 2.2 billion gallons daily — lacks the kind of treatment recommended by federal standards.

The K-C spokesman said his firm hadn't received a copy of the 400-page report but that he had learned from American Paper Institute officials in New York that K-C was covered mill-by-mill in the study.

Consolidated Papers, Inc., Wisconsin Rpaids-based firm with an Appleton plant, also was surveyed but it has not been learned how it fared. However, neither K-C nor Consolidated was mentioned in a press release issued Wednesday by the group, which cited only the highest and lowest rated firms.

The group conducting the study was the recently formed Council on Economic Priorities, a nonprofit corporation in New York which includes investment banking people. The report apparently is geared to the investor and urges him to consider not only the profits of a company when investing but how well the firm is meeting its social responsibilities in fighting pollution.

The study took about eight months. K-C was surveyed only through questionnaires mailed to it. It isn't known whether other paper and pulp mills were visited by members of the group.

Copies of the report apparently cost about $50, and K-C indicated that it would be purchasing some.

Also it said many state pollution standards are less than what is technologically and economically feasible and may occasionally represent "virtual licenses for industries to continue to pollute," the study claims. It points out that in some instances companies singled out in the survey as polluters may be operating in full compliance with state regulations.

The report cites Owens-Illinois and Weyerhaeuser for "their records of sustained interest and effort toward achieving excellent pollution control at their mills."

It criticizes St. Regis, Diamond International and Potlach Forests for "records indicating no concern for environmetal protection."

The three companies deny this, saying they are cooperating fully with state and local athorities and spending millions of dollars a year for pollution control.

something," said Mailahn, stressing the need for adequate sewage systems in ill-planned areas.

Updated sewage treatment facilities and the need for an improved site for solid waste disposal also claim high priority at Omro, said Mayor Archie Daggett.

Plant Required

Department of Natural Resources orders have given the city until the end of 1972 to build a new sewage treatment plant. Daggett said a plant is now being designed. A clear water ordinance has been passed to keep drains from funneling excess water through the present treatment plant which provides only primary treatment. "Hopefully we are proceeding in an orderly manner," he said.

The city also is now planning to lease an area for a new solid waste disposal site to comply with Department of Natural Resources regulations, he said.

After hearing reports, Dr. Millan Uuchich of Oshkosh State University urged the council to attack individual county problems.

"There are problems which are particular and unique to rural areas and to urban areas." The council could coordinate planning in both areas, he suggested.

Vernon Peroutky was named chairman of the new council. Jerome Starling, Fox Valley Council of Governments regional planning director was named vice-chairman, and Henry Malchow. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager was elected secretary. Isaac Hart, a Town of Clayton Grange member also was elected to the group's steering committee.

Appleton Man Hurt in Crash

OSHKOSH — An Appleton man is reported to be good condition at Mercy Medical Center here with possible back and leg injuries he received Wednesday when the car he was in was hit broadside by another car.

Michael D. Donnermeyer, 26, of 2722 N. Richmond St., Appleton, was injured about 11 a.m. Wednesday at the intersection of County Trunks A and Y or Sunnyview Road, just north of Winnebago.

The driver of the other car, Richard F. Worden, 40, of 2609 N Morrison St., Appleton, was not injured.

Police cited Donnermeyer in the accident. A police report said Donnermeyer was westbound on Sunnyview Road, stopped for the sign and then pulled out in front of the southbound Worden auto.

The 1970 Plymouth owned by the Yellow Cab Co., Appleton, and driven by Donnermeyer received about $1,000 damage to the right side, county police estimated. Worden's 1966 model car received about $50 damage.

Where Our Money Goes in Thailand

Anyone who has ever been remotely connected with the military knows about the waste which may not be any worse than in other organizations where individuals are seldom held responsible for the costs or where profit is not the motive. Nevertheless the bill coming to us from Thailand is something of a shocker.

The General Accounting Office, a non-political bureau, has made a study of our military assistance to Thailand and come up with the figure of $260 million. But even this figure may not be accurate as the auditing team says it was denied access to one Thai base to inspect equipment and facilities and talk with American military personnel.

Thailand, which until its close relationship with the United States, had been a thoroughly independent nation and jealous of that stature, sent 12,000 troops to Vietnam to fight on our side. In addition it made available a number of air bases from which most of the American air strikes against North Vietnam originated. This was not publicized in Thailand until about three years ago because the military regime apparently wasn't quite sure of itself. Allowances were paid to the Thai troops in combat zones by the United States plus apparently such items as death gratuities and extra subsistence during military training for Vietnam. It was obviously a mercenary army but the fact had to be concealed as far as possible because of the sensitivity of the Thai people and their government. We have not yet been able to determine whether this whole program was really an effort to save the Thais from communism or to bolster the claims of our government about the number and enthusiasm of our "allies" in the war.

Senator Stuart Symington, currently a critic of the war and our part in it, says that the GAO was not permitted to see some documents until the Department of Defense had screened them. But the auditing team did visit one training center in Thailand and reported that more than 1,100 trucks and other American vehicles had been allotted to the group, which constituted about twice the amount used to outfit an American force of the same size. Trucks and other equipment were "engulfed in weeds," many had obviously had tires and other parts stolen and ammunition was stored unprotected in open fields. After all, there was always supposed to be more where this all had come from.

The General Accounting Office is, according to Senator Symington, an independent agent of Congress "trying to ascertain what has happened to the people's money." It appears it will be a gloomy story.

"OIL IS THICKER THAN WATER."

Nixon's Reply to Scranton

President Nixon's letter to William Scranton, chairman of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest appointed by Mr. Nixon, once again reflects what appears to be his lack of understanding of the problems on the campus.

The Commission report, published several months ago, went into great detail about the causes of dissent, unrest and finally violent disturbances on the nation's campuses. It condemned the latter in as strong terms as those used by Vice President Agnew. But it also delved into why the dissent came about. It turned out it wasn't all Dr. Spock after all. "Race, the war, and the defects of the modern university have contributed to campus unrest," it stated, and it listed pages of recommendations. But the one suggestion it made seems to have riled not only Mr. Agnew, who immediately denounced it although it was obvious he hadn't had time to read the whole report, but it seems to have disturbed Mr. Nixon as well. "We urge that the President exercise his reconciling moral leadership as the first step to prevent violence and create understanding. It is imperative that the President bring us together before more lives are lost and more property destroyed and more universities disrupted."

In his letter of transmittal of the report to the President, Mr. Scranton wrote that much campus unrest "is an expression of intellectual restlessness and intellectual restlessness prompts the search for truth ..... our colleges and universities cannot survive as combat zones, but they cannot thrive unless they are receptive to new ideas ..... even in this troubled and confusing time, and precisely because we need knowledge and wisdom in such a time, our colleges and universities must sustain their commitment to the life of the mind."

But in his letter to Mr. Scranton, President Nixon seemed obsessed with the suggestion that he had not provided moral leadership. "Throughout my public life I have come to know the immense moral authority of the presidency. During these past 22 months I have tried to exercise that authority to bring an end to violence and bitterness." And in his inaugural address the President stressed negotiations rather than confrontations and the "bring us together theme."

But it appears that it is lack of understanding rather than lack of aim that has handicapped Mr. Nixon. How he can possibly state, as he did in his letter to Mr. Scranton, that Mr. Agnew is one of the "leaders of the national community" in this aim is impossible to comprehend. The President's "southern strategy," the obvious efforts to hold up integration of schools, the move into Cambodia, the resumption of bombing raids over North Vietnam, the description of college dissenters as "bums," the ignoring of the Moratorium for Peace march in Washington, his obvious surprise at the campus reaction to Cambodia and even the killings at Kent and Jackson State, all indicate that he does not realize the opinions of much of youth concerning his leadership in Washington. We do not imply in any sense that President Nixon has provided immoral leadership but he has been out of touch — and that great silent majority didn't show up in the November elections.

Once again we should emphasize that if Presidential commissions are going to be appointed to study various problems in the nation and unless they are viewed as merely stalling devices, their reports should be carefully considered. The President's look at the one on campus unrest was inadequate to say the least.

Lots of Worrying Going On

The Public Health Service has reported evidence on nervousness among Americans which suggests that there's a lot of worrying going on around us.

According to a survey, almost 60 per cent of the adult population is fidgety and tense at times to the point of being bothered. When a person thinks about all the tension remedies, tranquilizer pills, alcoholic beverages and tobacco that are used to reduce nervousness, there must be a lot of worrying going on.

The adage that misery loves company is small comfort when one thinks of the worry which causes sleepless nights, unsettled digestive tracts and ulcers. But there is an even greater evil which may be tied to all our worrying. That may be the relationship of worry to the drug problem.

Most experts agree that drugs usually are taken to escape reality, either a reality that doesn't seem real enough or one that poses problems with which the drug user feels he can't cope. If the latter is often the case, then the complex and pressure-cooker society which is causing adults to try to escape their nervousness through various remedies may in part be a cause of the drug scene among our youth.

Wisconsin Report

Frank Report Issued By Medical Society On Doctor Shortage

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The problem of accommodating the swiftly growing health service demands of the people of the United States and Wisconsin has been in the public forum for many years and mostly has generated more heat than light.

The hard-headed declaration of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin, including in its rolls virtually all of the professional medical practitioners in the state, on the emerging and worsening health care crisis is one of the valuable contributions to the discussion.

It separates reality from illusion, it courageously faces the disturbing facts underlying the problem, and it offers some real if not easily accepted proposals for ameliorating a problem that can only become more dangerous if it receives only the garrulous clucking of the politicians that it has attracted over a period of so many years.

Shortage of Physicians

The problem is a simple one, says the society. There are not enough men and women in the health professions to accommodate not only a rising population but one of significantly changing characteristics. Narrowed down, the problem is one of a shortage of physicians that must be regarded as scandalous in a nation which is accustomed to regard itself not only as the richest and most powerful on earth, but the most enterprising, inventive and progressive.

For many years popular opinion tended to the belief that the health professions were concerned about protection of the economic position of practitioners.

In the legislature members reflected that view as they grumbled about the unwillingness of the state-financed medical school to enroll more students and to produce more graduate physicians.

There might have been some justification for that doubt 20 or 30 years ago. But it is academic today and can only confound the issue. Virtually every physician and health care specialist I know is overworked and wants help. Literally scores of smaller towns in Wisconsin are feeling the shortage of physicians and dreading the time when their practitioners will retire. They know they are unlikely to attract young men or women to replace them.

Traffic Is Crushing

Anybody who doubts the enormous appetite of Americans today for good health service need only spend a casual hour or two in the lobby or the waiting room of a group practice clinic. This reporter recently tarried purposefully during a visit to a physician friend at University Hospitals in Madison, perhaps the largest medical service center in the state in the scope of its staff and the armies of patients who troop through its doors.

The traffic was breathtaking. The crushing demands on the medical staff and the associated technical personnel in scores of specialities was suggested by the long waits generated by the almost unmanageable crush of eager, anxious men, women and children.

Much of the discussion of this problem has been virtually useless. Thus the candor of the State Medical Society is refreshing. It asks for acceleration of the medical curriculum, for example.

It asks for stronger public support, meaning more taxes for medical training, and inferentially, subsidy for students who cannot be expected to finance their own long and demanding course of instruction and apprenticeship. It urges responsible study of the training of physician assistants who would be able to enlarge the efficiency of graduate physicians significantly — even as the armed services have learned. It asks acceleration of nursing training, to produce a two year associate degree nurse and the three year diploma nurse.

Cities Get Most

The most hard-headed of its conclusions in the perspective of the long and futile public discourse on the subject is on assuring medical care of quality in the smaller communities and the rural districts. As long as there is a shortage of professionals, cities with their economic and social advantages will get most of them.

On physician distribution, the society said with admirable candor and appreciation of the facts:

"We know of no voluntary way to correct (it) short of increasing the numbers of physicians to the point that supply and demand would force redistribution."

Russian Naval Penetration Of Indian Ocean Bothers U.S.

BY KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON — High on the agenda of U. S.-British strategic discussions is the growing naval penetration of the Indian Ocean by Russia. In these waters, reaching from Australia in the east to Arabia in the north and Africa in the west, the Soviets are moving to fill the vacuum left by the departure of the British during the 1960's.

Beginning in March, 1968, Soviet naval squadrons have visited 20 ports in thirteen nations from Tanzania to Ceylon. In recent months, about 20 Russian ships have been on station, including a guided missile cruiser, three destroyers, five submarines (at least two, off Ceylon and South Africa, armed with missiles), a submarine depot ship, and various supply ships.

To support this fleet, the Russians have secured an extraordinary array of facilities. Beginning near South Africa and traveling clockwise around the Indian Ocean's perimeter, the U.S.S.R. has obtained trawler refueling and docking privileges at Port Louis in the once-British island of Mauritius. (Many Soviet fishing trawlers are electronic spy ships.) To the north, the Russians enjoy trawler facilities in the Seychelles Islands and along the African coast in Tanzania.

Seek Naval Base

Near the horn of Africa, port facilities are available in Somalia, a Russian sympathizer. Soviet marines guard a new radio station and ammunition depot on the South Arabian island of Socotra, which lies at the mouth of the Gulf of Aden, the entrance to the Red Sea and Suez Canal. Along the gulf, the Soviets enjoy port facilities at Berbera, Somalia, and at Aden, itself, Britain's former Arabian naval base, where a

Phillips

Russian naval officer now serves as harbormaster.

Clockwise again, trawler facilities are available to the U. S. S. R. in Gwadar, Pakistan, and along India's west coast. At the tip of India, the new pro-Communist government of Ceylon is considering a Soviet request for use of the former British naval base at Trincomalee.

Along India's eastern shore, the Russians are dickering for increased access to the Indian submarine base at Visakhapatnam. The Indian submarines stationed there are Soviet-made, manned by Soviet-trained officers and maintained by Soviet technicians.

In the Bay of Bengal, the Russians hope to establish a submarine base in either the Andaman or the Nicobar islands, commanding the Straits of Malacca, through which lies the vital port of Singapore. Although India's consent seems improbable, there are already unconfirmed reports of Russian ships berthing in Port Blair in the Andamans.

All across the Indian Ocean, Russia has established a system of mooring buoys that provide supply facilities and are especially useful for submarine support.

At present, Western ability to counter this buildup is minimal. The U. S. has only a seaplane tender and two aging destroyers, all based at Bahrein in the Persian Gulf. Britain has only a frigate and several minesweepers in the gulf, with other forces at Singapore. And Australia's small navy, hitherto preoccupied with Pacific trade routes, has no major bases along its western coast. (France has several Indian Ocean bases, but little strategic interest or naval forces at hand.)

Australia Moving In

To guard the eastern Indian Ocean, Australia will build a new base at Cockburn Sound (near Perth), able to support frigates and submarines. Use of the base has already been accepted by the United States.

Her Majesty's government has been negotiating with South Africa for use of Simonstown, the former important British naval base at the Cape of Good Hope, now being modernized — the expansion includes a nine-acre submarine pen and a basin capable of berthing at least one aircraft carrier. Simonstown is considered the key to the western Indian Ocean.

The U.S. and Britain have tentatively agreed that the U.S. will build a new communications base (plus anchorages) on the island of Diego Garcia in Britain's Indian Ocean territories. This facility will serve as an alternative to the U.S. communications base in Asmara, Ethiopia, now jeopardized by Russian encirclement, and as a complement to the Navy communications base at Northwest Cape, Australia.

The strategic importance of countering the Soviet Buildup will be discussed in a subsequent column.

Nixon to Contrary, Art Is Not Enobling

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In his attack repudiating the report by the National Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, President Nixon took issue with the report's contention that filthy books and plays have no lasting harmful effect on a man's character.

If that were true, Nixon argued, "it must also be true that great books, great paintings and great plays have no ennobling effect on a man's conduct. Centuries of civilization and ten minutes of common sense tell us otherwise."

But the President is as wrong about "good art" as he is about "dirty art." It is a melancholy truth of history that great books, paintings and plays — and even great music, which is the most direct and profound form of emotional communication — do not have any lasting effect on their audiences, nor even on the men who create them.

Wednesday happened to be the 200th anniversary of Beethoven's birthday. He was one of the world's greatest creative geniuses, and his last symphonies, quartets and sonatas are surely among the most "spiritual" ever committed to paper.

But Beethoven's personal character was warped, mean and petty; he was intensely suspicious, quarreled with everyone, and died of an advanced stage of syphilis from his early promiscuity.

Moreover, even though he was worshipped by the German people and their leaders, this "ennobling" music on behalf of human freedom and equality did not have the slightest effect on the Nazification of the nation. The Germans could cry with ecstasy at the "Ode to Joy" in the Ninth Symphony, and then assent to the diabolical extermination of anti-Nazis.

Contrary to the gospel of the culture-vultures, great art no more uplifts our character than pornography debases it. The world's worst villains can appreciate the finest paintings, attend the most exquisite chamber concerts, and read the holiest books — while at the same time making a shambles of their private lives and violating public decency.

The great works of Greek antiquity had no influence on the tragic course of Athens, which destroyed itself through greed, pride, and envy. No society has ever followed the dictates of its finest thinkers and artists, either rejecting them outright or paying lip-service to their genius while pursuing an opposite path.

And, as a final irony, much of the great art that Nixon now accepts as "ennobling" was at the time of authorship condemned by people like him as being seditious, immoral, or pornographic, and survived only despite attempts at government suppression. What makes people behave well or badly has little or nothing to do with the level of their art-forms.

Cities Rip Suburbs During State Budget Hearings

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Suburban areas came under a scalding attack Thursday as Gov.-elect Patrick J. Lucey moved his state budget hearings to Milwaukee for a two-day stand.

After touring the city, Lucey, in a statement, said there are eight major problems involving Wisconsin cities that require attention.

Most of the speakers Thursday said urban problems—especially state financial assistance, economic development and employment, housing and education—could be alleviated if cities receive their share of state shared taxes.

"Undr the state share - tax system today," Henry Maier, Milwaukee mayor, said, "them that has, gets."

Maier was followed by chief executive John Doyne of Milwaukee County; Mrs. Henry Lardy, state chairman of an organization called Coalition for Action on Shared Taxes; Mayor Donald Tilleman of Green Bay, Mayor Ralph Voigt of Merrill, city maanger Myron Medin of Fond du Lac and Mayor Kenneth Huck of Racine.

Same Message

All had the same message for Lucey: that urban areas are supporting their suburban neighbors.

"There is no village president or town board chairman who can stand before this group and in good conscience defend a tax structure that enables him to not levey a municipal tax," Huck said.

"They are leeching upon the services of the city in their geographic area, and profiting from the inequities of our present tax structure," he said

The city officials complained of mandatory programs thrust upon their communities and which local cities had to fund themselves

"We feel that any new program that is made mandatory upon the local government by any higher governmental unit or a state department should be financed by that unit imposing the requirement," Mayor Voigt said.

Tilleman said the property tax 'is a deterent to people to improve their property."

Poor Cry Out

While most of the speeches given during the hearing were by "professionals," the governor-elect appeared to be moved by the presentations made by Mrs. Cassie Downer, chairman of the Milwaukee Welfare Rights Organization, and Edward Seaver, an adviser of the Milwaukee Tenants Union.

"Hear the cries of the poor," Mrs. Downer pleaded. "We are all entitled to dignity and justice. We are all entitled to the American dream."

Seaver brought a quick comment from Lucey and laughter from the crowd when he remarked that most of his recommendations for improving the housing situation in Milwaukee would not cost money.

"Those are the kind of solutions we're looking for," Lucey replied.

Both Seaver and Richard E. Perrin, executive director of the Milwaukee Housing Authority, asked that suburban areas be required to house some low-income families.

They both also asked that freeway construction in the Milwaukee area be halted until adequate housing at a reasonable cost is found to house those persons who would be displaced by the roads.

"The most severe crisis in housing since World War II is now," Perrin charged.

How About the Lt. Governor?

MILWAUKEE (AP)— A brief exchange between Gov. - elect Patrick J. Lucey, Lt Gov.-elect Martin J. Schreiber Jr. and Larry Katz brought a moment of levity to the state budget hearings Thursday evening

Katz, director of the Milwaukee area insuring office of the Federal Housing Administration, had finished his speech when he began answering questions from Lucey and Schreiber.

"I thought Mr. Schreiber was going to ask you about housing in Madison for a lieutenant governor making $7,500 a year," Lucey joked.

"If you have three children," Katz answered quickly, you're eligible for assistance."

Plan to Create Job Canceled By Committee

$35,500-a-Year Post Was Pending For Lame Duck

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee has abandoned plans to create for its lame duck chairman a $35,505-a-year job.

Rep. Samuel N. Friedel, D-Md., said Thursday he asked that the House Administration Committee drop the idea when published reports said he was in line to become the chamber's first assistant sergeant-at-arms.

The 72-year-old Friedel, told that some of his colleagues were looking for still another post he might fill, said, "If something else comes up, I'll take a look at it."

A subcommittee had approved the job recommendation for Friedel, defeated for renomination earlier this year after 18 years in the House.

Strong Criticism

When word of the pending appointment leaked out, other congressmen were strongly critical. The full committee met Monday and agreed to Friedel's request.

Some committee members said they would continue to search for a job for Friedel—though at less than the $35,505 salary along with two more years of House service he needs to qualify for a pension of about $20,000. He can now draw $17,000 upon retirement.

Taking care of lame duck congressmen is nothing new. Rep. John Dent, D-Pa., a member of Friedel's committee, told newsmen Congress has no monopoly on the practice.

He noted the Nixon administration has named Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., as a special presidential counselor and Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Both men were defeated last month in bids for Senate seats.

Noise, Air Pollution From Trucks Attacked

"I believe the time has come for a major effort to curb the growing and undoubted nuisance," he told the House of Commons.

$75 Million Annual Cost

Paring of Excess Committees Advised

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee estimated today the federal government spends $75 million a year supporting 3,200 advisory panels—many of which it said are meaningless, obsolete or performing duplicate jobs.

While declaring proper use of such committees is necessary and helpful, the Government Operations Committee deplored inactive ones that are tucked away in bureaucratic obscurity accomplishing nothing.

The report said there are committees to advise advisory committees, committees without appointees, committees with appointed members which do not meet, committees with staffs which do not meet, and committees which go on forever.

In Name Only

Some committees exist in name only, the congressman said, new members are appointed to expired boards, many panels waste time getting started, some committees cover territory already explored by a previous board, and often conclusions and recommendations are flatly ignored by the people who appoint panels. The panel proliferation began during George Washington's administration, the House group said, and now has reached the point where no one really knows the extent of manpower being consumed—and there is no way to effectively evaluate the finished product.

In the report climaxing an 18-month review the House panel said was the first comprehensive look at the situation, the committee stated presidential panels—those with at least one member picked by the White House—"generally lack adequate administrative guidelines and management control."

The average Cabinet member serves on about 30 interagency committees—which, the House group said, makes him no more than a token representative.

Then, take the case of the President's Temporary Commission on Pennsylvania Avenue. It was created in March 1965 with five Cabinet members aboard. But it was refused continuing funds from Congress for fiscal 1970, and its staff was discontinued in October 1969.

Yet, the House panel said, the President later named two new members to it. And, the House group added, "two staff members still maintain titles, exist on other executive branch payrolls and act in the name of the commission. At present it is difficult to determine if the commission exists."

The report also said the presidential Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, with 10 Cabinet members, has met only four times in 10 years.

The executive branch occasionally goes on a "committee-killing spree of short duration," the House group said.

And, when no termination requirement exists, a committee may go on forever—for example, the House panel reported, the Marine Corps Memorial Commission created in 1947 to consider plans for a monument in Chicago has done little or nothing in 23 years of life.

Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn., chairman of a special studies group which prepared the report, said of the known and unknown advisory bodies: "I think of them as being like satellites . . . they go out into outer space but they keep circling around, and no one really knows how many there are or what direction they're going in."

The House committee's recommended remedies include:

—Creating a committee-management secretariat in the Office of Management and Budget to make an annual review of the need for interagency and advisory committees.

—Having the President report annually to Congress on the activities, status and changes in composition of advisory panels—including a list of those he feels should be abolished.

—Setting up reforms including provisions for guidelines containing a clearly defined mission and balanced representation plus specific designation of time for a report and for the panel's work to end.

—Developing of a permanent depository at the Library of Congress where public reports would be available and all panels would have to send a copy of their reports and background papers from consultants.

Milwaukee: Top Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average resident of Milwaukee pays more state and local taxes than his counterparts in any of the nation's 24 other largest cities, an economist reported Thursday.

It is not the first special report in recent years to list Milwaukee as the nation's most tax-heavy city. As with some of its predecessors, the study was quickly challenged as to its accuracy.

The report, based on the income of an average family of four persons with an annual income of $10,000, said that typical family pays $1,586 in state and local taxes in Milwaukee.

This was compared with an estimated $1,388 in Baltimore, $1,341 in Boston, $1,140 in Pittsburgh, $1,032 in New York, $991 in Detroit, $920 in Chicago or $400 in Houston.

Milwaukee's estimated 15.9 per cent total tax rate for the average family would be nearly twice that of the report's estimate of 8.8 per cent for the average of America's 25 largest cities.

Effects Still Uncertain

Marijuana Residue Lingers in Blood

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marijuana smokers may become more and more sensitive—psychologically and physically—to the weed as its chemical by-products build up in bodily tissues, a Public Health Service research team says.

But the scientists, labeling their study an early step "in a series of 10,000 steps that may have to be taken," emphasized they cannot say if pot smoking is harmful to humans.

The experiments involved injecting THC, the major ingredient of marijuana, into the bloodstream of a man and two women who didn't smoke marijuana.

In Bloodstream

The researchers said THC, or delta - 9-tetrahydrocannabinoln, lingered in the bloodstream for more than three days and by-products persisted for eight days.

This may indicate, the scientists said, that marijuana residues build up in such bodily tissues as the lungs and brain.

"If, indeed, THC is bound in lung, then in man, this would be even more significant since inhalation is the usual route of administration," said the report to the professional journal "Science."

The four researchers from the National Institute of Mental Health include Dr. Julius Axelrod, co-winner of the 1970 Nobel prize in medicine. The study was part of a $2 million-a-year investigation of marijuana.

Reverse Tolerance

The body's retention of THC and its byproducts may explain the "reverse tolerance" phenomenon, in which chronic marijuana smokers appear to get more and more effects with each additional dose, said the report.

"The findings represent first evidence of the physiological disposition and fate of the drug in man—and this is important to know in order to begin to investigate possible hazards of short-term and long-term use of marijuana," said Dr. Irwin J. Kopin, chief of the laboratory and a member of the team.

The institute reaffirmed its policy that, until scientific data determines whether marijuana smoking is dangerous, "marijuana must be considered a risk to the mental and physical health of users."

Decision Awaited on Soap Additive Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worried soap manufacturers awaited today a government announcement on the safety of NTA, a chemical they have increasingly turned to in place of much criticized phosphates in household detergents.

Indications before today's scheduled announcement had pointed to restrictions or possible banning of NTA in laundry and dishwashig soaps by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Environmental Protection agency.

Detergent makers have invested millions of dollars to develop NTA—nitrilotriacetic acid — as a substitute for Phosphate, which have been blamed for pollution of streams and lakes through sewer runoff.

Detergent executives discussed NTA for two hours Thursday with high HEW and EPA officials. Afterward they would only say "no comment" or "wait until Friday" when asked if NTA was to be removed from detergents.

In confirming an announcement would be made today, HEW officials said the Public Health Service has just completed laboratory studies shedding new but unspecified light on the safety of NTA.

The chief critic of the chemical, Dr. Samuel S. Epstein of Harvard medical school, maintains, "There are some unsettling questions concerning NTA that have not yet been answered."

Epstein suggests NTA, which attracts metals, might cause large quantities of lead, mercury, arsenic or other heavy elements poisonous to man to break loose from plumbing systems and lake bottoms.

He also says it might form nitrosamines — proven cancer-causing agents in a number of animals.

NTA, like phosphates, aids washing by softening water, dispersing and suspending dirt.

At least one major manufacturer, Procter & Gamble, already has substituted NTA for 25 per cent of the phosphates in its detergents and had planned to increase this soon to 50 per cent.

Second Man Charged

Manson Arraigned on Ninth Murder Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson, arraigned on the ninth murder charge against him, refused to accept a lawyer saying. "No man can speak for me because I'm not the ordinary type of person."

Barefoot and wearing blue jail denims, Manson was brought into court Thursday with bearded Bruce Davis, 27, a member of his hippie-style "family."

Both were charged with killing stuntman Donald J. "Shorty" Shea, 36, who vanished from the Spahn movie ranch, the Manson clan headquarters, in August 1969—shortly after the Sharon Tate murders. Shea's body has never been found. The state claims it was hacked to pieces and disposed of

Trial to Resume

Manson, 36, is on trial with three women followers in the slaying of actress Tate and six others. That trial is scheduled to resume Monday after a recess for a lawyer to catch up on the case and take over for a missing defense attorney.

Manson and Davis are also charged in the July 1969 slaying of musician Gary Hinman. The district attorney's office said it will try to consolidate the Hinman and Shea cases when they come to tral.

In a nearly half-hour dialogue with Superior Court Judge George M. Dell, Manson demanded to be his own lawyer and said: "I think the indictments that have been returned against me are a publicity thing."

Manson's lawyer in the Tate case Irving Kanarek, had complained earlier that publicity surrounding the new charges would prejudice Manson's case in the Tate trial—even though the jury is sequestered.

Dell denied Manson's request for self-representation, saying the defendant has shown himself "wholly incapable" of being his own lawyer.

Davis, 27, who told the judge he had attended the University of Tennessee for two years, also asked to represent himself. The judge reserved decision until next Wednesday on who would represent the two.

Arraignment of Manson family member Steve Grogan, 19, also named in the indictment, was set for today. He is in custody in Inyo County on a charge of carrying a sawed-off shotgun.

2,362 Licenses Lost in 1970 for Speed Violations

MADISON (AP) — A total of 2,362 drivers lost their licenses in the first nine months of 1970 for speeding, Gov. Warren P. Knowles has reported.

He noted that 28 per cent of the speeders were from out of state and 43 per cent of the violators were 21 years of age or younger.

Seventy-one per cent of the speeders lost their driver licenses for 15 days, the minimum set by law. Some of the suspensions ranged as high as a year.

The convictions came under the excess speeding law in Knowles' traffic safety program hitting at those who were convicted of speeding in excess of 20 miles of posted highway speed limits.

Suggestion From Planner

Calumet County Board to Consider Hiring Sanitarian

CHILTON — The Calumet County Board of Supervisors was told to seriously consider hiring a county sanitarian or code enforcement officer who would enforce county zoning ordinances and shoreland-flood-plain ordinances.

In a letter to the supervisors Tuesday, Roland Tonn, county planner, said that the enforcement officers not only would enforce the ordinances the county now has, but also would be helpful in combating against communicable diseases.

Tonn said he had support from the Office of Public Health Nurses. He noted that Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Manitowoc, Door, Outagamie and Winnebago counties have trained men serving in similar capacities.

Tonn said that the sanitarian must have a working knowledge of the basic principles and practices of environmental sanitation and laws applicable to them. He also would need the ability to secure facts through investigations and inspections and analyze and interpret them effectively. In addition, he would be required to establish and maintain effective working relationships with public health officers, professional and lay groups and the general public.

College Graduate

It would be desirable if the sanitarian were a graduate of a college or university of recognized standing with major courses in public health santation, bacteriology, biology or chemistry, he added.

Supv. C. A. Pagel, chairman of the planning committee, said a sanitarian would take the load off the planner, who then could devote more time to county planning. He also said that it would be impossible for the planner to carry out all the functions of the sanitarian. Pagel pointed out that ordinances are no good unless you have someone to enforce them.

A complete study on the functions of the sanitarian were given to board members to study, in hopes some action could be taken in the very near future.

Law Enforcement

Two resolutions with regard to traffic law enforcement and qualifications for recruits were passed. The recruit training program under the Wisconsin Law Enforcement Standards Act requires that before an individual can be employed as a law enforcement officer, he must have been certified by the Wisconsin Law Enforcement Standards Board under standards set by the board.

The resolution will allow an individual to start employment on a probationary or temporary basis as a law enforcement officers only if he has met the law enforcement standards. He must be certified by the board as having met the recruit qualifications and completed the preparatory training course.

Supv. G. J. Hipke felt that the resolution would allow for qulaified men to be hired when needed. There is always a risk involved in their work, he said.

Primary Jurisdiction

The other resolution states that the Calumet County Traffic Department will assume primary but not exclusive enforcement jurisdiction on all federal, state, county and township highways in the county and any part of the federal, state or county trunk highway system in the corporate limits of the cities in the county.

A resolution adjusting social workers salary for the coming year was defeated by a 6 to 9 vote. The resolution called for the adjustment in salary of the social workers according to the Merit System Compensation Plan set by the state department.

A year ago, the county board elected to set the salaries of the social workers instead of the state. Now, according to Supv. Clem Ecker, salary and personnel chairman, "it looks like we will have to go along with the state." Social workers are paid in part by the state. It was felt that unless the county goes along, the state might take the allowances away from the county.

Man May Have Died For Fuel Money Lack

MILWAUKEE (AP)— A man who officials said may have run out of funds with which to purchase heating fuel was found dead Wednesday night in his home, which had filled with smoke from a makeshift fire in a clothes hamper.

A medical examiner said Roman Paulbecke, 71, died of smoke inhalation. The body was discovered by a friend.

The examiner's report said the furnace in Paulbecke's home had exhausted its oil supply, and that the victim had not paid rent since February.

Mother Appeals For Missing Son

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It does not matter to a sick elderly woman that her son was an executioner for Fidel Castro after the latest Cuban revolution. What matters is that he isn't home and she needs him. She wants her son to come home.

"I'm sick, and I want to get in touch with him," said Mrs. Martha Yelich, 74, whose son Herman F. Marks supervised the execution of scores of Castro's enemies.

"I would like to have him here," she said in an interview with Alex P. Dobish of the Milwaukee Journal. "Everything would be straightened out. He would get his citizenship back."

The State Department revoked his citizenship after learning he had sworn allegiance to a foreign power.

Marks was chief security officer of La Cabana fortress in Cuba, where he commanded the firing squads and issued the final order. He then administered the coupe de grace with a pistol shot in the back of the head.

He was called "the Butcher" and the "Death Bird," according to prison inmates who escaped.

He went to Cuba in 1958 and fled in 1960 after the Cuban leader's swift embrace of Communism."

But to the aging woman her son by a former marriage was "only a guard" at the prison. Her confidence things could be ironed out was that of a wishful mother who can wipe away a son's record—32 known arrests, and he bragged about more—and the fact that he is wanted now.

"It's winter and I can't get food," said Mrs. Yelich, who lives on Social Security in a West Side apartment. "The snow is high. I can't make it around at all."

"He should write if he needs help," she said, "if he has no money on which to come home." Marks arrived in Milwaukee in mid 1966—after spending time in New York—and stayed a couple of months before disappearing again.

Mrs. Yelich said she knows what consequences her appeal could bring.

"I don't want to get hell from some of my relations," she said. "They are going to say: 'Why do you want him home?' They are going to say: 'Let him be.' But I am his mother and I am asking him to come home."

"I think he went back to Cuba," Mrs. Yellich said, disregarding the fact he was declared a deserter after he fled to the U.S., and faces the same fate he once dealt others if he returned.

"I looked for my son for a year and a half already," she said. "I had the Salvation Army look twice for him."

She said the Salvation Army missing persons bureau looked for her son, now 49, among the derelicts on Chicago's skid row.

Her boy will heed his mother's appeal "if he hears," she said. "I suppose he is afraid that the law is looking for him."

Local authorities say they have no idea where Marks is.

"Is my son dead?" she asked herself. "I hope not. I hope not."

Democratic Contenders . . . IV

Waiting Game For Humphrey

BY WALTER MEARS and CARL P. LEUBSDORF
. . AP Political Writers

WASHINGTON AP) — For Hubert H. Humphrey, two years of political exile are ending—and, if the odds are long against another presidential nomination, the lure of the White House is still there.

"I am not seeking the presidency," says the man from Minnesota, who hasn't even been sworn in yet to his new Senate seat. "I have not renounced the possibility."

Today, according to Humphrey, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine is the clear Democratic leader, and President Nixon looks like a formidable opponent: "an incumbent president is hard to beat."

"But you don't judge what is going to happen in 1972 by what is happening in 1970," Humphrey said. "Who can tell what's going to happen?"

In fact, Humphrey says, he sees a possibility that President Nixon may not seek a second term, choosing thepath of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

All Conjecture

"Of course, this is all conjecture, but I think the President has a sense of history, that if the domestic situation looks truly bad and his political prospects are not good, I have reason to believe he wouldn't run."

Humphrey, who swept to the Democratic presidential nomination two years ago, says while not very probable economic woes could do to Nixon what the Vietnam war did to Johnson—lead him to renounce a re-election bid.

"I think Mr. Nixon is a proud man . . . and if he thought that his candidacy would not be honored, if it looked bad, very bad, he might very well sav 'Look, I've been president through difficult times. I've served my country, I'll step aside'

"That would be a whole new ball game."

In Lineup

New ball game or old, Humphrey obviously sees himself in the lineup.

He sits in the office he has kept in Washington for the past two years, and talks of politics, and the Senate, and the role of a titular party leader, and political fund raising, and the polls—and "that place."

The place is the White House, and when Humphrey mentions it, he does so with a wave over his right shoulder. His geography is perfect; the presidential mansion is three rainy blocks away, in just that direction.

At 59, Humphrey casts himself as a sort of political elder statesman, the man who has been the route and can advise others—and possibly, just possibly, run the race against himself.

No Organization

"I really don't see much possibility of my being involved in presidential politics as a contender. I am not saying that the no organization. I am not opening up any offices. . . . I hope to be able to counsel some others . .

"But let's say that it should come around to January next year, January 1972, and no one seems to be really out in front, there doesn't seem to be any coalescing, well, then, I think we'll all take another look and see where we are.

"I want to be a good senator, that's what I really want to be, and I want to be a good leader in the party. And I think the best role that I play is when I don't have ambitions, when I'm not seeking position or title, and I'm not seeking position or title now. . .

"The only one I missed was the top job, you see. So I don't want to spend my time trying to see if I can get another title, or to see if I can get to be a chairman, or to contend for an office in the Senate. I don't think I need to do that . . .

Humphrey says what he will do is help shape Democratic policy, help raise Democratic money and promote Democratic unity.

He adds that he already has consulted with some of the obvious 1972 candidates. "I've been trying to, I don't want to say admonish, but to suggest to our Democratic leaders that the only way we can win in 1972, and I think we can win, is some degree of unity in our party . . .

"I think," the former vice president says, "we'll have to wait, as I said, to see what develops in the next 12 to 14 months, and then everybody take another look . . . if one candidate appears . . . to be far out in front, then it might be wise to concentrate our resources and talents upon him."

"I think Democrats can be in the headlines all during the coming two years, with leaders out in front, with an administration that's in trouble," he says. "I really believe that we can occupy the news, so to speak . . .

"I give a lot of free advice to people who listen, or even if they won't listen, I think that it looks good for the Democrats in 1972, now. But what it will look like a year from now is hard to say."

And what it will look like a year from now for Hubert H. Humphrey is hard to say, too.

His message to the party is clear: If the challenge of 1972 seems to call for a man who has been there fore, who styles himself a tutor of Democrats, Hubert Humphrey is back in government, and very, very available for the assignment.

'Winter Itch' is Often Caused by Dryness

By G. C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Starting the latter part of November or early December, I seem to develop an annual itch, mostly across my shoulder blades and upper arms, and extending down the center of my back. There are no red blotches or visible irritation.

Would you have any solution or know the cause? Recently I heard of the "winter itch" Have you ever heard this term? — S.M.

It's an old term and a pretty descriptive one, too.

Probably the principal cause of it is dryness. As we grow older, our skin dries and is more likely to itch anyway.

But add to that, we start up the furnace in the fall, and unless we take pains to prevent it, the house soon becomes very dried out. So does our skin And we are ripe for a few months of "the winter itch."

Some heating systems are equipped with water containers as part of the furnace. Keep them full of water, and evaporation then keeps the air from becoming too dry. That's with hot-air furnaces.

With other types of heating plants, there is no way to do this — systems that use radiators. The answer is to get moisture into the air in some other manner. Some radiators have, or can be equipped with, shallow pans on top These, filled with water, provide evaporation (A flat, shallow pan will give off more moisture than a tall, narrow container, because the amount of evaporation is largely regulated by the area of the surface of the water.)

There are also humidifier units that can be purchased Try keeping the air in your house less dry and see if the winter itch doesn't subside. You might peruse the next letter, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have noticed quite a few letters about dry itching skin. I felt I should tell you my remedy It is one part glycerin and two parts boiled water. I make up several ounces at a time and shake well to mix.

It is a wonderful lotion after a bath, also after dishwashing, and keeps the skin soft and moist but not sticky or greasy. — Mrs. T.J.P.

It's a good lotion, ought to help a lot of people. It's essentially the same as rose water, without anything added to make it smell perfumed.

Prepared lotions containing emollients also are useful for folks who need something a bit more powerful.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you discuss a spasmodic bowel? What causes it, and is there any danger to health? —Mrs. E A B.

It would take more space than I have to give you a really useful discussion. Instead I suggest that you read my booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints" Send 25 cents for printing and handling costs, and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Thosteson, care of The Post Crescent.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is aseptic necrosis? Our grandson has it and the doctor says he has large cavities in the hip joints where the bone has disintegrated, and he must have surgery. Is it a form of cancer? — Mrs. W.S.

No, not cancer at all. Aseptic necrosis means a disintegration of bone due to disrupted blood supply, usually caused by injury rather than infection. In the hip it is called Legg-Calve-Perthes disease. Usually with proper rest and treatment, new bone tends to form, assuming that too much damage hasn't already been done.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is nevertheless vital to human life For this reason, Dr Thosteson has entitled his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly" For a copy write to him in care of the Post Crescent enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope

In the Tradition

Nature obliged River Drive residents with a cover of snow when, as in the tradition of Christmasses past, they heralded the holiday with their annual neighborhood party Thursday evening.

If it was a white Christmas for the little folks and big, it was a sweet one, too, thanks to Mrs. Chet Meyers, Mrs. C. M. Stachowiak, Mrs. William Stone and Mrs. Richard Roeder. They made and donated the cookies enjoyed by all at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Collar.

Then at 5:15 p.m., the children set our through the neighborhood singing carols in anticipation of Santa's arrival. When at last he appeared, it was with gifts and greetings for all who gathered 'round the River Drive Christmas tree.

Dad Ducks and Son reaches toward Santa, at left, for a Christmas present that looks too big to be true. Above, little Peter Coffin peers anxiously as with his chin and the help of Robert Coffin's head, he manages he keep his grasp on the gaily wrapped mystery.

More Cookies was the call answered above by Mrs. Roy Collar. Bearing a tray of the sweets, she edges her way through the crowd of children dressed for the caroling that took place later just before Santa's arrival Carrying on the tradition that will long be remembered by River Drive children are these young people at left, seen caroling by lamplight. Minutes later, they assembled 'round the River Drive Christmas tree for the finale of the evening, Santa's visit.

Measles Signal Holiday Season

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The other day Brucie complained, "My head hurts and my nose is stuffy."

"Ridiculous," I said, "It's too early. Christmas is a week away."

Normal people can alway predict when the holidays are near at hand. There is an air of excitement, the smell of holly, the ringing of bells, the singing of carols There is a saying at our house, "We got measles. It must be Christmas."

Down at the laundromat, I am known as Typhoid Mary.

"What are you having this year for Christmas?" they ask as I sort my clothes "Well, I've got one exposure to chicken pox, one who has only had mumps on his left side and two who just throw up to keep thinks interesting."

It's never serious enough to be an emotional drag, but I've forgotten what real Christmases are like. I cornered my friend, Donna Robust, and begged, "Tell me again about Christmas at your house."

"Well," said Donna, 'On Christmas morning I get up first and . . ."

"Start going through the yellow pages to find a drugstore open," I said, my eyes glistening

"No, no," she laughed, "I turn on all the lights around the Christmas tree Then I ring the sleigh bells and . . ."

"I know, I know," I said excitedly, "It's pill time. You give one a spoon of syrup, another an aspirin, and the baby a suppository for nausea."

She shook her head "I summon them all around the tree to open up their presents Then, after breakfast, we all geet dressed "

"Can you imagine that?" I sighed. "Everybody dressed."

"Then we go to church and that afternoon we have 15 or 20 people in for Christmas dinner."

"Once I saw my dad on Christmas. He slid two batteries under the door for a robot monster that didn't include them."

"I bet that was nice" she said

"Oh, and another time the doctor dropped by to check on us and brought in a bit of snow on his boots The kids went wild"

"Maybe this year things will be different," said Donna, patting my hand

"Maybe so." I sighed. "But tell me again about how you all get dressed and go out . . ."
